POETRY.

From the London Forget-Me-Not, for 1840.

LAST WORDS OF AN INDIAN CHIEF.

BY MRS. L. H. SIGOURNEY.

" He cometh! Death is here. Leave me alone!
Hence! hence! Ye shall not see me when I die.
If die I must. I would not that the men
Whom I have led to battle saw me yield
To any conqueror. Shall my warriors hear
From this undaunted breast the gasp, or groan,
As when a woman dies?
How cold the dew
Starts o'er my temples! Wipe it not away.
Shame on your tears! Leave me alone with Death!
For I will meet him as a brave man should,
And hurl defiance at him.
What is this?
Ha!—He hath smote the lion! Was it well,
To steal upon me in my unarmed bed,
Most potent enemy? How hast thou cut
The nerve of that strong arm, which us'd to cleave
The proudest foeman like the sapling spray!
Oh friends!—the dimness of the grave doth steal
Over those eyes; that as the eagle, dares
The noontide sunbeams. Let me hear your voice
Once more! once more!
" In vain! That ear is seal'd
Which caught the rustle of the lightest leaf [back!
Where the close ambush lay. Come back! come
Hear my last biddings, friends! Lay not my bones
Near any white man's bones. Let not his hand
Touch my clay-pillow, nor his hateful voice
Sing burial hymns for me. Rather than dwell
In paradise with him, my soul would choose
Eternal darkness and the undying worm.
Ho! heed my words, or else my wandering shade
Shall haunt ye with its curse!"
And so, he died;
That pagan chief, the last strong-banner staff
Of the poor Senecas. No more the flash
Of his wild eloquence shall fire their ranks
To mortal combat. His distorted brow,
And the stern grapple, when he sank in death,
Sadly they grave upon their orphan hearts,
As to their rude homes in the forest glade
Mournful they turn'd.
Hartford, Con.

DESPAIR.

Shipwrecked upon a kingdom where no pity,
No friends, no hope, no kindred, weep for me;
Almost no grave allowed me; like the lily
That once was mistress of the field and flourished,
I'll hang my head and perish.

VARIETY.

WATER PROOF CLOTH.—The water proof cloth of various quality and texture, manufactured by the Lowell Water Proof Company, is exciting much attention—and will, we doubt not, prove a valuable invention. If a piece of it is extended over a glass vessel, and hot water poured upon it, —the steam will pass, and be condensed on the vessel—but not a drop of water will pass through the cloth—showing that it is porous, and will admit the passage of air or steam. If a piece be placed beneath a trickling rill of water from a water-cock all night, the under side of the cloth will be found free from dampness. From this it would seem that cartridges prepared of this cloth, might be submerged a long time in water, and then fired —and thus a magazine could be drowned in case of fire on ship-board, without injuring the powder! With a pea-jacket of this prepared cloth, no sailor need " turn in wet, and turn out smoking," as has often been the lot of poor Pilgarlic, in days gone by. Neither will moths trouble it—and as they are wont to do with other kinds of cloths, puncture holes in it in summer, to let in water in winter.—As an article for the manufacture of caps, it must prove of great value.

Such are a few of the advantages which the community will derive from this invention—and the water proof cloth can be furnished at a price but a little exceeding the price of cloth of similar texture, and of the ordinary character. Many other important advantages will at once occur to the mind of the reader.—Mer. Jour.

REASONABLE COMPLAINT.—The only prisoner in Nantucket jail has given the sheriff notice that unless the prison is repaired so as to guard him from the inclemency of the weather, he cannot remain much longer.

A CRITERION BY WHICH WOMEN ESTIMATE MEN. —What a curious trait is that in women—their exaggerated anxiety to see one who has been loved by the man in whom they themselves take an interest; and the manner in which the said man rises and falls in their estimation, according as they admire, or are disappointed in, the object of his love. Nothing has cured more effectually the romantic interest the female world conceived for Byron, than a sight of the persons on whose affection he prided himself. Byron might have committed in their eyes a thousand sins more excusable than the error of bad taste.

