

the public either indoors or without; and but few of them will be found entitled, according to this explanation, to be fathered as we may say on the inhabitants of the City of St. John.

How the Corporation gave up the right of managing the support of the poor of the City and submitting quietly to the passing of a Law of the Legislature, which gives the control into the hands of the Quarter Sessions, is to us a mystery. It must be placed on the list of transactions which are to be recorded in the history of the City, the management of Partridge Island Light House, which has been a loss to the City funds, of several hundred pounds a year.—Let Paupers arrive at any Port in the Province, they are immediately advised to go to St. John, and are actually assisted from parish to parish till they arrive here, and here we have them.—We are taxed for their support and must maintain them. If any evidence was required to support this statement, we have only to refer to the Journals of the late Session of the House of Assembly, where it will be seen, that the application for assistance from the public funds, for the extra expenses incurred by the maintenance of the Parish Poor, both of St. John, and Portland was rejected.

But to return to the subject.—The appointment of a committee to confer with the Overseers of the Poor with regard to the arrangements necessary to be made, both as regards the immediate accommodation of the Poor-House inmates, and also the necessity of attending to the protection of the walls of the building from being injured by the weather:—under the peculiar circumstance of the present case, we cannot see how His WORSHIP THE MAYOR could have done his duty in any other way than in the line which he has adopted.

By the Act of the Provincial Legislature, Geo. III. cap. 25, The Justices are authorised, annually, at their first meeting of General Sessions, to appoint out of every Town or Parish three fit persons to be Overseers of the Poor of the said town or Parish.—Now where is the utility of making Laws and not enforcing them? In St. John there are only, we believe, two Overseers appointed.—We do not wish to cast any reflection on the conduct of those two Gentlemen who received the appointment, far from it—we believe they have given general satisfaction.—We only mean to say that when a law is made that those persons who are appointed to see it put into force, ought to do so whether the law in itself be good or bad.—If its operation have a bad tendency, the necessity for its alteration will thus be sooner manifested.—If good, the public will reap the benefit and be satisfied with it.

By the 26 Geo. III. cap. 43, the Sessions are to receive from the Overseers of the poor annually, at their General Sessions an account of the state and condition of the poor in their several Districts, which statement the said Justices at their said Sessions are authorised and required to supervise examine and allow.—This is certainly a strange Doctrine:—That the persons appointed by the discretion of any Body, should have in their power, by Law, to turn round and tell that body to whom they are responsible, that their accounts must be passed, and that upon the admission of these accounts that body (we mean the General Sessions) should be authorised to issue warrants for the taxing of their fellow parishioners, is a libel upon common sense, and repugnant to the feelings of every man calling himself a British subject.

The next Act of the Legislature upon this subject, is that passed in 41, Geo. III. cap. 8, empowering the Common Council of the City, to lay a Tax on Dogs, and to apply the funds arising therefrom, to the support of the poor.—By the Act 45, Geo. III. cap. 19, the above mentioned Act is continued.—And by the Act 50, Geo. III. cap. 19, it is made perpetual.—There can be no objections, either as to the motives which induced the laying a Tax on Dogs, or as to the application of the money; but we are at a loss to conceive why any necessity existed for the passing of a Legislative Act upon the subject:—The Corporation, as we think, are authorised, themselves, to make such regulations without a Provincial Law. We now come to the Acts passed 59 Geo. III. cap. 2, and 60 Geo. III. cap. 14, which were passed immediately after the burning of the former Poor House:—to say the least of both these Acts, they are inexplicit,—at all events neither of them authorise either the Sessions, or the Overseers now appointed by them, to act upon an emergency like that which has lately occurred. These are the only Acts by which an Overseer is authorised to act by the direction of a special Session, and neither of them refer at all to the making immediate provision for the poor in the condition in which the late fire has placed them.—This being the case, and knowing that a meeting of the General Sessions would not take place till the 14th inst., we are at a loss to see how His Worship as a man of feeling deserves credit for his conduct on this occasion.

Boundary Line.—The New-York Albion of the 21st ult. contains a very interesting correspondence on the Boundary Line subject, between Mr. LAWRENCE, Charge d'Affaires of the United States, and Lord ABERDEEN, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.—We have inserted the Editor's remarks on the subject, but have to regret that it is not in our power, this week, to give the correspondence in full.

Catholic Question.—In a previous number will be found a Letter from the Duke of Wellington to Dr. CURTIS on this subject:—a reply thereto, is inserted in a preceding column; together with a copy of a letter from the Marquis of Anglesea to Dr. CURTIS, on receiving from him a copy of the said letter.—The Duke's defence has been the cause of the Marquis' removal, retiring from his situation as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland remains a mystery.—In fact it appears evident, that all matters connected with the subject of CATHOLIC EMANCIPATION, so far as the Government is concerned are, in the meantime, kept private:—But that measures are now in contemplation for accomplishing this desirable object, there can be no doubt.

Upper Canada.—It gives us pain to notice the feelings of disloyalty lately displayed in Upper Canada, by the account of the outrage committed against Sir JOHN COLBORNE, as given by the Gore Gazette:—we are however glad to find that the instigators, or actors, were but few in number, and belong to the most degraded class of Society.—From the warm manner in which the matter has been taken up by the loyal and respectable part of the community, there is little doubt but these miscreants will be discovered and brought to condign punishment.

(From the New-York Albion.)

