POETRY.

FOR THE COURIER.

The following Essay, produced (according to rule,) by a member of the Saint John Literary, and Gentlemen's Debating Society, is published by request of the Institution.

ESSAY ON EQUALITY.

While some extol the rich, and some the great,
Some mourn the fallen glories of the state,
Some dream of plunder, seek for civil war,
Cry "peace is best"—yet spread contention far;
Be mine the task—tho' hard that task may be—
To sing the blessings of EQUALITY.
Spirit of Life! celestial source!—from whom
All noble feelings, virtuous passions come,
Illume my soul with that eternal fire
Which David felt, when erst he tuned the lyre.
And O ye martial saints that dwell on high,
Beyond the clouds, beyond the starry sky,
Whose blood once shed at Freedom's shrine, hath given
Fame to your deeds—and to your spirits heav'n
If from those azure thrones of bliss ye can
Earth's passing scenes with nice precision scan.
See state with state wage war, and world with world,
Man conquer man, and Tyrants throneless hurl'd:
If in the general rush of things to nought,
Or schemes to life, thy influence hath aught
Of pow'r—oh may that influence be,
The torch—the orriflame of Liberty!

Blest is that nation—blest the people, who
Heaven's hated foe (a Despot) never knew,
Whose laws, so nicely framed, make one of all—
None powerful, to oppress, or to inthral;
Whose greatest pride is virtue, and their aim
The general good, without one wish for fame;
Perfect conception of that law which made
Mankind alike, when first mankind were made,
And to time's latest hour shall ceaseless run
From link to link—from aged sire to son.
Perversion of that law makes men to war,
Creates discord, and spreads distress afar,
Sours all the little sweets of social life,
And gives existence to domestic strife
Makes tyranny its hydra head uprear,
And banished FREEDOM to the wilds repair.

Whence rose those wars which have for countless years
Delug'd the earth with blood, the earth with tears?
From pride, from avarice, they mostly came,
The love of power, or selfish love of fame.
Even in these modern days, when men are wise,
And learning shines refulgent as the skies;
When "he that runs may read," and learn, and know,
Whence he hath come—and whither he must go;
Oh! tell it not that thousands can be found
Dust of the earth, and reptiles of the ground,
Who boast their origin from men that stood
To 'stablish tyranny in seas of blood,
And broke that social chain which Heaven designed,
Men of all creeds, in perfect love to bind.

Yet this must change—the hour is nigh at hand,
When bright shall glare the avenger's flaming brand,
When that proud pile, which hath for years withstood
Battle, and seige, and fire, and storm, and flood,
Shall own a victor, quail beneath his power,
And crushing, fall in retribution's hour.

The conqueror comes—prepare, prepare the way,
Bright gleam his banners in the blaze of day!—
Heard ye that tramp? 'twas SCIENCE blew the blast,
And hark—look—list—oh Heaven! 'tis gone at last—
Oppression's pile beneath that sound hath fell
A blacken'd corse—few, few, its tale will tell;—
Up!—up my friends, your choicest tributes bring,
He claims your fealty, SCIENCE is your King!

SUMMARY.

