[FOR THE COURIER.]

Dear Mr. Editor,—I did not intend to present my accustomed offering to the public in the present number of your paper; but the very flattering compliments with which I have been honoured by your correspondents "A Friend to Justice," (quere, the Department?)—and "M. H." demand from me a grateful acknowledgment of their beneficence.—It is unfortunate, however, that they also have thought proper to appear under borrowed colours; what a pity that two such patriots did not come forward in propria persona; we would then have been enabled to form a correct estimate of their professions,—we would then have known whether Truth alone was the Deity which they worshipped; or whether the prospect of receiving a portion of the Secret Service Money might have stimulated them to the mighty effort which they have made to uphold a sinking faction;—"a Friend to Justice" is evidently the production of some of the Fredericton gentry; it is dated on the "19*th of January*."—The 19th was Saturday, on which day your paper is published at an early hour—and no person in Saint John would think of preparing an article seven days previous to its publication, on a matter such as that which forms the subject of a "Friend's" Strictures,—but all this may be fairly understood, by supposing it sent from the Seat of Government by Monday's mail; this fact will therefore account for the affection which the writer feels for the Commissioner, and his admiration of the gentlemanly conduct of the Under Commissioners, &c.;—his resentment against the Gapes and Mentors, who do not specify times, and places, and offences, &c.; and for indulging in vague suspicions and conjectures, will on these premises appear very natural and proper; but I will assure him that John Gape has not indulged in even a single conjecture.—I have recorded facts, and even the very individuals who are implicated in the measures which I have denounced, admit that my Extracts bear a strong resemblance to truth; will "a Friend" mention one thing that is not precisely as I have recorded it; to charge me generally with making partial and coloured representations of actions, is ridiculous and absurd—as well might I say that a "Friend" is a Pensioner of the Department, or that he is a secret emissary of the "Exclusive Faction," or that he is a member of the "Domestic Alliance," or that he is a creature of the "Image,"—nay, Sir, I might with equal propriety affirm that a "Friend" is no other than the shadow of the Commissioner; or as we may render it, the "Officer Expectant;"—but would these affirmations amount to proof that I was correct? Have not officers been distinctly specified? have not acts of arbitrary authority, of rapacity, and imprudence been recorded? But a salary, I perceive, has a strange influence upon one's judgment, and causes a man to view things through a distorted medium. A "Friend" is doubtless conversant in the science of optics, and knows the peculiar property of a cylindrical mirror, which collects a confused mass of figures, each more horrible than the other, and reflects them back to the eye of the spectator in the perfection of symmetrical arrangement: so it is with fat salaries.—Actions, which to common observers appear the essence of Despotism, assume quite a different aspect to the recipient of £1000 per annum.

'M. H.' is another sort of character. I am quite at a loss to decide whether he means that he or I am the rogue: but as he has put the rogue first, and as I am the subject of his communication, I will take the title to myself, leaving the other to him.—The bond of union between a rogue and a fool is both very ancient and intimate, and we must therefore be better acquainted ere we part. He shows his folly by declaring that I am unknown, and could not be tampered with; and at the same instant insinuating that I am suffering the terrors of detected defamation—two things which are utterly incompatible with each other;—he gravely accuses me of tergiversation, because I have expressed my readiness to give praise where praise is due:—to recant my political errors, when they are pointed out to me; and to make reparation to those whose feelings I may have wantonly wounded;—he denounces me as a recreant, because I regret the necessity of chastisement: he tells me that I am a cozener of the public, because in the recapitulation of my Memoranda, I selected those parts which I conceived to be fitting subjects to form the basis of a Parliamentary enquiry, omitting the numerous minute actions, which, though they increased the aggregate amount of malversation in a certain office, yet offered no palpable grounds of accusation, as they might possibly have been the result of accident. These may be proofs of roguery in me, but they surely are no indication of folly; whether as much may be said of his communication I will not undertake to decide; but I will tell him, Sir, that the public are too thoroughly acquainted with the manner in which the rod of oppression has been waved above our heads for the last four or five years, at once to adopt new opinions upon the suggestion of an official minion, who exultingly grasps at an apparent error, and proclaims to the world that John Gape is a liar, only because he is solicitous to ascertain whether he has recorded truths. Does M. H. know the secret of John Gape's popularity?—it is very simple and may be readily explained: every thing which John Gape has alleged comes within the positive knowledge of many individuals. One man has paid 2s. 6d. for a search, another has been charged 5s. for refusing his petition, a third has paid 3s. 4d. per ton for timber upon private land, which when stripped of its timber was relinquished to the Crown, and a richer and better wooded portion of land sought elsewhere—a fourth paid his tonnage, and the timber being stolen from him is seized for the Crown, and his money cannot be returned—a fifth pays for land and it is minuted to him, but subsequently sold to another, and perhaps a higher bidder;—and so on through the whole of John Gape's Diary; thus every man finds some record which he knows to be true, and he necessarily infers from them that the others may also be true. Until M. H. shall have shown that John Gape's Extracts are fabulous, his sarcasms will be vain, and his arguments foolish; the people will not be satisfied with sarcastic squibs, or sneering allegations. I could easily convince M. H. as well as a 'Friend' that they have mistaken their man, and that John Gape is perfectly capable to defend himself against their attacks; but he relies upon the consciousness of his own truth, and smiles at the feeble efforts of a despairing club to produce a reaction in the public mind. It is now too late—the Representatives of the people have assembled, and they come charged with the dread responsibility of procuring a redress of grievances.—Is that disloyalty?—does our gracious monarch desire to rule a Colony of Slaves?—the man who insinuates that pure and unconquerable loyalty is not the characteristic of New-Brunswick's sons, is a liar, and a traitor to his King and Country. It is not such loyalty and honour as that devotional attachment to Officers, which seems to be the ruling passion of "M. H." and "a Friend," that distinguishes the People of New-Brunswick. We desire to enjoy that degree of freedom of political liberty which the Constitution has secured to British subjects; we desire to be relieved from the pressure of petty tyranny—from the domination of a Par Nobile Fratrum, who would gladly drive us from Scylla into Charybdis.—We claim only that which should not be denied us;—we exclaim against the enormous salaries which compose the Civil List; we denounce sinecures; we ask the management of our own money;—we acknowledge the right of His Majesty to appoint his Officers; we desire to be permitted only to decide what amount of salary is an equivalent for their services;—New-Brunswick is too poor to pay officers for merely signing their names to Documents, or pronouncing their monosyllabic fiat upon Petitions.—She cannot longer support the expensive and extravagant retinue of ministerial favorites and political speculatists, for whose special advantage unnecessary offices are created and magnificently endowed, out of the Provincial Revenues.

