QUEEN'S COUNSEL.

The statement that the existing government will not allow the Queen's Counsel nominated by the late government appears to be correct. The Toronto World some days ago pointed out that it is well known that "Sir Oliver Mowat has all along contended that the power to appoint Queen's Counsel was vested in the provincial authorities and not in the federal authorities, but no action was ever taken to settle the point. The federal government has for years been nominating Queen's Counsel, and a few years ago Sir Oliver did the same, and there the matter rested. One of the reasons, therefore, which have led the Minister of Justice to recommend the rescinding of the order-in-council is the point for which he has all along contended." It is not, we think, absolutely correct that Sir Oliver Mowat denied the power of the Dominion government to nominate Queen's Counsel. But he maintained that the Local government of which he was the head had the power to appoint. It will, doubtless, be found that he will endeavor to have this matter finally and fairly settled. The probability is that Sir Oliver's contention is right. The Provincial government—that is the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario—and of every other Province in the Dominion, has the right to appoint an Attorney General within that Province for Her Majesty, why not Queen's Counsel? The London (Ont.), Advertiser says that the "origin of the system of appointing Queen's counsel is interesting. Primarily, Queen's or King's Counsel were appointed by the English sovereign from among the more eminent and learned professors of law in the kingdom. The King or Queen was in the habit of summoning these men annually to Westminster, to meet the sovereign and the representatives of the people, and give whatever advice was necessary for the proper interpretation of the laws of the realm. Though nowadays Queen's Counsel are not so summoned they have never been relieved of the duty. In Canada the title of Queen's Counsel is one of courtesy, and ought to be, if it is not, placed on the same high plane as is the title in England. The privileges of a Queen's Counsel in this country entitle him to precedence over a barrister when he appears in court, to wear a silk gown, instead of one of the ordinary stuff, and to carry a red brief bag as a distinguishing mark." It might be observed that as the Supreme Court of Canada is a creation of the Canadian Parliament it may be a question whether a Queen's Counsel appointed by a provincial authority would have any standing in the Dominion court. Of course in these points the main question is not considered, and that is whether there is any necessity whatever for keeping up the distinction of Queen's Counsel in Canada. Perhaps there may be something in the contention of the Toronto Telegram that by the cancellation of the list the tailoring industry is deprived of a boom in the manufacture of silk gowns. It is more likely, however, that all of these "silks" are imported.

THE SOUTH AND ITS WEALTH.

The New York Sun has an interesting article in which it points out how steadily the Southern States are growing in wealth. Of course, before the war, the United States census returns dealt with the slaves as property, and they were put down as so much wealth. Giving the slaves their freedom took them out of the property column of the census, and apparently diminished the wealth. But the free man was still in the community, and as valuable as ever, though he did not count as property. The census of 1870—the first taken after the war—showed for the cause stated a great loss of wealth. The panic in the decade 1870-80, says the Sun, made the showing by the census still worse, but the South made remarkable progress in the decade of 1880-90. The increase of population throughout the South in that decade was large, but the increase in aggregate wealth was still larger, so that the per capita increase was remarkably large in proportion to the showing by the census of 1870. Meanwhile, the great and wealthy states of the East, though they gained enormously in wealth, increased also very rapidly in population, so that their percentage of gain per capita was often less than that in poorer and less populous states of the South. Massachusetts, which has for some decades led the nation in per capita wealth, gained only about 8½ per cent. during the last decade, while Mississippi gained over 32 per cent.; Louisiana nearly 23 per cent.; Georgia 35½ per cent.; Tennessee more than 45 per cent., and Florida over 104 per cent. North Carolina gained nearly 16½ per cent. in per capita wealth, and South Carolina nearly 32 per cent. New York, meanwhile, gained less than 12 per cent. in per capita wealth; New Hampshire less than 18 per cent.; Pennsylvania less than 29 per cent., and Rhode Island less than one per cent. In the middle Western States population grew much faster than wealth. Ohio, for example, gained only a little over one per cent. in wealth, while Illinois suddenly lost 40 per cent. But in the far Western States the conditions were reversed. Washington gained nearly 110 per cent. in per capita wealth, Colorado gained 40½ per cent., Oregon 76 per cent., California 35½ per cent. and Utah over 190 per cent. So rapid was Wyoming's gain in population that her per capita wealth decreased about 2½ per cent., though her aggregate wealth vastly increased.

