POETRY.

From the "Western Continent."

"PAST YEAR, FAREWELL!"

Past year, farewell! Beneath the solemn pall
That hides the buried ages, thou art sleeping!
I see Time's lengthening shadows darkly fall
Upon thy tomb; and, like a mourner keeping
His vigil in some solitary hall,
Through which the deep, slow dirge of Night is sweeping,
Alone I wander, where the cold moon-rays
Shine like the glory of departed days.

Alas! alas! my dreams of youth have faded,
Like the fresh roses of the vanished Spring;
My Summer-fruit, by clouds of sorrow shaded,
Upon th' unkindly ground lies withering;
By subtle frost my Autumn-sheaf's pervaded;
And the swift blasts of Winter rudely fling
Fair flower, rich fruit, and golden-crested grain,
Like worthless stubble, on the snowy plain.

Within thy shroud, oh year! what griefs are hidden!
Inurned with thee, what ruined hopes concealed!
Ties rent that seem'd eternal; kindness chidden
From hearts to which Love's beauty was revealed;
Light, laughing joys and gay emotions bidden
To be in long, unbroken silence sealed.
But these sad visions let me not recall,
Nor idly strive to lift thy solemn pall.

Speed, speed, lost seasons, to the boundless main!
Uncounted multitudes too soon must pass,
Subjects like you, of Death's perpetual reign;
Ye shall together mingle with the mass
Of spectral shapes, that oft in gloomy train
Glide o'er the face of Fancy's magic glass!
Deep through the Earth resounds your funeral knell,
And Nature sighs, in mournful gales, farewell!

MISSIONARY MEETING.—On Tuesday evening, the 6th inst., the Annual General Meeting of "The Saint John Reformed Presbyterian Missionary Society," was held in the Meeting House, Lower Cove. The Rev. A. McLeod Staveley, President of the Society, conducted the devotional exercises, and afterwards introduced the proceedings of the evening with some remarks relative to the Constitution of the Society and its object—the propagation of the Gospel amongst the destitute in these Provinces, who ought to have a peculiar interest in our sympathies, our contributions, and our prayers. The Rev. A. Halket, then delivered a beautiful address on the qualifications of Missionaries, particularly referring to the Saviour, as the grand model which Christian Missionaries, should ever imitate. The Rev. J. G. Macgregor next interested the audience with sketches of eminent Missionaries, adverting to the origin and progress of Missionary operations, as associated with the labours of Brainerd, Elliot, Martyn and Carey.—The Rev. Robt. Irvine afterwards directed the attention of the meeting to the wants of the British Provinces, and ably advocated their claims.—He was followed by Mr. J. Armstrong, who spoke on the social principle, and Mr. Robert Ewing, who dwelt on the evidences of a true Missionary spirit.—The concluding address, on the duty of increased exertions in this good cause, was delivered by the Rev. Jas. R. Lawson, lately ordained by the Reformed Presbyterian Church in Ireland, a Missionary to the British North American Colonies. After which, the interesting exercises of the evening were brought to a close.—The attendance was numerous and respectable—the addresses eloquent and appropriate, and the collection to assist the Society amounted to £11 11s. 8½d.—Observer.

PENNSYLVANIA.—The Legislature met at Harrisburg on Tuesday. Gov. Shunk congratulates the Legislature on their successful exertions to meet the engagements of the State, and alleges that the Treasurer is in possession of means to pay the February interest.

The Public Debt on the 1st Dec., including the Funded Debt, Relief Notes, Interest Certificates outstanding, and the amount due Domestic Creditors, was $40,986,393, on which the interest for 1846 is $2,023,996. The aggregate amount received into the Treasury for the year ending 30th of November, 1845, together with the amount in the Treasury on the 1st of December, 1844, was $3,673,914. The payments from the Treasury for the same period were $3,298,028, leaving a balance in the Treasury on the 1st December, 1845, of $384,886. There was an aggregate reduction of the balance in the Treasury and of outstanding taxes on the 1st of December, 1845, as compared with the same items on the 1st of December, 1844, of $414,199.

