

POETRY. [FOR THE COURIER.] ADDRESSED TO CEYLON.

As through the pathless void, of viewless air, The feather'd wanderer to their homes repair, So would my soul, thro' India's distant groves, By memory guided, seek the scenes it loves.

THE MOUNTAIN AIR.—By Mrs. MOORE. (From the New-York Advertiser.)

It wafts on its current the rich perfume, Of the people's heart and the bird's hum, The golden fawn and the hawk's roar, Shed all their sweets to the mountain air.

It plays round the bank and the mossy stone, Where the violet droops like a nun alone, Stranding her breast from the moon-disk glare, Yet filling with balmy the mountain air.

It gives to my spirits a new dithyramb, I find with joy o'er the new-dre'd earth, When spring has scatter'd her jewels there, And laden with sweets the mountain air.

From Nature's fountain my nectar flows, 'Tis the essence of each young bud that blows, Then come, and with me the banquet share— Let us drink together the mountain air.

REPENTANCE.—By HERIAD KNOWLES. Repentance is a grace; but it is one That grows upon a man's own soil, Of an ungodly mother—'Nor, indeed, Always a grace! 'tis oftentimes—too oft— The bootless terror of the stranded soul, When ebbs passion leaves all at one Upon the bleak and dreary shoals of sin!

GLASGOW COLONIAL SOCIETY. This Society held its annual meeting on Wednesday night, in the Trades' Hall, the Very Rev. Principal McCallum presiding, and the Rev. Mr. Anderson, of St. Enoch's Church.

The Chairman, in opening the proceedings, apologized for his inability to make any extended remarks on the state of the Society's operations, which did not arise from want of information, but from the fact that he had been so busy in his other duties, that he had not had time to do so.

Day do Vin, Black River, &c. applications had been made to the Directors for Ministers having the Gaelic language, and offers to a considerable amount had been made by the people of the Highlands, the most part of whom have been settled there for 60 years.

FRINDSHIP.—There is no pleasure in this wide world more worthy to be sought, and none which deserves the name of happiness, more than that which is found in the society of those who have proved themselves friends.

But, alas! how few are to be found in whom we can safely confide; who will rejoice with us in prosperity, and extend the arm of consolation to assuage the grief of our hearts in the day of adversity.

Friendship, though many assume the name, and extend the hand of professed friendship with so much apparent sincerity, as to win our credulous hearts early to feel that we are made too late to feel that the objects of our regard need our friendship only to promote their own interest, and when the distressing events of life fall upon us, in which we need their supporting hand, we find ourselves left to feel the bitter pang of regret alone.

But when we have been so successful as to confide in those by whom our regard is appreciated, we may call ourselves happy. In the possession of such friends we look forward with hope, and reflect with satisfaction on past enjoyment, feeling that even in this world there is no cup of sorrow unmingled with pleasure.

TEMPERANCE.—The report of the National Temperance Convention states that within the last six years there have been formed 6000 temperance societies, embracing one million members; that 2000 distilleries have ceased, and 5000 merchants discontinued vending in ardent spirit; that there are 700 of our vessels which do not carry it.

IMPORTANCE OF RELIGION TO YOUNG MEN.—A young man entering into life without the support and guidance of religion, is like a vessel with its sails spread open to every breeze, committing itself to the ocean without chart, rudder, or pilot; tossed to and fro in the darkness of midnight; conflicting with violent storms, and ready every moment to be dashed on the rocks, or swallowed up in the abyss.

Original Character of Tithes.—Because through the providence of Divine mercy we know it to be so ordered, and by the church's publishing it far and near every body hath heard, that by the distribution of alms persons may be absolved from the bonds of sin, and acquire the reward of heavenly joys, I Stephen, by the grace of God, King of England, being willing to have part with them, who by a happy kind of trading, exchange heavenly things for earthly; and smitten with the love of God, and for the salvation of my soul, and the souls of my father and mother, and of all my forefathers and ancestors, do give unto God, and to the Church of St. Peter, tithes and other donations.

The Levelling System.—We have heard the rights of man called a levelling system; but the only system to which the word levelling is truly applicable, is a hereditary monarchical system. It is a system of mental levelling. It indiscriminately admits every species of character to the same authority. Vice and virtue, ignorance and wisdom, in short, every quality, good or bad, is put on the same level.

Love's Labour Lost.—A serenading party the other night, after having played before a house for nearly an hour, were politely informed by the considerate watchmen that—"NOBODY LIVED THERE."

CELIBACY is a miserable lot. It is a branchless tree growing up but to decay, without a limb to shelter its trunk from the storms of existence.

Women must have their wills while they live, because they make none when they die.

THE LAST ANECDOTE.—"Who's that 'ere Mr. Scattering that always gets a few votes at our town meetings?" inquired an old lady a few days since of her spouse, as she was busily engaged in perusing a newspaper. "I don't know," said he, "nor I never did, though the people have begun to try to elect him ever since I first began to vote.—Dedham Gaz.

CONVULSION.—(For the Printers.)—What is harder than earning money? Answer, Collecting it. And keeping it harder than both.

SAYINGS, BY DR. FRANKLIN.—The eye of a master will do more work than both his hands. Not to oversee workmen is to leave your purse open.

What maintains one vice would train up two children. Beware of little expenses—a small leak will sink a great ship.

If you would know the want of money, go and try to borrow some—for he that goes to borrow money, goes to get a borrowing god's sorrowing. Pride is as loud a beggar as want at a great deal more saucy.

Pride breakfasted with plenty, dined with poverty, and supped with infamy. Lying rides on Deity's back. Creditors have better memories than debtors.

APOTHECARIES' Hall. MESSRS. LIVINGSTONE & MILLS have just opened the above Establishment in Mr. MILLIDGE'S Brick Building, lately occupied by Mr. Angus McKenzie, Market Square—beg leave to inform their friends and the public, in general, that they have received per late arrivals from Great Britain and the United States, a large and well-assorted Stock of DRUGS, MEDICINES, PATENT MEDICINES, Perfumery, Confectionery, Paints, Oils, Dye Stuffs, &c.—all of which they warrant of the first quality.

In introducing their establishment to the notice of the public, they feel confident, from the particular care with which their present extensive and general stock has been selected, of giving perfect satisfaction in supplying private families—furnishing Shops' Medicine Chests—as well as executing Wholesale orders for country practitioners and Druggists. As for prices, they only solicit such a trial as will enable purchasers to make a comparison with the other Druggists of the place.

Mr. LIVINGSTONE will still continue to practice his profession as formerly, and may be consulted at the Hall, from 10 o'clock, meridian, and for disease of the Eye and Ear, from 3 to 5 P. M. St. John, 15th June, 1833.