A CHANGE DEMANDED.

The Canadian Grocer, in noting the lately published statements of imports and exports for Canada for the year ending June 30, 1896, asks for an improvement in the make-up of the returns. At least it wants opportunity to know more speedily than can be ascertained now, on what articles there are increases or decreases. In a general way, it says, the monthly statements furnish an idea whether the product of the mine, of the forest, or of the sea, has increased or decreased. But to get at details one must wait for several months until the annual volume, covering the trade and navigation returns, is published. This is annoying, it says, and unsatisfactory. In the United Kingdom and in the United States the public is from month to month in possession of a detailed statement of the exports. Canada should be placed in the same position. Our contemporary hopes that the Minister of Trade and Commerce will give the matter his attention and hereafter see that the monthly and quarterly returns contain a detailed statement of the exports as well as of the imports. The "old" ministers having failed to do this the new one will no doubt do it, if it can be done satisfactorily.

The Fredericton Gleaner has this paragraph:

Chatham World: The chair used by the last Speaker of the House of Commons was not good enough for Mr. Edgar, the Liberal who is to be elected, and a new one has been made. It is described in the government papers as a gorgeous piece of furniture, made of oak, upholstered in green plush and handsomely carved. How economical the Liberals are!

Perhaps it may be well to mention the fact that it is the "immemorial" practice in the Canadian Parliament for the Speaker when he retires from office at the close of the Parliament in which he has been Speaker to take with him his chair. Apparently, the Speaker of the last House, that good Conservative, Mr. Peter White, took his chair with him according to ancient custom, and a new one has to be provided for the next Speaker. Doubtless Mr. White's chair would be good enough for Mr. Edgar, if Mr. White had left it.

It is a great thing to have a fast steamer on the Bay of Fundy route—when you have her. It is unfortunate for the interests of the travelling public that at this moment, with summer travel in full motion, and the Halifax carnival in full blast, that the steamer should not be available. Everybody must sympathize with the steamboat people. But they are not the only ones whose business is deranged by the conditions.

WONDERFUL FORTUNE.

A POOR NEW BRUNSWICK BOY IN BOSTON,

Sick and in Debt, with but Ten Cents in His Pocket, Falls Heir to Over Two Million.

BOSTON, July 25.

William E. Woodward, of 31 Hanson street, this city, is about the happiest man to be found in the Hub this morning. Last Thursday morning a telegram was received by F. F. Rodman, with S. H. Tolman, 15 Temple Place, from a mutual friend of these gentlemen in San Francisco, asking the whereabouts of Woodward, stating at the same time that a large sum of money had been left him by a retired business man in that city of the same name, but that Woodward's whereabouts was unknown.

Woodward was immediately notified and his address forwarded.

Late the same afternoon he received the following:

W. E. WOODWARD, 31 Hanson St., Boston, Mass. Theodore F. Woodward died on June 17, leaving you by will $2,041,000. Come on at once. Wire me when you leave Boston.

E. B. COLE, Trustee.

San Jose, Cal.

While this seemed positive enough, and would be accepted by most anyone as conclusive evidence that such was the actual fact, Mr. Woodward would not allow himself to thus accept it without additional information. He had never seen his uncle, but was aware that he was very wealthy, although he never expected that it would avail him anything. He therefore decided to keep his own counsel until further developments.

But the despatch nearly overwhelmed the young man, for Woodward is but 24 years of age. He was dazed, and it was a long time before he was able to fully realize the extent of his good fortune. His principal occupation for the past two or three years has been canvassing for books, periodicals etc., although for a short time he held a position at E. H. White & Co.'s, but lately he has been in ill health and out of employment.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Woodward received particulars of his fortune. The letter says that his uncle, who has spent nearly 40 years in the west, had accumulated upward of $5,000,000 in the mining business and as a very successful land speculator in Southern California. About 12 years ago he retired and settled down in a small town northeast of Oakland, and lived a very secluded life, with no one but his servants and now and then an invited guest or two about him. He had always remained single, and was of a peculiar and apparently morose disposition. Those who knew him well, however, had no idea he was so wealthy, his possessions usually being placed at less than a million. But after the old gentleman's death, when his will was consulted, it was discovered that he had therein made provision for over $4,500,000. Young Woodward, his nephew, received $2,041,000, two other nephews $500,000 each, one niece $300,000 and certain sums to other relatives, friends and servants. The residue goes to an aged aunt in Iowa, and after her decease to her children. No public bequests are made.

