POETRY.

PRAY FOR ME.—A BALLAD.

By Millevoye, on his death-bed at the village of Neuilly.

Silent, remote, this hamlet seems;
How hushed the breeze! the eve how calm!
Light through my dying chamber beams,
But hope comes not, nor healing balm.

Kind villagers! God bless your shed!
Hark! 'tis for prayer—the evening bell;
Oh, stay! and near my dying bed,
Maiden, for me your rosary tell!

When leaves shall strew the waterfall,
In the sad close of Autumn drear,
Say, "The sick youth is freed of all
The pangs of wo he suffered here."

So may ye speak of him that's gone;
But when your belfrey tolls my knell;
Pray for the soul of that lost one—
Maiden, for me your rosary tell.

Oh! pity her in sable robe,
Who to my grassy grave will come;
Nor seek a hidden wound to probe—
She was my love!—point out my tomb;

Tell her my life should have been hers—
'Twas but a day!—God's will!—'tis well:
But weep with her, kind villagers!
Maiden, for me your rosary tell.

MISCELLANY.

LETTER FROM NOVA-SCOTIA.

Written by a correspondent of the Portland (Maine) Advertiser.

Annapolis is 56 miles from Saint John. It is a famous city in the annals of Nova Scotia. Here was the old seat of Government for many years. Here the old French and English governments fought their battles. Here the French threw up almost the first fortification that was thrown up in America. Here New England valor more than once displayed itself in contact with the arms of France. The party that once possessed Annapolis, the city of Annapolis as it was, Annapolis Royal, possessed the whole of Nova Scotia. Here, to this day, are some of the remains of the old French fortifications, a British garrison at this moment occupies, and from them for the week past have I heard the Kent Bugle summon English soldiers to arms, to parade, and to sleep. But Annapolis has lost its ancient glory—its star has gone down. It is now but an inconsiderable place, garrisoned, I know not why, by the British, unless it be that they have no where else to put their troops. Some trade is there carried on, but it cannot be much:—and the party that now should seize it, would be far from possessing the whole of Nova Scotia.

Halifax is 132 miles from Annapolis, and the journey is performed in two days, in a stage coach: part of them are like the coaches of New England, and the other part is an indescribable sort of a go-cart, which somewhat resembles a Camel taking his bump back into his mouth, and then trotting off four or five miles in an hour. We left Annapolis in the morning, and stopped for the night at Kentville, a pretty little village 60 miles from Annapolis, where there is a Court House and Jail, and two or three cottages. There we stopped on Sunday,—and there too, we had a wide view of a magnificent extent of country, which is perhaps the most fertile and best cultivated part of Nova Scotia. Indeed we have altogether a New England, at least, I have underrated the value and importance of this Province.—There are no farms in New England better, and but few so good as those in the township of Cornwallis, in King's County. This township, as well as part of Horton, are made up of what is called interval land, land rescued from the tides, by dykes and ditches, as fertile almost as the alluvial bottom of the Mississippi, excellent land for grass and grazing, and never needing manure. No landscape can well be more beautiful than these intervals present, when varied with little hills and dotted all over with painted Farm Houses. For miles and miles there is such a prospect from a hill near Kentville, where you can see the Basin of Minas, the valleys on the river Habitant, Cornwallis, and Gaspereux, all charming vallies, as beautiful as any I ever saw in any part of the United States, and all in a high state of cultivation, now lively as it were with numerous flocks, who have been let into the fields, and who but add to the charms of the scenery. Little did I, with my ideas of Nova Scotia, cold, foggy Nova Scotia, as I ever considered it to be, expect to see such a spectacle as this almost in the heart of its interior. But Nova Scotia is not near so foggy as on the other side of the Bay of Fundy, and the people contend that there is no more fog there than elsewhere. Nor is it so very cold, tempered as the climate is by the high tides that run up the rivers, and the contiguity of the sea.

The valley, or intervals which I have been describing were chiefly settled by New-Englanders, many of whom emigrated here before the war of the revolution, tempted to settle upon the rich lands from which the Acadians, the original settlers, had been driven, and some of whom came after the war broke out, the tories, or Loyalists, or Refugees as they are called.—Hence every thing has the appearance of New England, and I should not know from appearances but that I was in the heart of a New England State, so like do the Farm Houses appear, so like are the people, and their manners and habits. They want only our Politics, and the excitement attendant upon them to make the resemblance complete. The story of the Acadians, whose happy situation the Abbe Reynal so enthusiastically describes, banished from their homes, driven into exile, robbed of their lands, plundered and driven from Georgia to Mexico, your readers will probably remember. They were the French, or descendants of the early French, and their crime was that they were suspected by the English, because they were French, and because their religion was Catholic, and not that of the English, and hence they were persecuted and proscribed as they were. The remains of their settlements are yet often to be seen. The willow tree, their favourite tree, often marks their residence, and numerous orchards have been pointed out to me, as planted by the hands of the Acadians.

From Kentville, we went to Halifax on Monday, distant 72 miles. Magnificent farms we went by as we journied from Kentville to Windsor. Windsor is an important town in Nova Scotia. There the Plaster of Paris comes from. There too, is the College for the Province, and the Academy, the first situated on an eminence, in an agreeable position, having a most extensive view of finely cultivated fields all around. The village or town rather it is from its size, is well built, and the streets are neat. Some business, much perhaps I may say is done there, but as it is not a free port as Halifax, Pictou, Liverpool and Yarmouth are, that is a port into which articles can be imported from foreign countries, it lies under many disadvantages. After leaving Windsor for a mile, we enter upon a more barren country, till it begins to look quite unpromising and dismal, full of bogs and heath land, and fields and hills covered with rocks.—The road, however, over all these is excellent. The Province has spent much money on this its principal road, and there is none better in the United States, the MacAdamized roads except. Twelve miles from Windsor we changed our go-cart for a handsome coach, on which were many showy labels, such as "the Royal Western Mail Coach," a crown, and W. R. with the armorials of the King. The driver too seemed to enter into the spirit of his craft. He sounded his horn with an air,—and scattered his letters and newspapers along with all the pomp and circumstance of the profession. About 10 miles from Halifax, the road strikes the margin of Bedford Basin which makes a part of the harbour of Halifax, and will hold it is said a thousand vessels,—and this we followed in quite a romantic road, and by many cottages or country houses of the gentry of the city,—till we reached the Acadian Hotel in the dusk of the evening, the only Hotel in Halifax and not a remarkable one either.