MR. O'CONNELL.—Irish Municipal Reform.—The following is an extract of a letter addressed by Mr. O'Connell to the Editor of the Pilot:—"A series of decisions, without example, by the Dublin Election Committee, has given my antagonists a majority of one! I therefore cannot frank to-day, but will be entitled to do so to-morrow. I hope and trust the citizens of Dublin will not allow the Committee-seated Members to retain those seats, as the evidence of bribery is so cogent. For my part, I have fought out the case of my late constituents as if my own fate and fortune depended on the result, and the only effect the conspiracy against me has upon my spirit is to make me one hundred times more determined to agitate—agitate—agitate—agitate for Ireland until full and complete justice is done her. Hurrah, then, for fresh agitation. The first consideration is the Irish Corporate Reform Bill. I am delighted to find that the high and indignant sense of justice is roused in Ireland on that subject. I have again read Lord Lyndhurst's Bill, and I, for one, am ready to fling it in his face. We should be, I think, disgraced if we were to accept of it; and we may trust that the people of England will assist us effectually to have 'justice done to Ireland.' My present impression is strongly fortified by the high and honest firmness of the Protestant Dissenters' meeting of Saturday last. I am now for flinging back in the teeth of our calumniators the insulting Bill which is to come to us from the Lords. One year more of patience, and we must obtain for Ireland what England already enjoys, and Scotland has won for herself. This is the true ground to take. Ireland upon an equality with Great Britain, or no 'Union.' In other words—a 'real Union,' or 'no Union.' Let this be now our cry, and every honest man in England and in Scotland will join in the shout. I think there ought to be petitions to the House of Commons not to pass any measure for Ireland less efficacious than the Scotch and English bills."

The proposed Preston and Glasgow Railway is to pass through Gretna Green. It will be easy to travel from London to the "forge matrimonial" and back again to London on the same day, and what is perhaps of still greater consequence, the railroad trains cannot overtake each other, so that pursuit will be in vain.

A London paper gives the following statement of Madame Malibran de Beriot's engagements and receipts:—She goes to Covent Garden at seven o'clock in the evening, and before nine she pockets £152! At a quarter before ten she repairs to the Hanover-square Rooms, sings one song, which occupies nine minutes, for which she receives twenty-five guineas!! At a quarter past ten she repairs to Rothschild's, or to some one of the nobility's houses, English or foreign, and sings another song, or perhaps two, for which she receives another twenty-five guineas!!! And several times lately she has attended morning benefit concerns, at the King's Theatre, for each of which she has pocketed an additional two hundred guineas!!!! Making £387 10s. in a day!!!!!

EMIGRATION OF PROTESTANTS.—The brig Jane sailed from Ballyshannon on the 18th May for Quebec, with about 103 passengers, all of whom were industrious farmers and mechanics, mostly Protestants. The wind being fair, she soon got to sea. The passengers seemed in good spirits, and anxious to quit the land of their nativity for a foreign one, being disgusted at the treatment they have so ungenerously received from a government which they were led to look to for an improvement in their circumstances. She was comfortably berthed, and well found in fuel and water. The brig Hope now lies at our quay taking in passengers for St. John; and another vessel, daily expected by Mr. Scally, and will sail for Quebec this month. The brig Charlotte is expected by Mr. Lipsett, to sail with passengers for St. John, and the brig Blanch, will sail from Donegal for Quebec. By these vessels, this and the neighbouring counties will be deprived of many useful characters.—Ballyshannon Herald.

During the last week there was seen coming down the Rhine, from Andernach, one of those immense rafts lately found descending this river with emigrants. It appeared like an immense floating Island, 900 feet long, and 200 feet wide, bearing a village on its bosom, and yet guided by one steersman with as much security as an ordinary boat. The inhabitants of these rafts, that is, the crew and passengers, amount to between 800 and 1000 persons. There are always cattle upon them, with slaughter-houses for the supply of this numerous family; and there is generally consumed in the voyage from Andernach to Dordrecut, 50,000lbs. of bread, 20,000lbs. of meat, 15,000lbs. of cheese, 1,500lbs. butter, and 700 tuns of beer.

LORD BROUGHAM.—We hear from a gentleman who has recently passed some time at Brougham Hall, that Lord Brougham's health has so much improved as to justify the most sanguine hopes of his ultimate and complete recovery, though it is not, we believe, his Lordship's intention to resume public business during the present session of parliament.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS SWAMPED.—In consequence of the unprecedented height to which the tide rose on Monday, the House of Lords was nearly surrounded by water. Many persons in the gallery, when they saw the waters dashing against the sides of the House, and almost reaching the windows, looked upon it as ominous of the tide of public opinion, which seems to rise higher every day against the proceedings of their Lordships' House.—The Right Reverend Peers in particular, who—from their situation in the House, would, if the rush of waters be too strong to be resisted by the walls of the House—be the first to suffer from it, cannot have felt over comfortable in their places. They would have but a poor chance of floating either on the waters of the Thames, or on the stream of public opinion. Let us hope that their Lordships, both clerical and temporal, will look upon the rise of the waters as a sign, and immediately proceed to put their House in order.

