AUGUSTA, GEO.—SISTERS OF CHARITY.

We transfer the following, with pleasure, from the columns of the Catholic Miscellany:

"In the early part of August when the fever exhibited its marked virulence at Augusta, the greatest want which afflicted the patients especially the poor, was that of nurses and accommodation. The Rev. John Barry, the zealous pastor of the church of the Holy Trinity in that city, unhesitatingly placed the residence which he occupied at the disposal of the Board of Health, as a temporary hospital, and at the request of the indefatigable Mayor of Augusta, the Hon. Alfred Cumming, applied to the Bishop for a few of the Sisters of our Lady of mercy to attend the patients. Every sister, as was her duty, cheerfully placed her services at his disposal, and each seemed desirous of being selected. Three of them were sent by the return of the Railroad cars, and were kindly met at Hamburg by a committee of the Board of Health. The Mayor, whose labours were arduous and unremitting, though he was only convalescent, called on them and offered them the hospitality of his house, which they politely declined, prefering to enter at once upon the discharge of the duty for which they were sent; and patients were quickly placed under their care. They were accompanied by the Rev. T. J. Cronin, whom the bishop sent to aid Mr. Barry, whose duties had now become too onerous.

The sisters were fully employed until the end of October; on the second of November, they returned to this city, accompanied by the Rev. J. Barry, and were lavish in their expressions of gratitude for the kind attentions they had received in Augusta. It was determined in the City Council that the expenses of their journey should be defrayed, besides providing for them during their sojourn. On their departure, a sum fully sufficient to defray the expenses of the journey to and from Augusta was tendered to Mr. Barry, but declined; upon the ground that he was instructed not to receive it, as the Catholics of Charleston felt that in the affliction of their sister city, they ought at least not to make any charge for charitable aid, and the more especially as a great portion of the patients were Roman Catholics. The number attended in the Hospital was nearly 70—of whom about 20 died.

We are informed that the Roman Catholic congregation of the church of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary at Locust Grove, about 50 miles from Augusta, generously contributed a sum of about two hundred dollars to aid in relieving the sick of Augusta, and also a handsome contribution was made by the Presbyterian congregation of Athens.

The following correspondence has been handed to us for publication:—

To the Right Rev. John England, Bishop of Charleston.

AUGUSTA, November 4, 1839.

Sir,—I have the honor to communicate the inclosed Resolutions of the Board of Health, of this city.

Be assured that I heartily unite with the Board in the expressions of grateful thanks for the signal kindness manifested by you in directing the efforts of the Sisters of Charity to the relief of the afflicted of our city.

Guided by the Christian spirit of the Rev. Mr. Barry, in the midst of a panic-stricken community, whose pastors fled from their churches and their flocks, were scattered abroad, their disinterested devotion to the charms of suffering humanity, presented a beautiful moral spectacle, which made a deep and lasting impression upon the hearts of all who witnessed its exhibition.

I am your most obedient servant,
A. CUMMING, Mayor.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

AUGUSTA, Nov. 4, 1839.—A meeting of the Board of Health took place this day.

The Committee having charge of the temporary Hospital report, that the establishment being no longer necessary, has been discontinued. And, therefore, it was Resolved, unanimously, That the thanks of this Board be tendered to the Right Rev. Dr. John England, Bishop of Charleston, for his promptness and liberality, in furnishing aid to our sick poor; to the Rev. John Barry, for the use of his parsonage, and the unremitting attention to the patients, and in particular to the three Sisters of Charity from Charleston, who have so long and with such constant care, skill and kindness, taken charge of the hospital.

Resolved, That the Mayor be requested to forward copies of the above resolution, to the Right Rev. Dr. England and to the Rev. Mr. Barry.

And the Board adjourned, to Wednesday next, at twelve o'clock.

A. CUMMING,
Mayor, Ex. Off. C. B. H.
SAMUEL THOMSON, Secretary.

Answer of Bishop England.

TO THE HON. ALFRED CUMMING,
Mayor of Augusta.

Charleston, Nov. 11, 1839.

