NEW-BRUNSWICK MELODIES.
By William M. Leggett.
ELIZA'S FAREWELL.
Here's to the hills we love so well
When Summer wreath'd her garlands there,
And here's to the calm and holy spell
Of the bubbling streams near by
When the evening sun softly steals
On the listening ear with a fairy tone,
Whispering "old times" to the heart that feels
Remember the Absent One!

Here's a farewell—a fond farewell—
To the kindred souls I leave behind,
And that, which lips refuse to tell,
May mind impart to mind!
And when they list to this distant song,
As it harks of days long gone,
Will they not pause their journeying,
To remember the Absent One?

MISCELLANY.
Every body is aware of the indolent character of the author of "The Seasons," of his being found once in a garden, eating fruit off a tree with his hands in his pockets, &c. A friend one day entered his room, and finding him in bed, although the day was far spent, asked him in the name of wonder why he did not get up; "Man, I have no motive," replied the poet.

An English lady and gentleman who, in travelling through Scotland, had come to the neighbourhood of Abbotsford, without providing themselves with an introduction to Sir Walter Scott, and who felt, when there, an irresistible inclination to intrude upon him, could think of no expedient by which to gratify their curiosity but that of throwing themselves upon his mercy, and begging the favour of an interview. In their card to him, they said that, in coming to Scotland, their chief object had been to see the great Lion of the North, Sir Walter Scott; and they begged him to consider how hard it would be if, after all their travels, they should have to go home disappointed. Sir Walter immediately returned an answer, couched in the most polite terms, and concluding with a request that they would come that day to dine with him, as he had some reason to believe the Lion of the North, like his friends at Exeter Change, was best worth seeing at feeding time.

A country gentleman, who had been out with Montrose, retiring to his own parish after the war was done, was taken through hands by a Presbyterian clergyman of the place, and ordained to sit for a certain time on the cutty-stool, as a penance for his dreadful offence. "Ye should set my mare there too, man," cried the intractable cavalier to the clergyman who delivered the sentence; "I'll be hanged if she was as deep in the mud as I was!"

WORTHY OF IMITATION.—By an institution of an ancient legislature, whoever proposed a new law, was obliged to come in to the senate house with a rope about his neck, and remain in that situation during the debate. If the law was approved of, he was set at liberty, but if it was negative he was immediately strangled.

DESPERATE ECONOMY.—In a town not far from Glasgow, one of the Bailies, while engaged with some of the Members of the Board of Health in superintending the fitting-up of a temporary Hospital exclaimed—"O, it'll be desperate if that Cholera dianna come here after we've been at such muckle trouble and expense for it."

ADVANTAGES OF LONDON.—In Chambers' Cyclopaedia, the term Arch is thus explained:—"Arch, Prince, or chief." Thus we say Archdeacon, Archpriest, Archbishop.

DITTO.—"What's the meaning of ditto, father," enquired a love-sick greenhorn, as he was being cabaged, one blue Monday. "Ditto-ditto," muttered the old man, "why, booby, here's one cabaged head and there's another.—That's ditto." "That ditto!—by hokey, dad, then I am done with Sal; for as I squeezed her hand for the last time, about day-break, this morning, and hinted, in pretty plain English, that I did not like her, she sighed out I-t-t-to!" Greenhorn's "tender passion" was now turned to sour.

MANKIND CLASSED.—Mankind may be divided into three classes. Those who learn from the experience of others—they are happy men. Those who learn from their own experience—they are wise men. And, lastly, those who learn neither from their own nor from other people's experience—they are fools.

There is a labour of the mind as well as of the body, and some employ themselves very usefully to society who do but little with their hands. But the labour of the mind, and those who do not labour from necessity, should labour for health.

He who thinks no man above him but for his virtue, none below him but for his vice, can never be obsequious or assuming in a wrong place; will frequently emulate men in rank below him, and pity those above him.

We only begin to know how to live, when we know how to measure ourselves with objects; that is to say to proportion, our attachment and our application to their importance. It is thus that we avoid too great an indifference for great things, and too great an ardour for small ones.

