But he hesitated, and pointed to the Nancy, whereupon the lady, to whom he was speaking, looked fixedly at the cutter and her occupants.

"That is Mrs. Baumgartner, I am sure," said Evelyn eagerly. "Will you take me across in the dinghy at once? Then, if necessary, I can reach Portsmouth easily this evening, as I shall have gained half an hour."

She gave no heed to the astounding fact that if these people were really the yacht-owning and his wife, they were absolutely alone on the vessel. Warden, unwilling to arouse distrust in her mind, bade Peter draw the dinghy alongside.

"Good-by," he said, extending his hand frankly. "The world is small, and we shall meet again. Remember, you have promised to write, and in the meantime, do not forget that the Nancy or her crew can offer you any service we are within hailing distance."

"You are not leaving Coves tonight, then?"

"No. Tomorrow, if the wind serves, we go east, to Brighton and Dover, and perhaps as far north as Croydon. After that, to Holland. But no matter where I am, I manage to secure my letters."

Evelyn gave his hand a grateful little pressure. She was not insensible of the tact that sent Peter as her escort.

"You have been exceedingly good and kind to me," she said. "I shall never forget this most charming day, and I shall certainly write to you. Good-by, Chris. Good-by, dear little ship. What a pity—she paused and laughed with pretty embarrassment. "I think I was going to say what a pity it is that these pleasant hours cannot last longer—they come too rarely in life."

And with that she was gone, though she turned twice during her short voyage, and waved a hand to the man who was looking at her so steadily while he leaned against the cutter's mast and smoked in silence.

There could be no doubt that the lady on the Sans Souci was Mrs. Baumgartner. No sooner did she realize that Miss Dane's arrival was imminent than she threw up her hands with a Continental exclamation of amazement and ran into the deck cabin. To all seeming, she bade the launch await further orders. Baumgartner and his wife reappeared, they indulged in gesticulations to which Warden could readily imagine an accompaniment of harsh-sounding German, and, evidently as the outcome of their talk, the launch steamed away.

Warden smiled sourly.

"If those people had committed a murder on board and were anxious to sink their victim several fathoms deep before anybody interfered with them, they could hardly be more excited," he thought. "Perhaps it won't do my young friend any good if I remain here staring straight at the yacht."

He busied himself with an unnecessary stowing away of the cutter's mainmast, but contrived to watch events sufficiently to note that Mrs. Baumgartner received her guest with voluble courtesy. Baumgartner, a French-polished edition of the back-factor type of man, hustled the two ladies out of sight, and thereupon, during more than an hour, the deck of the Sans Souci was absolutely untenanted.

Twilight was deepening; lights began to twinkle on shore; not a few careful captains showed riding lamps, although the precaution was yet needless; launches and ships' boats were clearing long black furrows in the slate-blue surface of the Solent as they ferried parties of diners from shore or yacht—but never a sign of life was there on board the Sans Souci. Peter, undisturbed by speculations as to the future of the young lady, whose presence had brightened the deck of the Nancy during the afternoon, cooked an appetizing supper. He was surprised when Warden expressed a wish that they should eat without a light. It did not occur to him that his employer was mounting guard over the Baumgartners' yacht, and meant to have a clear field of vision while a shred of daylight remained.

The progress of the meal was rudely broken in on by Peter himself. Although the placid silence of the night was frequently disturbed by the flapping of propeilers, his sailor's ear caught the stealthy approach of the one vessel that boded possible danger. Swinging himself upright he roared:

"Where's that ugly Dutchman—a comin' to? Quick with a light, Chris, or she'll be on top of us!"

"You've changed your mind, sir," was Peter's greeting.

"You were keeping a lookout, then?" said Warden.

"Aye nothin' else to do, so to speak, sir."

"Well, jump in and take the oars. I shall be with you in a moment."

Warden dived into the small cabin, rummaged in a box and produced two revolvers. He examined both weapons carefully with a lantern to light the way on board; and then he pulled back to the Nancy. Ere he reached her, the launch had gone shoreward again.