LADIES' FASHIONS.—In Connecticut, in former times, they had their hair tied so tight upon the back part of their heads, that it drew their lips apart so much that they could not get them sufficiently near together to kiss their lovers, without loosing the cord.

WIT.—As true wit generally consists in the resemblance and congruity of ideas, false wit chiefly consists in the resemblance and congruity sometimes of single letters, as in anagrams, chronograms, lipograms, and acrostics: sometimes of words, as in puns and quibbles: and sometimes of whole sentences or poems, cast into the figures of eggs, axes, or altars. Nay, some carry the notion of wit so far, as to ascribe it even to external mimicry; and to look upon a man as an ingenious person that can resemble the tone, posture, or face of another.

TRUTH.—The study of truth is perpetually joined with the love of virtue; for there is no virtue which derives not its original from truth; as, on the contrary, there is no vice which has not its beginning in a falsehood. Truth is the foundation of all knowledge, and the cement of all societies.

Laughter should not be restrained on ordinary occasions, but if one wishes to do so, he can, by sucking in his cheeks. Dean Swift made the discovery, and was never known to indulge in cachination. It is hardly necessary to say that he was dispeptic.

EFFECTS OF FLATTERY.—An unsuccessful lover was asked by what means he lost his divinity:— " Alas," cried he, " I flattered her until she got too proud to speak to me."

THE AGE.—They say that every age has its ruling vice; I think impatience is that of the present; we live in such a hurry we have not time to be sorry.

ADVICE.—Let those who would counsel the young, remember that it is easy to pluck the flower open, but impossible to close it again.

FRIENDSHIP.—Friendship is a dangerous word for young ladies; it is love full-fledged, and waiting for a fine day to fly.

Pleasant is the joy of grief! it is like a shower of spring, when it softens the branch of the oak, and the young leaf lifts its green head.

QUEBEC, OCTOBER 25.

On Wednesday, shortly before midnight, this city and its environs were visited with one of the most terrific thunder storms within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The lightning was vivid beyond any we had previously seen, and the instantaneous crash of thunder that accompanied it caused fears of hearing in the morning that some disaster had ensued in the city. Such, however, did not prove to be the case, and, towards ten o'clock the sun was shining with the splendour of a morning in spring.—Quebec Trans. Oct. 25.

At Beauport the steeple of the church was struck, and the front of the building much injured, the windows broken, and a pew at the lower end completely demolished.

The church of Ancient Lorette was equally unfortunate, the fluid struck the vane on the spire, the gilding of which was discovered yesterday morning to have been turned completely black by the action of the fluid, which in its way down the steeple, tore off several sheets of tin from the covering, and passing along the eaves of the roof and down a tin spout, it glanced off and struck the corner of the church displacing about eight feet of masonry. Some of the stones were thrown to a great distance, one we are told estimated to weigh eight quintals, was found close to the school-house, at least an arpent distant from the church.

The villages of Lorette and Beauport are about nine miles asunder, and we are told that some mischief was done to the fences on the farm of Mr. Louis Panet on the Little River, which lies near ly in the course between the two churches.

It is worthy of remark that the great fire in Philadelphia which destroyed property to the amount of $400,000—that in this city which destroyed property to the amount of $100,000,—and that in Mobile which destroyed 500 or 600 houses, as stated above,—all occurred within the space of three days. That in Philadelphia commenced about 11 o'clock in the evening of the 4th inst. and burned till daylight on the 5th, that in New York commenced about half past 1 o'clock in the morning of the 6th, and burned till sunrise: that in Mobile commenced early in the evening of the 7th, and burned for several hours. Probably the loss of property by these three fires is at least $2,000,000.

LATEST FROM MARANHAM.—By the arrival of the Roxana, at Salem, accounts have been received to the 29th Sept. Business was at a stand.—The rebels still held possession of the interior, and no progress had been made against them, although a large number of Government troops were assembled at Maranham.

FRANCE AND BUENOS AYRES.—We have received intelligence from Buenos Ayres to the 28th Aug. at which date no hopes were entertained of an immediate adjustment of the difficulties between France and the Argentine Republic, through the mediation of Great Britain. A new French Admiral, it was said, was to be appointed, with discretionary powers to settle the difficulty.