The Birmingham arrived on Thursday from Liverpool with London dates to the 7th ult. There is nothing official as to the state of affairs at the seat of war. The rumours by previous arrivals of an attack having been made on the Russians have been in part confirmed, but the attack, whatever it was, was totally failed. The Prussian State Gazette in which the Russian bulletins commonly appear, is the best authority among the Continental papers. That journal of the 29th December contains the following:—
"Several letters from the Turkish Frontiers contain the intelligence that the Turks have failed in an attempt upon Varna. The loss is said to have been considerable to both armies, and the Seraskier, who commanded the Turks, is said to be severely wounded.
"Letters from Odessa, of the 12th December, say that Omar Frisone had made a movement from Shumla upon Bazardjik, General Roth having advanced against him from Varna."
The London Courier of the 6th of January in corroboration remarks:—
"The Monitor states positively, on the authority of its own correspondent at Bucharest, that a serious attack was made on the Russian entrenchments at Bazardjik, about the middle of December, in which much blood had been shed. The entrenchments were not carried; but as the real object of the attack was to cover the march of the Grand Vizier through Pravadi to Varna, and the march was effected without interruption, the Turks were considered as having succeeded. Other accounts speak of the subsequent and still more important operation—an attack upon Varna itself, the ramparts of which were still in so dilapidated a state when the Turks appeared before the place, notwithstanding the exertions of the garrison to repair them, that the Grand Vizier ordered an immediate assault. In this he is said to have failed."

The late campaign is said to have cost Russia 50,000 men. There is a bulletin from the army in Asia which we must defer for want of room.

The letters which we have inserted elsewhere, in relation to the affairs of Ireland, agitate the public mind in England exceedingly. We have re-inserted the D. of W's. Letter, in order that the whole subject may be better understood. They furnish melancholy proof of the unsettled state of things, and the diminished prospects of any thing being speedily done to relieve the Catholics. The Marquis of Anglesea returns from his Viceroyalty immediately. The Courier asserts that he has not resigned, but has been recalled. It does not appear, however, that he was recalled on account of this letter to Dr. Curtis, for it is positively affirmed by the Courier that the Noble Marquis received his recall eighteen hours before he wrote that letter. The truth is, that he made himself a partizan to the Catholic cause, and thereby deviated from the line of impartiality which His Majesty's Government wished him to observe between the contending parties. Much is said respecting the alteration of a word in the Duke of Wellington's letter. In the original his Grace used the expression, a settlement—not the settlement of the Catholic Question, as the letter was printed. The Anti-Catholics argue from this, that the Duke did not contemplate any thing like a concession, but only such a settlement as he himself might dictate. We think, however, that the substitution of the definite for the indefinite article not of such moment, for it is abundantly apparent that the Duke did contemplate some sort of settlement different from any thing that has yet been offered, or why did he advise that the question should be for a short time buried in oblivion while the passions of parties might cool? The Duke is right in postponing whatever plan he might have had in view, for the excitement so lately sprung up, would, at the present time, most assuredly defeat any measure of concession that might be brought forward. Report speaks of the Duke of Buckingham or Earl Venables as Lord Anglesea's successor.

The Revenue made up at the end of the last quarter exhibits a gratifying result as the following figures will testify:—
Net produce for the quarter ending 5th January, 1829, £13,022,300
For the corresponding quarter of last year, 12,336,079
Increase on the quarter £686,221
Net produce for the year ending 5th January, 1829, £48,205,522
Net produce for the corresponding 5th January, 1828, 46,644,675
Increase on the year, £1,660,647

The increase has been general in all the branches of the Revenue except the Customs, and the falling off in that department is more than accounted for by the large sum received in the previous year, when the foreign grain was let out of bond. The Revenue of Ireland has increased materially.

A mass of documents has been laid before Congress in relation to John Baker, now in confinement at Fredericton for his proceeding at Madawaska. Many of these documents we have before published, but as the correspondence in London is new to us, we have to-day copied Mr. Lawrence's letter to Lord Dudley, and the Earl of Aberdeen's reply. By these letters it will be seen, that the President has formally demanded, first, the release and indemnification of Baker; and secondly, that the British Government forthwith cease to exercise any jurisdiction over the territory in dispute, or the inhabitants of the several settlements contained therein. Both these demands are rejected by His Majesty's Government. Mr. Lawrence, in his rejoinder to the Earl of Aberdeen, for which we have not room to-day, repeats his former arguments, but is silent in relation to Mr. Barrell's report, and particularly so on the point so strongly dwelt upon by the British Minister, on the evils that must arise from leaving a settlement of two thousand persons without law or government of any kind. His demands, however, are not less urgently enforced, and he uses the following expressions:—"He still flatters himself that on a fuller examination, all objection will cease to a proposition which has for its motive the prevention of dangerous collisions between neighbouring and friendly powers, and that His Majesty's Government will admit the propriety of abstaining from a jurisdiction, the exercise of which, if persevered in, may lead to consequences, for which the undersigned is instructed to declare that the Government of the United States cannot hold itself responsible."

The question then would seem to have assumed a very unpleasant aspect. If the Government of Great-Britain continue to exercise what it conceives to be its undoubted right, and to discharge its obligations and responsibilities by a proper exercise of authority to a settlement of 2000 persons, (among which only twenty-five are Americans,) claiming it at her hands—she is threatened with the displeasure of the United States—with an intimation that it will lead to retaliatory collisions, and that the President will not be answerable for any consequences that may ensue. If on the other hand she consent to waive or suspend her authority, the settlement heretofore under British law and enjoying the protection of the British Government falls a prey to anarchy and lawless violence; becomes the resort of any ruffians who may choose to repair there, and the theatre, perhaps, for forming with perfect impunity any predatory incursions upon the contiguous peaceable British settlements.

MARRIED.