The fortunate legatee said to a reporter: "My father, Thomas B Woodward, and Uncle Theodore were twin brothers, and until uncle went West were inseparable companions. Father, somehow, was very unfortunate in all he undertook. But he struggled on, and until his death in Portland fifteen years ago, Uncle Theodore always assisted him. The last four years of his life he was an invalid.

"Mother died when we were living in Belfast, Me., 20 years ago, when I was four years old, while my only sister, Esther, followed her the next year. When my father died I was nine and for eight years thereafter I lived with relatives in New Brunswick, where all our people came from. At 17 I went to Portland, working in a straw shop nearly a year, when I came to Boston, where I've had all manner of ups and downs ever since. The first thing I shall do when I get this money will be to pay my debts and then look after my health.

"To say that I was overwhelmed at the news is putting it mildly, and I can hardly believe my senses even now. I hadn't over ten cents in my pocket at the time, and when I tried to borrow enough to carry me to San Francisco from those who could easily spare it, and they wouldn't do it, I felt downcast for the time. Since the letter has come, however, and the legacy assured, they can't do enough for me."

Mr. Woodward is a bright appearing young man, very light complexioned, smooth face, which, with his consumptive appearance, gives him a most delicate look. He is about 5ft. 9in. and is withal a decidedly prepossessing personage.

DESIRE NO CLEMENCY.

LONDON, July 30.

George Wyndham, M. P., having learned that two fellow members of the House of Commons had made approaches to President Kruger, of the Transvaal Republic, suggesting that he should plead with the British government that clemency be shown to Dr. Jameson and his fellow officers in the raid into the South African Republic, has written a letter stating that Dr. Jameson has instructed him to oppose any action of the sort, the defendants feeling that any interference on the part of the Transvaal authorities would be unwarranted as well as being extremely distasteful. It is announced unofficially that Sir Matthew White Ridley, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, has ordered that Dr. Jameson and the others convicted with him be accorded first-class treatment.

Rev. D. C. Eddy, pastor of the First Baptist church at Brooklyn, and for many years a prominent clergyman in Boston, died last Sunday, aged seventy three years. Mr. Eddy was at one time Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, and was prohibition candidate for governor of the State.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite, and gives refreshing sleep.

LOCAL NEWS.

STEAMER STATE OF MAINE, from Boston to-day, brought 110 passengers.

SUMMER HOTEL.—Mr. D. R. Jack is likely to build a summer hotel at Duck Cove next spring.

THE PICNIC of Centenary church was held to-day at Brown's flats and was largely attended.

LOG SALE.—Messrs. Henry Hillyard, W. H. Murray and E. L. Jewett went to Fredericton this morning to attend the sale of unmarked logs at the booms.

KUMFORT DIARRHŒA CURE, ten cents, cures diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera morbus, colic, etc. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

CLEARING HOUSE.—Mr. Alexander Buchan, the clearing house manager, reports the total clearings for the week ending July 30 were $590,054 and the total balances $108,636.

NEW LAW FIRM.—Elsewhere in the GLOBE is the card of Messrs. Blair, Ruel & Blair. The head of the firm is Hon. A. G. Blair, Q. C., who stands at the head of the bar in this city; the junior members, Ald. Ruel and Mr. A. Geo. Blair, are young men of undoubted ability and good promise. The firm is a strong one.

THEY WERE DISAPPOINTED.—A number of people were at the station early this morning to go to Halifax by the fast special and were greatly disappointed when they learned the train had been cancelled. Some few went by the regular Halifax express, but others waited until noon and took the C. P. R.

THE INTERCOLONIAL is looking well after the comfort of visitors to the Halifax carnival. A large crowd is expected to go to Halifax this evening and to accommodate them three sleeping cars will be sent out on the Halifax express to-night. This will give all travellers a chance to enjoy a good sleep. Mr. J. H. Corcoran, of the passenger department, Moncton, was in the city to-day.