I am, once more,
dear Mr. Editor, your friend,
JOHN GAPE.

The Courier.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1833.

The English Mail for December, arrived this morning, bringing London dates to the 8th of that month. By the Brig Emerald, at this port, on Sunday last, Liverpool dates to the 24th were received. There is very little of moment in the papers; and we therefore only give a summary of the intelligence.

Vice-Admiral Sir George Cockburn had been appointed Commander-in-Chief on the West India and North American Stations—and had sailed in His Majesty's ship Vernon for Jamaica.

The Liverpool election terminated by the return of Lord Sandon and Mr. Ewart, the former members. At the close of the poll, the votes were, for Mr. Ewart, 4931; Lord Sandon, 4260; Mr. Thornley, 4096; Sir Howard Douglas, 3249.

Sir Francis Burdett and Sir John Cam. Hobhouse have been again returned for Westminster. —Mr. Poulett Thomson and Mr. Philips for Manchester; Mr. Macauly and Mr. Marshal for Leeds; the Prestonians have turned out Mr. Hunt; Sir Chas. Wetherell has lost Oxford, and Sir E. Sugden, Cambridge—in the representation of which the latter has been succeeded by Mr. Spring Rice.

Middlesex Election.—This great contest, on which the eyes of all England were fixed, terminated on Friday, in the re-election of Mr. Hume and Mr. Byng.

The new borough of Oldham, in Lancashire, which has elected Mr. Wm. Cobbett as one of its representatives, contains a population of 32,000, and, according to the reports of the Commissioners, 1100 qualifying tenements.

The ministers count on carrying no fewer than eight or nine of the sixteen representative peers of Scotland in the new Parliament.

It is rumoured that his Majesty, with the kind consideration of saving to the country, for the present, the late Speaker's retiring pension of £4000 per annum, has made it his personal request to Mr. Manners Sutton, that he would resume his high office in the new Parliament, and that such, is consequently to be the case.

There is a rumour, that the right hon. C. W. Williams Wynne will be put in nomination for the Speaker's Chair immediately on the assembling of Parliament.

Irish Elections.—The "repealers" are carrying all before them in Ireland. Mr. O'Connell and Mr. Ruthven have been returned for Dublin, Mr. Maurice O'Connell is in for Tralee, Mr. John O'Connell for Youghall, and Mr. Morgan O'Connell, and Mr. H. Grattan, for Meath. The conservatives are beaten even in their strong holds! and the repealers, it is calculated, will exceed the members returned as Government supporters. There has been no contest at Tipperary or Meath. At Mallow a repealer was returned; at Cork, two repealers; and at Waterford two more are likely to get in. At Belfast there are four candidates, all liberals, and they kept nearly even on the poll. Dublin College, to which the reform Bill gave an additional member, returned two conservatives in preference to two Government candidates. Mr. Thos. Gladstone, of Liverpool, has got into Portarlington, a rotten borough, in the corporation interest.

