THE PEERS AND THE LAND BILL.

The action of the House of Lords in dealing with the Irish land bill will no doubt have some influence in the ever-growing feeling that some change is required in the upper chamber of Great Britain's Parliament. The desire is probably to "mend" rather than to "end" the House of Lords, though the radical tendency in the latter direction is strong. That the peers themselves are largely responsible for the feeling against them is made sufficiently clear by their conduct in this particular matter. The land bill was designed to grant a small measure of justice to Irish tenants. It was not a perfect bill—indeed it met with favorable consideration from many of the representatives of the Irish people only as an instalment of what was required. The tory landlord interest in the House of Lords would not consent to even this, and so they hacked and mutilated the measure until its usefulness was destroyed. How they did it is thus described by the London correspondent of the New York Tribune, a not unfriendly critic:

The government benches were crowded with hereditary legislators, whose faces were not familiar to ordinary spectators. Some of them had not taken the oath, although the present Parliament has been in existence for eighteen months, and they qualified on the same day when the divisions were taken. The story goes that more than one was ignorant as to where the Houses of Parliament were and required careful directions from cabmen as to the right door by which to enter, but the debate came on, they all were in a solid mass, preoccupied with selfish interests as land owners, and determined to teach the government a lesson and to ride roughshod over Lord Salisbury and his ministers if necessary. Lords Templeton, Londonderry, Castleton and Inchiquin led this intolerant rabble of titled personages, and they did their work angrily and ignorantly, but they had a majority behind them, and although Lord Rosebery and the Liberal peers supported the ministry, the land bill was amended repeatedly and converted into a landlords' measure. Lord Lansdowne, although supported by Lord Ashbourne, who understands the land question better than anybody else on the Unionist side, was powerless to intervene in behalf of the government. Lord Salisbury did not venture to speak at all, reserving himself for the compromise stage of the proceedings next week.

The New York Times' London correspondent telegraphed:

Of the 83 Irish landlords who voted in the majority of 125, quite a third are men unknown in London, and who perhaps hardly average one day's Parliamentary attendance in ten years. It is not difficult to credit the story that a number of them had to be provided with the means for the journey to England. The spectacle of these rude, bucolic squireens gathered in this extraordinary muster to resist a land bill which had satisfied the tory ministry was still not so angering as the practically solid array of rich nobles who live in England and only use their Irish rents as pocket money, all intent on the same relentless treatment of the Irish tenant. It was in truth a revolting exhibition.

As to the question of compromise the Tribune correspondent says:

While the government by this series of defeats in the Upper House are placed in an awkward and discreditable position, they will probably be extricated from it next week by a timely compromise at the last moment. They cannot allow the land bill to be passed in its present form. Indeed it will be impossible to enact a measure which Messrs. Dillon, Healy and Redmond unite in describing as useless, for the Irish members will prolong the debate if necessary and force the ministers to drop the bill unless the Lords can be compelled to retreat at least part way. The session is drawing to a close, and the members are anxious to leave London for the grouse shooting. What astute observers like Messrs. O'Connor and Power regard as the probable result of the deadlock is a policy of conciliation by which the Commons will agree to some amendments and reject others, and in this way leave a bridge for the retreat of the Lords. The land bill will probably pass in a mutilated form, especially as no other legislation of this class is possible for several years.

The Times correspondent also says Lord Salisbury will whip the peers into line and make them pass the bill. He will not be able to efface, however, the impression made on the public mind by his selfish supporters in the upper chamber, whose conduct has given his opponents a strong argument in favor of altering the complexion of the chamber.