THE FIELD AMBULANCES.—Since the field ambulances were presented to the city they have been at the central police station. This morning one was taken to Carleton and placed in the public hall, where it can be had when needed. The second will be taken to the Portland station to-night, and the third, for contagious diseases, will shortly be sent to the public hospital.

PORT OF ST. JOHN.—Five steamships arrived during the week to load deals. So far as rates are concerned Atlantic business remains unchanged. Steam tonnage continues to be chartered both for here and the outports. Coastwise trade is also without any new features. Vessels in port to-day, uncleared, number eight steamers, of 13 932 tons; five barques, of 3 904 tons; one barquantine, of 400 tons; three brigantines, of 764 tons, and 43 schooners.

MR. GEORGE A. SCHOFIELD, manager of the Bank of New Brunswick, was in Paris a short time ago. Mr. Schofield was within a few feet of President Faure, of the French republic, when an attempt was made to assassinate him. He describes the scene which followed as something terrific. Between the efforts of the people to attack the would be assassin and of the guards to stop them there was the rush of a mighty multitude. Mr. Schofield wrote that he felt glad when he got out of the crowd.

BICYCLING ACCIDENT.—Herb Clarke, son of E. J. Clarke, Woodstock, with two other young men, was on his way from Florenceville the other day. When just below Wm. Peters's place, on a down grade, he lost his pedals and ran off the road down on a rock pile. He received two violent bruises on the head and his hip was slightly injured. He was taken to Mr. Peters's, and Dr. Ross sent for, who found it necessary to stitch the cuts in his head. He is now recovering.

THEATRICAL.—The longer the Ethel Tucker Company remains at the Opera House the more it is gaining in public favor. The audiences each evening are large and the performances give great satisfaction. The play last evening was "The Lost Paradise," and it was put on in excellent style. Miss Tucker as Margaret Knowlton was the principal feature, but the playing of Miss Harmon, Miss Westcott, Mr. Kranz and others was very good, and the whole entertainment was a delightful success. For this evening the popular drama "Called Back" is on the programme.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.—Engineer Shewen, of the Public Works department, had a conference with Mayor Robertson, Director Smith and City Engineer Peters this morning regarding the work to be performed at Sand Point by the government dredges. It was explained to Mr. Shewen that while the government dredges could not go the full depth required, still every foot of mud removed made the work lighter for an imported dredge. Mr. Shewen went carefully over the plans, and it is understood was well satisfied and will recommend that the government dredges be loaned to the city.

IMPORTING THOROUGHBREDS.—Mr. B. V. Millidge, who recently returned from Manitoba for the purpose of going into the business of raising thoroughbred Jersey cattle and engaging in the cream business, has purchased from P. J. Coggswell, Rochester, N. Y., a Jersey bull whose sire is an offspring of the famous St. Lambert bull. The bull, which is now in quarantine for three months in St. John, is said to be one of the finest, if not the finest, looking specimen of a Jersey bull, considering its age, ever brought into Canada. Mr. Millidge intends to raise a herd of Jerseys.

THE LARGEST STEAMER.—S. S. Rosefield, the largest steamer ever in the Miramichi, commenced loading for Mr. F. E. Neale at Sinclair's mill last Friday. She took in 500 standard of deals there for him, and while proceeding to Flett's mill at Nelson yesterday to continue loading she took the ground, not being in the channel at the time owing to her not steering properly. She was none the worse for grounding. She drew only 14 feet of water at the time, and last year the S. S. Virginia, belonging to the same owner, came away from Sinclair's drawing 17 feet of water. The Rosefield is commanded by Capt. Ruddock, who was in the S. S. John Bright, which steamer grounded off Morrison's mill last year and had to discharge her deckload before getting off.

A FAVORED TRAVELLER.—The afternoon express on the I. C. R., commonly, but incorrectly, called the C. P. R. train, makes very few stops between here and Sussex. A station that is usually, but not always, passed at full speed is Apohaqui—not always, because the train occasionally stops there. Hon. George E. Foster, once finance minister, has a summer home there and when in the cabinet was able to so order matters that this train would stop there, either to put him down or take him up. Evidently the I. C. R. managers at Moncton have a great regard for the defeated minister, for they still continue to run this train to suit his convenience. A couple of days ago the train was stopped at Apohaqui and Mr. Foster got on board, going as far as Sussex. The train never stopped at Apohaqui, or any other way station, to suit the convenience of any other traveller than Hon. G. E. Foster, and there does not seem to be any reason why he should ever have been the subject of this consideration.