Ireland.—The Cork Reporter of the 1st of December, announces the receipt of letters on that day from various correspondents at and in the neighborhood of Bandon, which represent that district to an extent of over twenty miles, to have exhibited during the past six or eight days all the appearance of a country roused into insurrection. Scarcely a day has passed over without large military and police parties being seen, acting simultaneously in different parishes, in aid of the collection or recovery of tithes. The hills, for many miles round, covered with thousands of the peasantry, who are alone deterred by the presence of the army from resisting the agents of the incumbents.

London, Dec. 22.—It has been circulated this morning in the City, and generally believed, that Government are in possession of official accounts from Portugal, much more favourable to the cause of the young Queen.

It is also affirmed, with great confidence, and on the same authority, that disaffection has latterly been discovered to exist, to a very considerable extent, among the troops of the despot; from which it is inferred, that some movement in favour of Donna Maria is far from improbable.

Sir Stratford Canning left town on Tuesday night for Paris, on his way to Madrid, to complete, as it is understood, the treaty between England, Spain, and France, relating to Portugal.

Sir S. Canning has had a long interview with the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, the object of which, it is said, is to enter into a treaty with France and Spain for the immediate recognition of Queen Donna Maria. The news created a great joy among the Constitutionalists in Paris.

Antwerp is sitll beleagured by the French army. Both the attack and the defence are conducted with skill and courage. The besiegers are gradually approaching the fortress: at the date of the last advices, their approaches were within a short distance of the walls, and some decisive movement was on the point of being made against the citadel. The fire of the French batteries had caused great damage to the fortress, attended with a considerable loss of life. Nor had the besieged been inactive. The fire of the citadel had carried havoc and death among the French, whose loss, in killed and wounded, has, as was to be expected, been also inconsiderable. It is now quite evident, that the Dutch do not contemplate a diversion in favour of the garrison: it is also evident, that Prussia intends to remain neutral during the contest. The citadel must, therefore, speedily fall before the French arms, and the question which gave rise to this armed interference be put in a train of settlement.

The strong lanette, St. Laurent, was taken by the French, almost without loss, on the morning of Friday week; their works are now pushed almost to the glacis of the Citadel; and it is expected that, in the course of a few days, an assault will be made on it.

On Thursday and Friday last, the following convictions under the Province Laws, took place before Aldermen Ansley and Hanford.

William Foley, innkeeper, on a charge of harbouring John George, an articled seaman, belonging to the brig Fenwick Keating—when, after a protracted examination, he was fined in the penalty of £10.

Jonathan Furnas, shopkeeper, on a charge of having purchased Army necessaries from a Private in the 34th Regiment—and fined £5. Furnas was also convicted of having sold spirituous liquors by the glass, he not being licensed so to do—and fined the sum of £5.

Robert Irwin, innkeeper, was charged with an assault on Horatio James, Master of the brig Prince Leboo—which being clearly proved, he was fined to the extent of the Law, being £5.

New Bank.—We have been informed that John Kinnear, Esquire of this City has been authorised by the Committee of management of the proposed New Bank in this place, to obtain Subscriptions in the United States, to the Capital Stock, to the amount of £25,000 in the event of a Charter being obtained. Mr. Kinnear accordingly proceeded to Boston whence he has written, stating that on making known his mission to Capitalists in that City, he was immediately informed that the required amount would be immediately subscribed in that City, and that no further effort would be necessary either in New York or Philadelphia.—Observer.

King's College at Fredericton.

The Right Reverend the Visitor has been pleased to nominate Messrs. Robert Parker Du Vernet, James Fraser Berton, and William Scovil, to Scholarships on the foundation of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel.

Eastern Lands.—The following is an extract from a report of the Massachusetts Land Agent, to his Excellency Governor Lincoln, on the 13th ult, and communicated by him to the Legislature:

"There has not been any trespass committed upon the Public Lands this year, except a little timber cut on the Aroostook river last winter, which I had seized; but shortly afterwards the British sent up and seized the same timber. The quantity cut on Massachusetts land was small, on Maine Lands it was considerable.

"Sir Archibald Campbell sent a messenger last winter, with a letter directed to the Magistrates of Houlton, proposing to prosecute all British subjects, who should presume to cut timber on the Aroostook; and wished to have the American Government co-operate with him, by prosecuting all the settlers who should attempt to trespass on the same;—but the magistrates replied, that they had no authority in the case, and referred the Messenger to the Executive of Maine. I believe no measures were taken to effect the proposed object. The timber was smuggled down the river, with timber cut under British permits on the Crown land, and of course the British get the avails, if paid for at all."