THE STATUE OF KING WILLIAM.—Scaffolding has been erected around the pedestal in College Green, and the placing of a new statue of King William upon the horse is to be proceeded with as rapidly as possible. A man named Taylor is in custody on a charge of some connection with the blowing up of the statue. No positive testimony has been obtained. The man is a painter, and is charged with having purchased a "safety fusee" about the period of the occurrence.

The Hon. Berkley Craven, uncle to the present Earl Craven, committed suicide at his residence in Connaught Terrace. Mr. Craven was said to have lost £30,000 on the race for the Derby Stakes; and returned from Epsom on Thursday night in a state of extreme agitation. He flung himself on his sofa, and refused to go to bed. About six o'clock in the morning, one of the female servants, on going down to the parlour, found Mr. Craven lying on the floor, his head shattered, and a duelling pistol near him.

The Buffalo, Capt. Hindmarsh, fitting in this harbour for South Australia, of which the gallant captain is appointed governor, will take out to that settlement, besides the governor and family, thirty ladies and gentlemen, including the officers of the new colony, and 160 agriculturists and mechanics. There are already six ships attached to the colony—three belonging to the company, and one chartered by them, and one belonging to, and one chartered by government. The following compose the salaried officers of the colony:—The Governor 800*l.* per annum, colonial commissioner, judge, surveyor-general, colonial secretary, each 400*l.* per annum, chaplain, and emigration agent, each 250*l.* clerk of the council and private secretary, at 200*l.* second surveyor 200*l.* and eight junior surveyors, and a surgeon, each at 100*l.* per annum, and an adjutant of militia. Three vessels, with settlers, have already proceeded to the new colony, it having been previously arranged that the settlers, on their arrival, should locate themselves at Kangaroo Island, as being at present considered the most favourable spot.—Portsmouth Paper.

State of Europe.—Every thing contributes to the consolidation of peace, and governments are at last enabled to proceed with a general reduction of their armies. Austria has already commenced; and this example proves that however the first to arm when circumstances are menacing, she will not be the last to unfurl the standard of peace when calm appears to be restored.—This step taken by Austria will create a sensible impression in France and Russia. Russia alone could prove an obstacle to such measures; and herein lay the difficulty of the Eastern question. France remained under arms, solely from the fear of seeing the system, founded since the revolution of July, menaced or attacked. But the exertions of Louis Phillippe in preserving the juste milieu have succeeded in dissipating every anxiety on this side the Rhine. And no doubt the two Courts of Paris and St. Petersburg will follow the impulse given by that of Vienna, and reduce their armies. The situation of Spain is alone grave enough to induce France to keep up her military establishments. But the united will and determination of the great powers not to suffer any thing which might excite fresh troubles, permits France to await tranquilly, and without formal intervention, the issue of the catastrophe of Spanish affairs. Up to this moment the concord, on which the happiness of the world depends, has been maintained through diplomatic communications, but Louis Philippe seems to feel the necessity of convincing his brother monarchs of the necessity of a closer union, as well as of a kind and official declaration that there remains between them and him henceforth, neither hidden grudge nor personal disesteem.—German paper.

Accounts of a recent date from Alexandria, received by Marseilles, announce that that city, which was half depopulated last year by the plague, is again threatened with the same scourge.

Three children were born on board the steamer Royal Tar, during her last voyage from Saint John to Eastport.—Boston paper.

A monster Mill.—An Englishman has lately erected on the banks of the river Theiss, in Hungary, a mill, in the form of a colossal man. The head is the dwelling house, the eyes serving for windows, and the nose for a double chimney. The machinery is placed in the body, and set in motion by a stream of water from a canal, in the form of an immense bottle, which the monster is emptying into his mouth.