Pleasure is no rule of good; since when we follow pleasure merely, we are disgusted and change from one port to another, condemning that at one time which at another we earnestly approve; and never judging equally of happiness whilst we follow passion and mere humour.

one cask was found to be 73 gallons short, another 18 gallons, a third 9 gallons, and the other the usual quantity. On the part of the plaintiff, a witness was brought, who was one of three coopers who inspected the casks some time since; who testified that the head of that which had the largest deficiency was too small, and that to prevent its leaking, it had been stuffed with oakum. The evidence of this witness took all parties by surprise, and the Chief Justice said it destroyed the action so far as that cask was concerned. It would not have been available he observed, to produce such evidence on the defence in ordinary cases; but coming from the mouth of the plaintiff's own witness, it was conclusive against him. The Jury retired, and found a verdict for THREE POUNDS, for the cask that was deficient 18 gallons, after making the usual allowance for leakage; thus establishing the principle that masters of vessels will be held responsible under their bills of lading, for the contents of packages, which they shall have taken on board.

The next cause to which we shall allude was one brought by the Halifax Banking Company, against Messrs. Shaw & Smith, to recover the amount of six promissory notes, said to have been endorsed by them, and drawn by the Hamiltons, who absconded a short time since. One of the clerks of the Bank, testified as to his belief of the signatures being genuine, from their resemblance to others which the defendants had acknowledged. The messenger of the Bank proved his having given them notice of the dishonour of a Note for £25 on the 13th May—that he had a conversation with one of them on the 15th, and that it was not till the morning of the 16th, after the Hamiltons had gone off, that he declared the signature was a forgery.

A motion for a non-suit was then made, and the Court was unanimously of opinion, that as there was no evidence of a presentation or demand of payment made on the maker of the note on the day when it became due, the plaintiffs could not come upon the defendants as endorsers. We understood the Chief Justice that he would not say the holder of the note should carry the paper in his hand when he demanded payment, but he must prove that he had used due diligence to obtain payment from him, on the day when it became due, who would have the entire day for that purpose and could not be restricted to the hour at which the Bank usually closes. As such demand had not been made in the present instance, the Court decided that the action could not be sustained.

The counsel for the plaintiffs, however were desirous of having the opinion of a special Jury composed partly of merchants, on a question which depended chiefly on the mode of dealing between the parties, and the usage of the place. But the Jury without quitting the box, found a verdict for the defendants.

The third was an action brought against the same parties, by J. M. Chamberlain, who held three notes, purporting to be endorsed by Shaw & Smith, and for £23 10s. With respect to one for £23 10s. it was proved that on the day when it became due, the drawer of the note was applied to; notice was immediately afterwards served on the defendants, one of whom called at the office of the plaintiff, and saw two of the notes, one of which was then over-due; but who went away, without denying the endorsement. About a week subsequently the Hamiltons disappeared, and defendants then said their names were forgeries.

On the defence, Mr. J. Whitman and Mr. M. Forrester were called, to prove that their names were forged on the note in question, and that they had lost no time in informing him of the fact when applied to for payment; and other testimony was called to prove that the words Shaw & Smith did not appear to be in the hand writing of the defendants.

Mr. Justice Uniacke charged the Jury, and left it for them to say if due diligence had been used, and necessary forms complied with—whether they considered the names on the backs to be forgeries, and if so, whether Shaw & Smith by their silence did not adopt the signatures as their own. The Jury retired—and about 11 o'clock, on Saturday evening, returned a verdict for the plaintiffs for £23 10s. being the amount of the note of which the defendants had received notice.

Quebec, Oct. 25.—Intelligence was received yesterday of the loss of two vessels inward bound. One of them, the ship Thomas, Duncan, a regular trader to this port, sailed from Dublin the 10th September, with a few goods and 64 passengers, consigned to Penberton Brothers. She struck on White Island reef last Thursday, and is a total wreck—no lives lost. The passengers are coming up in schooners. The other vessel, bark Kennedy, Eastle, 4th Sept. from Liverpool, in ballast, struck on Mille Vaches, opposite Bic, at 11 p.m. on the 17th inst. and we fear is a total wreck. She lies high and dry at low water, in the midst of rocks. Both vessels were in charge of pilots when they struck.—Nelson's Gazette.