The Moncton Transcript does not look kindly on the suggestion of L'Evangeline that a seat in the local government should be given Mr. Richard. It very pertinently points out that in Westmorland county "the Liberal party has been hitherto the backbone of the Local government party; and although Mr. Richard was accepted twice as a candidate, it was by a great many under the impression that at least his hostility would not be felt in Dominion politics. In one election Mr. Richard did keep quiet. Then he was elected vice-president of the Liberal Conservative Association, and at the last general election took an active part in the tory nominating convention. Mr. Richard had a perfect right to do this; and on the other hand the Liberals who hitherto supported him have now a perfect right to withhold their support." The Transcript declares that it is doubtful if, even with a portfolio, Mr. Richard could carry the county, and it favors an Acadian who is a Liberal.

A somewhat remarkable instance of the peculiar manner in which the late government did business is afforded in the case of the veterinary inspectors. A few days before the general elections took place the Minister of Agriculture, for party purposes no doubt, appointed one hundred and twenty of these officials. Judging by what has been disclosed regarding some of those appointed in New Brunswick fitness had nothing whatever to do with the appointments. It appears now that the appointments were not made by order-in-council, but by Hon. Dr. Montague himself, and the new Minister has, departmentally, improved the service by cancelling all the appointments, putting an end to the scandal created by his predecessor.

The political sensation of the week in the United States will be the speech which Mr. Bryan, the Democratic silver candidate, will deliver in New York on Wednesday night. Mr. Bryan, on his way east, is meeting with a hearty reception everywhere, and finds much to encourage him. It is significant, however, that the "sound money" Democrats are still drawing off from their party, and declaring adhesion to the coming gold standard convention programme.

There is a suggestion from Ottawa that the coming session of Parliament will last eight weeks. Among the statements made is one that private bills left over from the winter session will be taken up and disposed of. This is unlikely. The probability is that no business, except passing of estimates and dealing with matters absolutely requiring attention, will be dealt with.

The Canadian Artillery team at Shoeburyness, on which St. John had two representatives, did credit to the Dominion. They won several prizes, and received also well-earned congratulations on their good work.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Women's Club of Muncie, Ind., has passed resolutions condemning merchants who disfigure fences and poles with advertisements.

Mrs. Hannah Robinson, 101½ years old, is visiting her granddaughter at Manchester, Me., and expresses great delight at the prospect of walking in the woods, which she thinks are so much pleasanter than the city.

A Brooklyn city official, who has refused to accept an increase of his salary from $5,000 to $6,000 a year, is pictured in the New York papers. The impression seems to be prevalent that he is something of a curiosity.

Presidential Candidate Bryan is the recipient almost daily of quantities of cigars and liquors, but, as he neither smokes nor drinks, he gives the cigars to newspaper correspondents and pours the liquors into the nearest sewer.

Davidson, the English sculptor, has bowed to the wishes of the Inverness Town Council, and consented to provide his statue of Flora Macdonald with a pair of shoes and stockings, and no doubt garters.

Athens has a Pasteur institute, where 201 patients were treated last year, only one dying, and that one a man who had neglected his bite for a fortnight before seeking treatment. Such an establishment is peculiarly useful in the Levant, which is overrun with ownerless dogs.

A noted Jesuit passed away recently in the person of Father Sylvanus Hunter, whose "Outlines of Dogmatic Theology," in English, has been so highly praised by the Catholic press. The deceased was a convert, in his 63rd year, a graduate of Trinity and Cambridge, and he has been a Catholic since he was 34. His closing days were passed at Stonyhurst College, and his death is felt to be a great loss to his society and the English Catholic church.

FATHER OF FORTY-ONE CHILDREN.

Connecticut Man Has Such a Quiver Full That He Has Lost Count of His Family.

Hartford, Ct., Aug. 8.

In Killingly, this state, there lives a French-Canadian named Levi Bradshaw. He has been a resident of that town about 13 years, and is now 69 years and four months. He has been married three times, and is the father of 41 children. Forty of these are now living. The last child died shortly after its birth, three weeks ago. His first wife bore him six children, there being twins in that family. The second wife was the mother of 24 children, of whom 12 are twins, and his present consort has presented him with 11 children.