LOVE LED HIM TO SUICIDE

The Tragic Romance of a Member of the Rothschild Family.

Baron Oscar de Rothschild, youngest of six sons of Baron Albert de Rothschild, head of the Austrian branch of the famous house, committed suicide in his father's splendid residence in Vienna, Monday night as already reported.

Baron Oscar attained his majority only last April; a romantic explanation of his untimely and tragic death is given. He served his year in the army, as the military requires of every man, at Brunn, the fortified capital of Moravia. Then this scion of the Rothschilds fell in love with a very beautiful but very poor girl. It was his first love affair, and he became so infatuated that he announced to his father his intention to marry the girl, against whose character no reproach was whispered.

Baron Albert immediately sent the love-sick boy on a voyage around the world during which the young baron visited the United States, it is said. He remained constant to his love and, returning only three days ago, he learned that in his absence his father had arranged a marriage for his inamorata and had given her a rich dowry.

Baron Oscar's disappointment plunged him at once into desperation and melancholy. A friend, a diplomat, met him on the Ringstrasse, Monday and was shocked to see that his manner was erratic and his dress disordered; the diplomat watched him as he walked unsteadily.

Two hours later Baron Albert, who was dining at the Hotel Bristol, was called home hurriedly; his son had been found dead in his bedroom—he had shot himself through the head.

The family, grief-stricken, announced that Oscar's death was caused by apoplexy; the police, who always carefully investigate such affairs, have confirmed, to their satisfaction, that he committed suicide.

Baron Albert, who is reputed to be one of the ablest financiers of the house of Rothschild, has produced, has been a dominant figure in the banking house in Vienna, Frankfurt, Paris and London for 20 years. He is a man of extremely reticent and unsympathetic manners; personally, he is anything but popular, but his influence in Austria is enormous.

With all his wealth his domestic life has been ill-starred. His wife was his double first cousin for the Rothschilds are all very clannish in their marriages. Baron Albert married a cousin, daughter of his uncle, Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, of Paris. A woman of great charm and of high abilities, she died of cancer four years after Oscar's birth. Their eldest son, Baron George, lost his reason; their only daughter, Naomi, is a deaf mute.

Baron Oscar's death is a terrible blow to his father, who saw in him a future prop of the house.

Two of Baron Oscar's eldest brothers, Baron Alphonse and Baron Louis de Rothschild, visited America in December 1904. They studied American banking methods in New York and traveled extensively, making themselves acquainted with business methods and conditions in the United States and Mexico. They were recalled to Europe by the deaths of their maternal grandfather, Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, head of the Paris branch of the house, and of their uncle, Baron Nathaniel, of Vienna. The young men's father, Baron Albert, is a patron of arts and philanthropist. He is fond of chess and in 1898 was referee in the international college chess tournament which the American players won.

The week of August 8, will be a big one for societies in St. John, as two big fraternal gatherings will be held here during that week. The supreme council of The Temple of Honor and Temperance will hold their sixty-third annual meeting here, and there will also be a convention of the Maritime Oddfellows.

The meetings of the Temple of Honor will be held in the new building of Alexandra Temple in Main street. The first feature will be on Sunday, Aug. 8, when a grand parade will be held and will perhaps be the biggest temperance parade seen in St. John in twenty-five years. It is expected that there will be 500 in line made up to a great extent of boys of the sections.

The procession, headed by St. Mary's Band, will march from the Temple building to the century church, where a sermon will be held at 4 o'clock, presided over by Most Worshipful Recorder Rev. C. F. Woodruff, D.D., of Flemington (N. J.), who will also deliver a special address. Music will be provided by a Temple of Honor male quartette.