Sir,—I was on Saturday honored with your letter of the 4th, covering the proceedings of the Board of Health of Augusta, at their meeting on that day. I beg you to express to the Board my deep sense of the kind manner in which they appreciate the little which I have been able to contribute towards alleviating the sufferings of your city, for whose welfare I am greatly interested, and to whose citizens I have good reason for being attached. I sympathize with them in their sufferings, I regret that I could not do more to relieve them.

The Rev. Mr. Barry has fully justified my expectations and secured my confidence by the faithful and zealous discharge of his duty. He has well fulfilled the obligation of a pastor, not only in watching over those whom I committed to his charge, but in giving up his residence to be the asylum of the diseased and destitute, and he reports to me in flattering terms the aid which he received in the cheerful co-operation of the Rev. Mr. Cronin, whom I sent to labour under his direction during the period the sickness may continue, but he informs me that their efforts would have been of comparatively little value, had they not been sustained by your devoted exertions and those of your board and the physicians.

The Sisters of our Lady of Mercy, upon my announcing that I wanted three to serve the sick in Augusta, manifested a gratifying emulation, each trusting that she might be one of those sent in the field of labour; and though at the moment we were not without suffering here, they felt, as I did, that your city stood more in need of their exertions. I am gratified at your testimony and that of the Board of Health being so fully in accordance with the report of the Pastor. On the other hand, they speak in very grateful terms of the kindness and attention they received at your hands, and from all others engaged in the work of mercy; I may add that their appearance upon their return hither indicates that so far from suffering by their exertions in the cause of Charity, God has blessed them with renovated health to continue in the performance of those duties to which they have so generously devoted themselves for the sake of the Redeemer who laid down his life that we may be saved.

I trust, Sir, that during our lives Augusta will be spared from so severe a chastisement as that which God has inflicted for his own wise purposes in the present year. He frequently chastises, as a father, those whom he loves, though the child will not always discover the benefit of the affliction. In his own good time, also, he tempers his severity with consolation and soothing, by the extension of Mercy. Should it, however, happen that the scourge should be again used, Augusta may feel assured that to the best of our power we shall be ready to prove, not in word, but in work, the sincerity of our affection to all indiscriminately of what creed or colour soever to whom our exertions or sacrifices may be useful.

I trust you will not consider me presumptuous in assuring you of the high place which your own noble conduct, amidst the afflictions and desolations of your fine city, has given to you in the esteem and regard of

Your obedient humble servant,
†JOHN, Bishop of Charleston.

To the Rev. John Barry, Pastor of the Church of Augusta.

AUGUSTA, Nov. 4th, 1839.

SIR.—By order of the Board, I have herewith inclosed their resolutions—in which you know I so fully concur. May God long preserve you for the exercise of that unbounded charity and benevolence which has so much endeared you to this community. I am your obedient servant,

A. CUMMING,
Ex. Off. C. B. H., Mayor.

Answer of Mr. Barry, to the Hon. A. Cumming.

CHARLESTON, S. C. Nov. 12th, 1839.

SIR.—Your favour of the 4th, communicating a copy of Resolutions passed by the Board of Health, has been received, and would have been replied to earlier, but for pressing occupations.

I feel grateful to the Board of Health for their kind expression of thanks for my humble services, and have only to express my regret that they were not more worthy their acknowledgements. To all my fellow-citizens I am a debtor; to my own people, who are my joy and my crown, I owe every thing, my health, nay, even my life; to all mankind I acknowledge obligations, and what time more appropriate to manifest those obligations than the late occasion of our affliction.

Have the goodness to present to the Board of Health my acknowledgment. And as to yourself, I shall ever pray in the fervor of my heart, that the God of the Poor and the Afflicted may bless you and preserve you to our good city.

I remain your's with respect,
JOHN BARRY.