Bradshaw was first married when under fourteen years of age. His eldest son is now 54 years of age, and has several children and grandchildren. Twenty-four of his sons and daughters are married, all having children. This man does not know just how large his family of grandchildren and great-grandchildren has become, and the sons and daughters have scattered, but he can count more than 150 descendants that he is sure of. Mr. Bradshaw married his last wife in Danielson about 13 years ago, and the last child born to them is the only one dead.

SPORTING IN THE SURF.

Bathing Shoes and Stockings are Exquisitely Dainty this Season.

[New York Advertiser.]

Bathing shoes are being made with more regard for daintiness every season. There are very pretty ones built now of linen in natural color, in good blues, reds, gray, black and white, with well made cork soles, and lacings that match and are long enough to twist around the ankle.

Stockings are of the same color, but it is the thing this summer to have them striped or clocked or embroidered in some pretty way. They are drawn over knee long equestrienne tights of the same color and fastened with round garters.

Trousers are worn still, but usually by the swimmer, since tights are impracticable for any exercise. The smart woman takes a deal of pride in these silk "maillots," having them to match each different bathing suit, with embroidered silk stockings in the same color, and with elastics run between wide shirred ribbons finished by big ribbon rosettes en suite.

Over all this coquetry goes the short skirt, just exactly to the bend of the knee and not a hair-breadth longer, if she does not want to be dubbed a prude.

The bathing corset is as much a part of the modish bathing suit as the tights. They are often especially made of a very thin silk coutil, low in the bust, short over the hips, and snug and well boned about the waist. This is an expensive French stuff that I have never seen in this country, save on imported corsets. It is soft and cool and comes in delicate colors. Such corsets are embroidered in linen or silk in a scattered rosebud, and others designed for bathing suits are built of embroidered or plaited pongee, or of black silk.

PUBLIC SCANDAL IN LONDON.

London, Aug. 9.

The water famine in the East End of London has become a great scandal. Many children have died, others are sick, and others still are becoming ill owing to the scarcity of water. Few houses get a supply of more than an hour daily, and the water furnished has a filthy deposit.

The result is that scarlet fever, diphtheria and other diseases, caused by uncleanliness, have broken out seriously, and to make the scandal greater, while the East End has been thus deprived of water, the fountains in the West End, or fashionable part of London, have been running, thereby wasting water which, most likely, would have saved the lives of many poor children in the unaristocratic portion of the metropolis.

A THEATRICAL WAR.

New York, Aug. 9.

The Empire Theatre, one of the greatest music halls of London, famous for its gorgeous fittings, expensive "specialty" performers, and its magnificent ballets, each of which costs almost a princely fortune, has made a bold bid for a footing in New York.

It has offered $3,000,000 for Hammerstein's Olympia. The negotiations have fallen through, however, Mr. Hammerstein refusing the bid.

The Alhambra is another great music hall of London, conducted on the same lavish scale of expenditure as the Empire, its mighty rival, and this wealthy corporation has now come forward as another bidder for the great theatre and music hall at 44th street and Broadway. It has opened negotiations with Mr. Hammerstein, and has sent a representative, who is now on the Atlantic, to New York to see if some terms cannot be made for a transfer of the New York house to English hands by the formation of a stock concern, which shall buy out Mr. Hammerstein, absorb the Olympia and run it in conjunction with the Alhambra.

Insist on having just what you call for when you go to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla, the One True Blood Purifier and nerve tonic.

Mrs. N. Peck—Papa always was a great joker.

Mr. N. Peck—That's so. When I asked him for you, he said: "Take her, young man, and be happy." — Indianapolis Journal.

Moore got here from Portland to-day, visited Carleton and made arrangements for the coming of his firm's big dredge. The engineer who is to look into the furnishing of hoisting and carrying apparatus to dump the earth is expected on Thursday from Philadelphia.