It will appear from the above that but for the postponement of the payment of domestic creditors, &c., the whole balance in the Treasury would have been exhausted on the 1st of December last. The estimated receipts for the next year are $3,602,586; the estimated payments $3,513,996, giving an estimated balance in the Treasury, December 1, 1846, of $88,590. The nett revenue of 1846 is estimated at $1,180,000, which, added to $874,554 outstanding taxes, will give an aggregate of $2,054,514. The estimated amount of outstanding taxes, December 1, 1846, is $754,544.

From this view of the subject, says the Governor, it is apparent, that the assessment for the year 1846, on real and personal estates, and the revenue of the year proper, derivable from all other sources, taken together, will be insufficient to meet the demands upon the Treasury during the same period, by the sum of $416,296 09; and that in supplying the deficiency, the balance in the Treasury, on the 1st of December, 1846, will have been reduced to $88,590, and the arrears of outstanding taxes, to the sum of $754,544 50. It is plain, therefore, that our present financial system is inadequate to supply the means of meeting all the demands on the Treasury, except when aided from the balance which had accumulated before the payment of interest was resumed, and by collections from the arrearages of taxes of former years—both of which will soon be exhausted.

The Governor recommends that prompt and effective measures be taken to make a moderate addition to the revenue. He says the credit, fidelity and honor of Pennsylvania, all demand that, henceforward, the interest on her public debt shall be punctually and fully paid. He recommends that new Banks be chartered, and that when any of the existing ones apply for new charters, the Stockholders be made individually liable.

Gov. Shunk is in favor of a Protective Tariff, but does not say whether he is or is not in favor of the Tariff of '42.

THE FANCIES IN NEW YORK.—The "bung is out," says the New York Herald of Saturday morning. There was a panic in Wall street to-day equal to any yet experienced in this market for several years past.

Nearly all fancy stocks in the list, are now lower than they have been at any time within the past two years, and the tendency of prices is still downwards. There are no bulls in the market. The bottom has fallen out, and quotations may, within the next month, rule ten and fifteen per cent lower than those now current. Many of the fancies have fallen several per cent below their real value, but the market is in such a state that it is impossible to tell where the decline will stop. The movements of the largest operators in the street, have more influence upon prices than all the war rumors in circulation, and all the bank contractions experienced.

A BLIND CHAPLAIN.—The Washington correspondent of the Boston Post gives the following account of Mr. Milburn of Kentucky, the Methodist clergyman lately elected Chaplain of the U. S. House of Representatives:

Mr. Milburn is a blind preacher from the West, and the circumstances connected with his election are a little curious. He was on his way to the city of New York, where he intended to submit to a surgical operation, as the last hope of restoring his eyesight. On board the boat, after leaving Lexington, on a fine Sabbath morning, he was requested by a few of the passengers to conduct religious exercises. He consented—sung a hymn, offered up a prayer, and preached a sermon. The audience was not only delighted, but irresistibly enchained, by his rich and extemporaneous eloquence, and at the conclusion of the services they came forward, as it were en masse, to learn his past history and future intentions. Among the number were several senators and representatives from the west who begged the blind preacher to tarry a few days at Washington, and they would endeavor to elect him the Chaplain of the House. He consented, and they have kept their word. That he will, in all respects, justify the generous confidence of his friends does not admit of doubt.

THE DOMINICANS.—We think the fate of Hayti may be considered as decided. The Dominicans, from all accounts, have every prospect of possessing themselves of the whole island. The American barque Alert, recently purchased by the Dominican Government to be fitted as a vessel of war, has been got in readiness, and she mounts twenty 24-pounders and two swivels of the same or greater calibre. She is represented as being commanded by a "fine, young, cool, calm and daring American, and a picked crew of fifty able and fine seamen."—New-York Sun.