LABOR DAY SPORTS.—The Canadian Wheelmen's Association championship races will be run off on the B. & A. Club grounds on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 7. A fine programme has been prepared and the races are sure to bring together all the best riders in the Maritime Provinces. The B. & A. Club is offering a finer field of prizes than ever before given for sports in the Maritime Provinces, including gold and silver medals and silver plate. The gem of the collection will be a gold medal from Mayor Robertson, similar to that given by him last year. The events decided on are: One mile novice; half mile championship; boys' race; mile championship; mile, 2.50 class; three miles, for Mayor's medal; mile handicap; five mile championship; mile consolation, eligible to those who have not won a first or second prize. The local wheelmen expect these sports to attract to the city a large number of strangers and are making preparations to entertain them. On Saturday afternoon, September 5 the annual road race will be held. The distances will be fifteen miles, and the race will start and finish at Macintosh's, at the one mile house. All visitors who are in the city over Sunday will be entertained at the Willows. On the morning of Labor Day at 10 o'clock there will be a parade of lady and gentlemen wheelmen, with the sports in the afternoon.

A HINT OF BRITISH POWER

BRILLIANT MILITARY SPECTACLE AT HALIFAX.

Sham Battle of Military and Naval Forces—Twenty Thousand Spectators Present.

[SPECIAL TO GLOBE.]

HALIFAX, July 30.

The military and naval review on the common this morning was one of the best ever seen in Halifax. It surpassed expectations. The sailors and marines from the British warships and Royal Berkshire Regiment arrived on the common at nine o'clock, and the Royal Engineers and Royal Artillery shortly after. At 9.30 the entire brigade was formed in line. The marine artillery wore white trousers, blue coats and white helmets, and the marine infantry white trousers, red coats and white helmets. A double column was then formed, and the sailors and troops were reviewed by Col. North and Vice-Admiral Erskine. There were fully twenty thousand spectators. Troops and sailors were hemmed in by an unbroken line of people extending clear around the common, and the western side of the citadel was crowded. At 10.30 General Montgomery Moore arrived and was received with a general salute. The brigade then moved back for close order march, separating into quarter columns. The combined bands took up a position in the centre of the common and played for the march past. The brigade was then formed up into batallions, when the sailors gave a fine exhibition of mounting and dismounting field guns. This was followed by a drill exhibition by the Royal Berkshire Regiment. The brigade then formed up and was detailed off for the sham battle. The sailors and marines were sent to Camp Hill accompanied by the light artillery. The attack was made by the Royal Berkshire Regiment. The first shot was fired from the citadel at 11 25 o'clock. The booming of cannon was then heard on Camp Hill and the fight had commenced in earnest. The heavy artillery pieces on the citadel answered the rapid firing from Camp Hill. The sailors were sent out skirmishing and were supported by marines and light artillery. The Berkshire Regiment was advancing in skirmishing order. The spectacle at this time was a most realistic one. The citadel was defended by the artillery and engineers. Rapidly the advancing party advanced. Thousands of spectators had to run before the skirmishers, who fired volley after volley as they advanced toward the hill. Sailors and engineers join and a line a quarter of a mile long is formed. The skirmishers are supported by field pieces manned by Jack tars. The firing from the citadel and common is incesfant. There is booming of cannon on all sides. The order "fix bayonets" is given and the charge is sounded. The stirring music of fife and drum is heard and the entire attacking party advance rapidly. When the attacking party is about to climb the citadel slope "cease firing" is sounded and the battle is over. The great crowd of spectators were delighted with the spectacle, which undoubtedly was to the great mass the most pleasing feature of the carnival programme.

ST. JOHNS, July 30.

Sir Archibald Geikie, director general of the British geological survey, states in a letter to Mr. Chamberlain, British Colonial Secretary, that the Newfoundland coal and iron deposits are immensely valuable. Sir Archibald advises the appointment of special experts to report on the size and character of the deposits, giving particulars regarding them, with a view to their development.