On Monday there will be no meetings. On Tuesday, Aug. 10, the steamer May Queen will take the members of the council and the visitors and citizens who may wish to go, on an river outing. The steamer will go as far as Brown's Falls, and on return will stop at Waterville, where all will disembark. The party will be accompanied by St. Mary's Band. On disembarking, the visitors will be treated to a series of military drills performed by 300 boys of the sections in uniform. After the drill the ladies will arrange a number of figures and set pieces emblematic of the order. In conclusion they will be formed to represent the American and Canadian flags, while The Star Spangled Banner, and The Maple Leaf Forever, will be played by the band.

On Wednesday evening a banquet will be tendered the visitors by the Grand Temple of New Brunswick. It is hoped to have representatives of the provincial and civic governments to deliver addresses of welcome.

The business sessions of the supreme council will begin on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock and will continue through Wednesday and Thursday. The majority of the visitors will remain till Saturday.

The meeting of the supreme council is always a representative one and many big men who are not only prominent in order but also in other walks of life, will attend. Among the visitors will be Congressman Tyrell of Massachusetts, and Rev. David I. Robinson of Gloucester (Mass.), ex-mayor of the city, member of the state legislature, and treasurer of the county of Essex.

About 130 boys of the junior sections, Temple of Honor, assembled on the Barrack green last evening and were put through a short drill by Herbert J. Smith, Sergt. Jas. Sullivan and Sergt. Richard Dore. LaTour Section was represented by about fifty or sixty members, Alexandria by about forty and the remainder made up by members from Rockwood and Victoria sections.

The sections have been drilling separately, and their first general gathering was for the purpose of getting them together for combined work and organization. Only two more weeks remain to get the lads into shape for the big convention at which they are expected to make an excellent showing.

The Grand Encampment of the Grand Lodge of the Maritime Provinces, I. O. O. F., and Rebekah assembly will be held in this city Aug. 10, 11 and 12. A booklet has been issued in attractive form and contains, besides portraits of the grand officers of the grand lodge are: John Johnston, Sydney Mines, grand master; W. S. Hooper, Fredericton, deputy grand master; Dr. A. D. Smith, St. John, grand warden; J. J. MacKinnon, Charlottetown, Grand secretary; John F. W. Lear, Charlottetown, grand representative; C. A. Sampson, Fredericton, grand representative; Rev. C. W. Whitman, Granville Ferry, grand chaplain; A. A. Packham, Halifax, grand marshal; Thomas C. Crowell, Clarks Harbor, grand conductor; H. V. McLennan, Campbellton, grand herald; and J. H. Balsem, Halifax, grand treasurer.

All the meetings will be held in Keith's assembly rooms. On Tuesday, Aug. 10, the grand encampment and Rebekah assembly will hold simultaneous meetings at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., and there will be an exemplification of the Rebekah degree by a team from Jewel Rebekah lodge, No. 6, in the hall of the Seamen's Institute, at 8 p. m.

On Wednesday the Rebekah assembly will meet at 9 a. m. and the opening session of the grand lodge will be at 10:30 a. m. At 3 p. m. the delegates will be entertained on an excursion up the river on the steamer Victoria, which will leave her wharf at Indiantown at 3 o'clock, returning about 5:30 p. m. At 8 p. m. there will be a business session of the grand lodge and at the same hour a reception will be tendered by Sapphire No. 1 and Jewel Rebekah No. 6 to the visiting lady delegates, to be followed by a business session.

On Thursday the grand encampment will be wound up with three business sessions of the grand lodge at 9 a. m., 2 p. m. and 8 p. m.

Similar arrangements have been made by which Mrs. Fisher will find at various points all the necessary changes of clothing, the food supplies and such other incidentals as will help to make the adventurous trip as comfortable as possible.

Mrs. Fisher intends to start from Southampton in one of the two relief cars and make a tour of England, Ireland and Scotland, where the roads are considered good, before she crosses the Channel to France. In Paris she will make her real start in the big machine, which is equipped with a full camping outfit and a small arsenal, for Mrs. Fisher believes in leaving nothing to chance.