METHOD OF GATHERING THE ICE CROP.—The plan pursued by the Knickerbocker Company of New York, in gathering ice is thus described. To witness the operation must be a rare treat: A clear field of ice in the centre of the stream is chosen, leading from which to the bank at the spot adjacent to the ice house a channel is cut about two feet wide along which the ice is pushed after being cut. The ice is cut in one direction in regular cakes, eighteen inches wide by means of a plough drawn by a horse, these are afterwards cut into proper lengths by means of cross cut saws, managed with the utmost ease by men on the surface of the ice. The cakes thus cut are pushed along the channel already mentioned till they arrive at the bank of the river, where is stationed a machine, which performs in an admirable manner the task of raising the ice into the house. It consists of an endless chain put in motion by horse power, which plying over a plane 40 feet long, inclined at an angle of about 45 degrees, the cakes are taken hold of as soon as they arrive at the foot of the plane by grapnels placed along the chain, about eight feet apart, the cakes slide very easily over iron traces on the plane, and on arriving at the top fall on to another in the interior, which can be moved so as to convey the cakes to any part of the building. The grapnels being eight feet apart, cakes seven feet long can be taken up the ascent at a very quick rate, but the cakes being unweildy when cut that size, they are generally but four or five feet long. In the space of a single minute, nine cakes were deposited in the building, which at an average of 300 lbs. each, would make 2700 lbs. in that time. The enormous quantity of 850 tons was placed in the house in seven hours, by means of this machine. One peculiarity attending this method, is that none of the men employed have any occasion to handle the ice from the time it is first cut until it is deposited in its appropriate depot. Two men are only required to attend for the purpose of feeding the machine, and the power for working it furnished by two horses.

A HAPPY FAMILY.—The London correspondent of the Boston Atlas, mentions the following novel sight which one may witness about the streets of the great metropolis. In my short walk this morning from the National Gallery to Piccadilly, I stumbled on a show, an open air one, of an extremely curious and interesting nature. A large cage, some four or five feet square, was mounted on wheels; over it, was a sing-board, which informed the passer by that the United and Happy Family were to be seen—and in it were to be seen the members of the Happy Family themselves. It consisted of a curious assemblage of animals, of different tastes and inclinations; and the harmony which appeared to subsist between creatures whom we generally see enemies to each other, was most surprising. A large cat lay asleep, with a hawk perched on her back—and a sparrow, and some mice, right under her nose. A wiry crosslooking terrier frolicked with rats; a turtle dove and an owl seemed delighted with each other's society; and mice played with kittens fearlessly. I cannot name half of the creatures who thus dwelt so lovingly together, but the cage was filled with them.

A TALE OF SORROW.

Names and places might be given, were it necessary in verification of the following facts:

A man of standing and property, named Major Wm. W——, of Connecticut, was blessed with a family of kind, intelligent, obedient sons. Two of them—the eldest and best beloved—early received each his portion, and took their several ways to distant portions of the country, intent upon establishing themselves in the world and carrying out their own fortunes. They were each possessed of an excellent common school—Connecticut common school—education; and were well calculated to "make their way in the world."

They departed with a father and a mother's blessing resting upon them, and were remembered, with tears, and earnest, hopeful supplications before the throne of mercy, ere their first day's journey was ended.

A period of nine years rolled rapidly by, and among the innumerable changes wrought during that time, was the removal of Major W—— from the land of steady habits—glorious, fondly remembered, ever loved Connecticut—to the "far West"—a comprehensive term, which means any locality between Western New York and the Pacific Ocean.

He was a man of sterling character; a true New Englander: intelligent, persevering, honest, shrewd, and withal a little ambitious. The Major dabbled much in politics, and being a good practical writer and speaker, in a year or two revolutionized the county in which he was settled. Gratitude and political power rewarded him first with a seat in the State Legislature, and second with the sheriffalty.

A better sheriff than Major W—— that county had never been favored with. During the first year of his administration the salutary effects of his perseverance and good counsels were seen and felt.