Liverpool, Sept. 14.—Thus far, this year is a very great fall in the importation of Fine Timber. During the past few days several cargoes have arrived, which are presented adversely. Sales are making of Quebec cargoes, at 13d and 13 1/2d; Nova Scotia of good quality at 20d; Nova Scotia at 16d. Hardwood, of which there is this week a large arrival, at 19d, to 20d. For Quebec Oak there is but a moderate demand at our quotations. The supply of Staves is short this year from Quebec and the Baltic, and the advanced prices annexed are now obtainable: Quebec Standard, £53 to £65; Puncheons, £18 to £20.

NOTICE.
The subscriber intending to close his business forthwith, informs those persons indebted to him, either by Bond, Note, Book debt, or otherwise, to make payment, on or before the first day of February next; and those having demands against him, to tender the same immediately. JOHN BRUNDAGE.

TO LET.
A STORE to let, near the end of Peter's wharf—apply to 6th October. B. TILTON.

Valuable MILL Property,
FOR SALE.
THE LE PREAU MILLS which make one million feet of DEALS annually, with capabilities for producing much more, and enjoying besides the particular advantages of a safe and capacious harbour, situated at the head of Masses' Bay (into which the Le Preau River discharges) only 25 to 30 miles westward of the port of Saint John.
The Premises altogether comprise one double and one single mill, working 5 saws, two rolling HOUSES, and two BARNs, with various other smaller Out Buildings, and about five hundred acres of LAND, a great part of which is of excellent quality, 25 to 30 acres cleared, and the remainder well wooded, and embracing also two beautiful ISLANDS at the mouth of the Harbour.
The Water Power on this Property is almost unlimited. There are two FALLS, one 25 to 30 feet in height, falling into the head of the tide, on the large River before-mentioned, with many additional sites for Mills on the same river, besides one or two smaller cascades, falling into the same Bay, with good Harbours.
On the large River there is an inexhaustible stock of TIMBER, both Spruce and Pine, and this River has floated spruce, or been down (as it is termed) for 12 or 15 miles.
A good title can be given to the property, and a good title can be given to the property, and a good title can be given to the property.

Public Lecture Room,
Corner of King and Cross-streets.
THE SUBSCRIBER, having at great expense, refitted and embellished his LECTURE ROOM, as above, respectfully offers it to the Public, for the purpose of Lecturing, Musical Meetings, Meetings of Commercial Bodies, or of respectable and orderly Societies, convened Public or Private Assemblies, or any other reputable purpose, for which such accommodation may be required.
The Room will be remembered by many as the ancient Lecture Room, and has, for Musical effect, decidedly the best in the City. It is now modernized, and calculated, from its rural and novel embellishment, to add greatly to the effect of any Meeting or Exhibition for amusement or instruction.
From its dimensions, being 40 x 27 feet, it is capable of comfortably accommodating a large assembly:—The access to it is easy, commodious and distinct;—and its central, yet quiet, situation inferior to none.—When required, the use of one, two, or three comfortable Rooms added, joining it, may be appended.
Persons residing in Nova-Scotia or any part throughout this Province, who may wish to send for their friends—by addressing a letter to me, post-paid, accompanied by the Cash, or satisfactory security, according to the distance they wish to have brought out, their age, and place of residence, will be attended to immediately.
In all cases when the Passengers do not come out, the money will be returned.

THE
LAY OF THE WIDENESS,
A POEM,
IN FIVE CANTOS, WITH NOTES—BY A NATIVE OF NEW-BRUNSWICK.
This work will be highly interesting to the descendants of the Loyalists, and to those of the earlier inhabitants of the Province of New-Brunswick. It contains a brief Sketch of the manner in which the Province was first settled, and of the hardships and privations endured by the Loyalists, and by the Troops disbanded here in 1783.—A pleasing tale of Love, chastely portrayed, unites the whole, so as to render the work interesting to every age and sex.