The roads of France and Switzerland will afford a pleasant trip to Lake Como, where Mrs. Fisher has a beautiful estate, called the Villa Carlotta, facing the water. Here she will rest for a fortnight or so, making sure that all the arrangements for the future journey have been thoroughly carried out, and then she will start through Northern Italy for Vienna. Thence she will set her flag for Southern Russia, and through Asiatic Russia she will march on to Port Said.

One small bottle has done more for me than all the doctor's medicines I have ever taken in the last three years. I have been troubled with Bronchitis, Asthma, but by using Catarrhazone I have been entirely cured. Do you wonder that I am the enthusiastic friend of Catarrhazone? The dollar outfit of Catarrhazone lasts two months and invariably cures; small trial size 50c. All dealers or The Catarrhazone Co., Kingston, Ont.

The next field meeting of the Natural History Society will be held at Dr. G. U. Hay's summer residence, Ingleside, on Wednesday next, and the society will, it is expected, turn out in force, as it is two or three years since this most attractive spot has been visited. Those attending will take the 1.10 p. m. C. P. R. train.

Fashion Hint for Times Readers

Very rich, heavy ribbon with a warp printed floral pattern has been used for this effective sash, and the hair bow is made of the same ribbon in narrower width. Both ribbons are richly arranged with a generous amount of ribbon, the sash having two loops and ends falling even below the bottom of the skirt; and the hair bow being very full. Ribbon trimmings are so simple that when they are used for a dressy toilette a sufficient quantity of handsome ribbon should be used to avoid any effect of skimpiness.

NEW YORK WOMEN TO CIRCLE THE GLOBE IN AUTOMOBILES

Mrs. Harriet Clark Fisher and Maid to Start on a Daring Journey Around the World—Well Armed for Attacks by Robber.

New York, July 22—Mrs. Harriet Clark Fisher, whom Wu-Ting-Fang, the Chinese minister, once described as the most remarkable woman in America, sailed this week on the American liner New York to begin an automobile tour of the world. With her went "Honk-Honk," her Boston bull mascot, four large touring cars, a chauffeur, a maid and a secretary.

Mrs. Fisher is the widow of Lieutenant Commander Fisher, of the United States Navy, and since his death she has managed the Eagle Anvil Works at Trenton, N. J., which she established, with such skill and business ability that the National Association of Manufacturers some time ago admitted her as their only woman member. Mrs. Fisher learned the anvil business from A. to Z., and has qualified as a journeyman anvil maker, probably the only one in the world.

She has always taken a deep interest in automobiles and has made a study of their mechanism to such good purpose that she is as well posted as any chauffeur and can run any make of machine under all conditions. Two years ago she made up her mind to make a tour of the world in a car of her own, and since then she has been perfecting the necessary arrangements.

Many extraordinary adventures are sure to be met on the way, for Mrs. Fisher's itinerary contemplates the passing through provinces whose inhabitants have probably never even heard of, much less seen, a "devil-wagon." It is for this reason that Mrs. Fisher carries with her an assortment of firearms which she and her secretary, Harold Fisher Brooks, are quite competent to make good use of whenever necessary. Besides, as Mrs. Fisher is a wealthy woman and will necessarily have to carry with her a large amount of money, and as her trip will probably be well advertised wherever she is due, it is only a wise precaution to have the wherewithal to repel boarders should any be encountered.

But as she waved her hand laughingly over the side of the steamer yesterday she declared that she had not the slightest fear of any danger that may arise, and she fully expects to have a fine time. Being an ardent photographer as well as an auto lover, Mrs. Fisher hopes to bring back a great collection of interesting pictures of the lands she visits.

TRADE IS GOOD
(Toronto News)
That trade conditions are buoyant and rapidly recovering from the depression that was so universal last year, is abundantly evident from interviews with leading manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers and other business men of the city. The testimony of nearly every one is that the improvement has been steadily marked since the first of the year, and that in a very short time the returns will equal those of the banner year of 1907.