Thirty-fifth Anniversary.—A large number of persons left here by steamer Star Saturday morning to attend the thirty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Howe, of Lakeview, Queens county, N. B. Games of all kinds were indulged in and the party returned Monday afternoon, all having a delightful time. The presents were very numerous and valuable.

Back in His Old Place.—Trackmaster George Seaman, of the I. C. R., made the first official visit since his appointment to St. John on Monday. Mr. Seaman was formerly trackmaster under the Mackenzie government, but when the Conservatives came into power in 1878 he was removed and his place given to Mr. Isaac DeBoo, of Sussex. One of the first acts of the Liberal government was to restore Mr. Seaman to the position of which he was deprived.

The Ambulance is to be put in a barn on Dorchester street. The ambulance and patrol wagon will take up more room than is available in any of the city buildings and it has been found necessary to lease premises. A special committee from the Board of Safety to whom the matter was referred this morning decided to recommend the Council to lease a house and barn on Dorchester street, formerly the property of Dr. Hamilton. The barn will give ample accommodation for both ambulance and patrol wagon as well as for the horse, while the driver will reside in the house. The premises can be leased until the first of May next for about $160. A telephone will have to be put in.

Big Run of Salmon.—The run of salmon in the St. John river in the neighborhood of Springhill during the present season has been the greatest for many years past. Fishermen residing between Fredericton and Long's Creek have recently been making some splendid hauls, some of them capturing as high as eight or ten in a single night. Mr. Wilmot Guiou reports that during the past three weeks he has purchased from fishermen on an average not less than 200 pounds of salmon a day, or about 360 pounds during the three weeks. A gentleman who has resided at Springhill off and on for nearly half a century says that in all his experience he never knew salmon and grilse to be as plentiful in his locality as they are at the present time. The season for salmon fishing with nets closes on Saturday, Aug. 15th.—Herald.

Youthful Bicyclists are very numerous in this city, and some of them are particularly clever riders. The young girls seem smarter than the boys, and can do many tricks that are rarely seen outside a professional exhibition of trick riding. There are probably half a dozen girls less than twelve years of age who can do marvellous feats. A Globe reporter walking along Princess street saw one of these diminutive riders, a daughter of Mr. T. H. Hall. The little one, not able to reach the pedals when sitting on the saddle, performed many tricks, finally standing upright, with one foot on the saddle and the other on the handle bars. Her position was perfectly straight and rigid, and her arms were folded. In this position she sailed along several hundred feet, finally letting herself gracefully down and stopping her wheel.

K. of P. Excursion.—A goodly delegation of Knights of Pythias left for Moncton this morning, and that city, which has just got over an invasion of Foresters, will now have as its guests the delegates of the K. P.'s from all over the Province. The excursion this morning was largely attended. The Knights met at their hall, and, headed by the Artillery Band, marched to the depot. They marched well, and as they stepped along to the fine music of the band their appearance was the subject of much favorable comment. Quite a large number of ladies went on the excursion, and seven cars were comfortably filled. Fowler Lodge, of Fredericton, came down this morning and went on the excursion with the St. John party. A number of Fredericton people accompanied the Knights. The Knights were blessed with fine weather, but trainmen who came in this morning say it is very hot along the line.

An Immense Audience greeted Jos. Greene and Jere McAuliffe in their initial performance of "The Bowery of New York," at the Opera House Monday evening. Standing room was at a premium, all the aisles and passages being blocked. Jere McAuliffe as Biddy Hogan evoked round after round of applause, while Jos. Greene as Dick Manford, the hero of the play, immediately won the hearts of the audience by his clever impersonation of that character. Miss Ella Cameron, in her part of Alice Danby, made a favorable impression. Archie Deacon introduced a new feature in the specialty line, the singing of illustrated songs, which were exceptionally good. Little Maude is a wonder. Her songs and dances were heartily encored. "My Boy Jack" is the bill for to-night and no doubt will draw another bumper house, as the performances are of the kind that catch the popular fancy.