Post Office Packets.—Official return of all the packet vessels that have been lost since the transfer of the Packet Establishment to the Admiralty, with the number of persons on board at the time of their leaving the last port, and the circumstance attending such loss, as far as the same may be known. Cynthia, a purchased packet, thirty-two persons on board, wrecked on the island of Barbadoes, 6th June, 1827, by accident, in moderate weather. All on board saved. Hearty, packet brig, thirty-five persons on board, left Falmouth 12th September, 1827, for Jamaica. Was heard of in the N. E. trades, within a few days sail of Barbadoes, but did not reach that island. Supposed to be accidentally burned, the master being in the habit of reading in his bed. Redpole, ditto, number of persons on board not known, left Rio Janerio, homeward bound, 10th August, 1828, and was attacked and sunk off Cape Frio, by the Congress, a piratical vessel of 13 guns, belonging to Buenos Ayres, after an engagement of an hour and a quarter, as stated in a deposition made by one of the crew of the Congress. Ariel, ditto thirty-four persons on board, left Falmouth 10th November, 1828, for Halifax; was seen standing direct for Sable Island, in December, by a trading schooner at Halifax, which had tacked in seventeen fathoms of water, Mr. Dulen, the master of the said schooner, endeavoured to warn her off without success, and she is supposed to have run on shore within two hours after. Myrtle ditto persons on board, wrecked on the coast of Nova-Scotia, 3d April, 1829, by accident in moderate weather. All on board saved. Calypso, ditto, number of persons on board not known, left Halifax 29th of January, 1833; was seen surrounded by icebergs on the day after she sailed by a fishing vessel, which could not approach her on account of the ice. She was evidently in distress and firing guns for assistance. Thais, do. thirty-five persons on board, left Falmouth 12th December 1834, for Halifax, during the constant westerly gales which then prevailed; and by a letter to Captain King, dated on the 24th, was then in lat. 50 deg. long. 16 deg. 6 min. standing to the northward; wind to the westward and W. N. W. Her launch, part of the deck, and some other portions of wreck have been found on the north-west coast of Ireland.—London paper.

Copper in Vegetables.—Some experiments recently made by M. Farzeau in France, have demonstrated the presence of this metal in the vegetables used as food. These experiments have been made with so much accuracy as to demonstrate the actual weight of copper in each plant. The examination shows the proportion to be a few milligrammes of copper to each kilogramme of the plant. Wheat contains 4,666 milligrammes of copper for the kilogramme, flour only 0,666, but the copper is contained in the bran and not in the farinaceous portion, so that the bread made with the coarsest flour is that which contains the largest proportion of the metal. M. Farzeau, indefatigable in his researches, wished to ascertain the quantity of copper which in a given time a man would mix with his bread. According to his calculation a man would eat in the course of fifty years, 609 grammes—a very small quantity, in truth, and which could produce no injury. The quantity of bread daily produced in France being 18,000,000 of kilogrammes, there would be consequently 10 kilogrammes of copper eaten daily, or 3650 per year. On the other hand, since the amount of wheat necessary to feed France for a year is nearly 7,600,000,000 of kilogrammes, it results that this quantity of wheat takes from the soil 34,961 kilogrammes—800 grammes of copper—an enormous quantity—which equally proves the abundance of copper in the soil, and its minuteness of division.—Boston Medical Journal.

How to Punish an Alderman.—In Strype's Stow, vol. ii. p. 238, is the following extract from the City records:—"Nicholas Whyfford, an alderman, having neglected to line his cloak, which he ought to use in the procession,—therefore it is adjudged by the court that the Lord Mayor and aldermen shall all breakfast with him! This penalty is awarded on him as a punishment for his covetousness."

Alexander's Horn.—In a scarce work, entitled Secreta Secretorum, and falsely ascribed to Aristotle, there occurs the following description of a very extraordinary horn, belonging to Alexander the Great. "With this horn, constructed with wonderful art, Alexander called his army together at the distance of sixty miles! On account of its inestimable workmanship and notorious size, it was under the management of sixty men. Many kinds of sonorous metal were combined in the composition of it."

Supreme Authority.—Dr. Warton used to observe, that the three most absolute men in the world were the Great Mogul, a Captain of a man of war, and the "Prefect of the Hall" at Winchester College.

The Eight Qualities which must combine to form a perfect man!—Forbearance, self-knowledge, true allegiance, judgment in placing confidence, secrecy, power to obtain respect at court, self-command, and a reserve, both as to speech in general society and intermeddling with the affairs of others.

Said Dinah to Sambo, as they were taking a loving promenade, "Sambo, now do you tink de married life de mos happiest?" "Well, I'll tell you," said Sambo, "dat are 'pends allogedder how dey 'joy demseves.

R. F. assures his Friends, that the Re-acting Wheels have been proved practically in this Province, and that apart from the pretended improvements which individuals may have adopted to them, which are of little or no utility. The wheels in the simplicity of Mr. Turner's construction are a desideratum which have been long and much wanted by all persons connected with Water Mills, from their capabilities of going during Winter, when all others are stopped by frost.