During the second year of his official life, a notorious vagabond, known through the country as Bill Winchelsea, alias Caulkins, alias Ford, and half a dozen other assumed names, after a long course of petty crimes, repeated convictions and escapes, was at length charged with the perpetration of a foul murder. A widow, who resided a mile or two from the county town, and who was reported wealthy, was found early one morning in June, lying upon the floor of her barn, a few rods from her house, with her throat cut, and her body awfully mangled with an axe. It was known that Winchelsea had been at the house, late the evening previous, and that he declared that he would lodge there that night. Soon as the murder was discovered, search was made for him, and he could nowhere be found. Suspicion naturally settled upon him, and the hue and cry was given.

Sheriff W—— sent out his deputies and a strong posse, and accidentally receiving information that led him to believe that the murderer had fled down the Mississippi, he instantly set out alone in hot pursuit. He traced what he believed to be the "trail" of the miscreant down as far as St. Louis, and there lost it entirely, and gave up the search as fruitless. As he was preparing to return, he was taken ill of a fever, and for many weeks lay in a half-delirious and very critical state. At the end of that time he began to convalesce, and ere long recovered so far as to be able to return home.

During his absence Winchelsea had been apprehended, tried, and convicted upon proof so positive that the jury found a verdict of "Guilty of Wilful Murder," without leaving their box, and sentenced to the ignominious death of the scaffold.

Major W—— reached home on the day appointed for the execution. Being yet feeble he begged to be relieved from the painful duty of hanging the poor wretch, and so it fell upon one of his deputies.

The hour fixed for the dreadful murder which the law had legalised came round. At that moment a messenger arrived to inform Major W—— that the deputy had fallen upon the scaffold in an appoplectic fit, and that the execution stayed his arrival. There was no alternative. The sheriff, though weak, and totally unfit for the dreadful task, felt it to be his duty to promptly obey the summons.

In a few minutes a rolling, heavy hum, and an unusual commotion in the ranks of the thousands assembled to behold the shameful death of a fellow creature, gave evidence of the arrival of the sheriff. The culprit was dressed for the grave, the fatal rope encircled his neck, the cap, drawn over his face by the deputy before the fit took him, at his request, remained as it had been adjusted. A brief prayer was offered up to God in behalf of the poor wretch, whose last minute had come. The clergyman and the sheriff than took him by the hand, and bade him farewell. All things were ready. The vast crowd were hushed to breathless silence. With a sudden movement the sheriff cut the cord, the drop fell, and the murderer was hanging by the neck between the heavens and the earth.

A few convulsive struggles, and all was over—justice was satisfied. The multitude dispersed to their homes——But the tragedy had not yet reached its close.

After hanging the usual length of time, the body was "cut down," to be delivered to the physicians—for friends the dead man had none—no, not one. The Sheriff remained to assist in this last ceremony. One removed the shoes, another the long gown, and the sheriff himself pulled off the cap.—The body was then lying with the face downward. A moment after it was turned over, and in the livid, distorted, ghastly features presented to view, sheriff W—— recognized the countenace of his own son! his eldest, his best beloved, his long lost son!

One long minute he stood, with straining eyes and uplifted hands, speechless as the clay he gazed upon. Then, with a groan of utter agony, he fell upon the body, crying out. "My son! oh my son! my son!"

He never spoke again. Death came to his relief.

The son was indeed the murderer. Bad company led him astray after he left his home in Connecticut. He soon squandered his money, and with that went his friends Want stared him in the face. Hunger pinched him sorely. Shame and pride stifled the half expressed desire to return, like the prodigal son, to his father's house, confess and repent. Temptation took him captive, and he became a petty larceny thief, then a robber, burglar, counterfeiter, and finally, after a long course of crime, closed the catalogue of his misdeeds with the capital crime of murder—murder committed for the sake of a few hundred dollars—and as we have related.

The other son lived long to comfort his grief striken mother; but she never recovered entirely from the dreadful shock.—Albany Citizen.
