SLATES! SLATES! SLATES!

THE Subscribers have at their office, samples of valuable ROOFING SLATES, by which parties may be enabled to select the sizes as they may fancy for roofing, at a cost delivered at this place equal to shingles, at twenty shillings per Thousand; or from these samples slates suitable to fancy may be ordered by themselves from Liverpool or Port Dinowic, Menai Straits, Wales, in their own vessels, by which the Freight may in part be gained; the Slates will be stowed on board by the shippers in such way as to prevent little if any breakage.—Sample sizes sent are 13x6½, 14x8, 16x8, 16x10, 18x9, 20x10, 22x11, and 24x12. Persons disposed to order, at a distance in the Province, will do well by making from a thin board the different sizes, by which they may at once see the description they might fancy to order. The Slates will be imported to order if required, and every information given to facilitate those who may choose to import for themselves, on application to