GREAT BRITAIN AND CHINA.—The London Morning Chronicle of the 2d November, contains the following article respecting the relations of Great Britain with China, which is entitled to greater consideration from the fact that the paper from which it is quoted, is understood to be, to a certain extent, in the confidence of the British Government:—

"The course which should be adopted by the British Government in regard to the settlement of the opium question is in our minds no longer attended with doubt. Captain Elliot has now solemnly charged the Chinese Government as accessories to the opium traffic, and as being regular parties to its existence, drawing profits annually from that branch of foreign trade. If such be the case, we at once repudiate the most remote intention of making the people of this country suffer to the extent of one farthing of the loss. The British Government should at once take a decisive course, and insist for indemnification from the Chinese Government to the fullest extent. We doubt not Captain Elliot is prepared to make good his words, and therefore we consider the case free from further obscurity. A sufficient naval and military force should be dispatched at once to Canton to seek for reparation, and, if not granted when demanded, the expedition should immediately disembark their troops, and the fleet sail up the river. This, we understand, will be an object of no very difficult accomplishment. If it be ascertained that the Chinese authorities sanctioned this traffic, the first duty of the British Government is to let it be seen that its subjects shall not be wronged with impunity. The question is one of fact. Foreigners can only know the laws of a country with which they traffic, by the interpretation given to them by the Government functionaries of that country; and if the Chinese functionaries, for a long series of years, have allowed and profited by the trade in opium, the question how far they were justified in allowing and profiting by this trade, is one between them and their Government, with which the foreign traders have no concern. It would be monstrous if a Government were to be allowed to take advantage of the wrong of its own officers. True, that opium was contraband; we have frequently admitted that it was so, by the letter of the Chinese law. But when the people of one country have traded openly and with impunity with those of another for forty years, the usage becomes the law. The device which the Chinese Government contrived, to shield themselves from their participation in, and encouragement of, the opium trade, was to hold the Hong merchants responsible that the foreign ships had no opium on board; but, on the other hand, these very persons bought the opium regularly. The Chinese authorities knew that they did so, and exacted heavy contributions from them for permission to carry on that lucrative branch of foreign trade, and were as much implicated as the importers of the drug—much more so in fact, because had it not been for the encouragement which they afforded to the traffic, the demand could not have existed, and the culture of the poppy would not have been carried on to the extent which it has been, in order to supply the Chinese market. We therefore consider that the seizure and destruction of the opium was a most unjustifiable act of spoilation on the part of the Imperial Commissioner and his associates, and that the Government of this Country is bound to insist that the British merchants who were the owners of the article shall be fully indemnified by the Chinese Government. We say so as regards the past. The future is open for arrangement;—and if the Chinese make it a condition of our renewed intercourse that the trade in opium shall cease or be legalised, the ground is open for considering those conditions. But taking the whole case as regards our last forty years' intercourse into consideration, and the decided charge of Captain Elliot, "that the traffic in opium has been chiefly encouraged and protected by the highest officers in the empire," we deem it clear that the people of this country ought not to pay one farthing of the loss which has been sustained by the destruction of the surrendered opium, and that the British Government will act with shameful pusillanimity if they do not obtain full and peremptory satisfaction from the Chinese executive. The sure course to do so is to take the high hand with these cunning and self-conceited people. To induce them to act justly, they must be taught to feel the necessity of submission; and if they hesitate to make full reparation for the loss which our merchants have sustained by the destruction of their property, a British force ought to teach them that British merchants are not to be despoiled of their property with impunity."

An explosion in the house of Mr. Harding, fire-work-maker, at Pimlico, London, took place Nov. 1st, causing the loss of seven lives.

As the King and Queen of France were leaving the Thuilleries, Oct 19th, a crazy woman threw a stone into their carriage, breaking the glass, the fragments of which slightly wounded the Queen.

PRIVILEGE OF AN AMBASSADOR.—Mr. Henderson, the Minister Plenipotentiary of the Republic of Texas to the Court of France, who arrived at New-York lately in the British Queen on his return from his late mission, was arrested on Monday last in New-York, for debt. He has claimed his privilege as an Ambassador, as exempting him from the liability to arrest, by the law of nations. The question is yet undecided.—Boston Dai. Adv.