Stealing Deals.—As will be seen by reference to the police court column, five persons, two men and three boys, were charged this morning with stealing deals from wharves and from vessels in the harbor. This is a practice much indulged in by boys and men, and it is stated that in Carleton there are several organized gangs. They row up to a scow and contrive to dump a lot of deals overboard, or else one of their number will throw them from the wharves into the water; they then pick them up and tow them to a place of their own and sell them. The magistrate pointed out that deals that had accidentally gone afloat could not be picked up and claimed in this way, and that persons so doing would be liable to be charged with theft. The men who were caught redhanded stealing lumber from Duffell's wharf were sent to jail for thity days. The boys were severely cautioned and then let go, to appear again if required.

Parties desiring a first-class upright piano should see the one to be sold at Mr. Lockhart's rooms, Prince Wm. street, to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

Property Purchased.—Capt. Charles Wasson has purchased the house formerly owned by Hugh Stevens, situate on the Adelaide road. The price paid for it was $1,800.

The Bodies of two provincialists who died in the States were taken through this afternoon on the way home for interment. One was the body of an old man, Francis E. Gunter, aged 84 years and 11 months, who died at Newton, Mass. The body will be interred at Springfield. The other was that of a young man, Archie D. McEachen, aged 24, of Glendale, C. B., who died in Boston of consumption.

FREDERICTON NEWS.

Fredericton, Aug. 10.

A sad drowning accident occurred in Estey's mill pond at west end shortly before 5 o'clock this afternoon. A number of young boys were swimming in the pond, among them Frank O'Rea, a colored lad of 13 years, whose father is dead and whose mother is living in Boston, and who was residing with his grandmother, Mrs. Nancy O'Rea, of Charlotte street. O'Rea and another young lad started to dive under a raft which was moored near by, and finally it was proposed that he and his companion should dive under the raft from opposite sides and meet each other under water and shake hands. They accordingly proceeded to accomplish this feat, and the two dived under the raft from opposite sides. O'Rea's companion came up all right, but it was a dive to death for the colored lad. He struck his head against a sunken log, and is supposed to have been drowned. His companions gave the alarm, and a number of men ran down from the mill. The raft was removed, and in about half an hour the boy's body was recovered in about four feet of water. Life was then extinct, and all attempts at resuscitation failed.

The funeral of the late Miss Margaret McGoldrick took place to-day and was largely attended. A Requiem Mass was celebrated at St. Dunstan's church. Ald. McGoldrick, of St. John, was among the mourners.

There are fourteen Scott Act cases booked for trial at the Police Court for Friday. They are all against parties residing outside the city.

At a meeting of the Fredericton Board of School Trustees this afternoon Miss Sarah McKee, of this city, was appointed to the charge of the eighth grade in the York street school; Miss Babbitt, of the Morrison's mill school, was appointed to the charge of the department in the same school vacated by the resignation of Miss Alice Vandine (now Mrs. Palmer), and Miss Alice Vandine was appointed to the Morrison's mill school to succeed Miss Babbitt.

 In spirit land will meet him,
And he once more, on that far shore,
 May have a chance to eat him.

Note to the gentle reader: The he's and him's may be a little mixed here, but it is a distinct gain either way, whether the dog eats the Indian, or, as more commonly happens, the Indian eats the dog.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Johnnie's Indiscretion.

[From Texas Sifter.]

"Now, Johnnie," said Mrs. Chaffie, "there will be company at dinner, and I don't want you to make any bad breaks and disgrace the family."

"All right, ma;" and he didn't until the dessert was brought in, and then he attracted attention by saying: "Don't forget, ma, to ask me if I want another plate of pudding, even if there ain't enough to go round."

"Silent recesses of the forest," Willie quoted from the summer resort circular. "Silent recesses! That ain't the kind us kids has at school!"—Chicago News.