A TAP-ROOM.—What can be more disgusting than one of these dens of infamy on a Saturday night? There vice in all her hideousness reigns paramount. In one box may be seen tradesmen and mechanics, uproarious amidst the wreck of bottles and glasses, discussing with might and main some abstruse point in religion or in politics—and maintaining (while they can scarcely maintain their seats) dogmas subversive of all adherence to the ordinances either of God or man. In another may be seen blackguards of every grade from the picker of pockets, to the dealer in blood, planning over their cups some midnight robbery or murder. In others there are women, the most abandoned of their sex, while the merry landlord serves all, and joins in the slang of the assassin, or in the politics of the reforming tradesman with equal facility, being (while the money of his customers lasts) the best of good fellows—but as soon as their purses are empty, he changes his countenance, and kicks them into the street, or hands them to the police officer, as persons disturbing the peace of his respectable house!—Shirref's Pamphlet on the Miseries of Intemperance.

PROSPECTUS

Of a new Weekly Newspaper, to be called

THE CHRONICLE;

And Published by LEWIS W. DURANT & Co. Sands' Brick Building, Prince William Street, St. John, (New Brunswick.)

IT cannot fail of striking every one who will reflect upon it for a moment, that the number of Newspapers published in this City bears no proportion to that published in other towns in British North America, or the United States, which are similarly situated and contain the same amount of population. To whatever causes this circumstance may be ascribed, the fact is undeniable. There is another fact which is more remarkable still;—in the last ten years, the City, (to say nothing of the Province at large) has nearly doubled itself in size and population; but during that period, only one has been added to the number of the newspapers.—It may therefore be confidently asserted that there is room for another paper; and many circumstances might be mentioned to prove that another paper is wanted.

To fill the vacant space, and to supply what is thus wanted, is the object of those who take this opportunity of announcing the publication, (commencing with all possible dispatch,) of a newspaper, to be called The Chronicle of News, Politics, Commerce, Science, and Literature, and of which they offer the following brief sketch:

Under the head of News, they propose to give a summary account of what is passing, and worthy of being recorded, in the various quarters of the Globe, particularly in the Mother Country, and her numerous Colonies.—Under that of Politics, the Parliamentary business of the Imperial Parliament and the neighbouring Colonies will be detailed; particularly the discussions in the House of Commons relating to Colonial affairs, and more especially those in which we are ourselves interested. With reference to Commerce, they propose to give both a copious Shipping List, and also the latest Price Currents from London, Liverpool, and New-York; for the securing of which they are making the necessary arrangements. They also intend to insert from time to time, such notices of Science and Literature as in their judgment may be generally useful; and in this department they respectfully solicit contributions from the friends of useful knowledge throughout the Province.

With respect to Domestic Politics, they need say but little. The Chronicle shall always be found ready to defend the rights of the people against the undue exercise of the Prerogative; and on the other hand, whenever there may be occasion for it, to support the prerogative against any encroachments which may be attempted on the part of the popular branches of the Commonwealth. The Chronicle shall also be found open at all times for the temperate discussion of subjects of public interest.

The Proprietors of the Chronicle would take the liberty of noticing a claim to public favour of a personal nature, which they trust will not be disregarded. The name which will appear on the title page of the Chronicle will not be exhibited in such a situation for the first time; it has been connected with the public Press for nearly half a century, and it is to be hoped, in a manner which did not disgrace it; but on the contrary which has laid the foundation of a claim for future patronage and support.

The Chronicle will be printed on an Imperial sheet, at fifteen shillings per annum—half in advance, on receipt of the first number.

Subscription Lists will be opened at the News Room, the Circulating Library, and at the stores of W. O. Smith and J. G. Melick, Market square.

☞ Two active Boys, of liberal education, are wanted as Apprentices to the above establishment, and a JOURNEYMAN PRINTER.
