POETRY.

TO THE INFANT PRINCESS ROYAL.

BY LEIGH HUNT.

Welcome, bud beside the rose,
On whose stem our safety grows;
Welcome, little Saxon Guelph;
Welcome for thine own small self;
Welcome for thy father, mother,
Proud the one, and safe the other;
Welcome to three kingdoms; nay,
Such is thy potential day,
Welcome, little, mighty birth,
To our human star, the earth.

Some have wished thee boy; and some
Gladly wait 'till boy shall come,
Counting it a genial sign
When a lady leads the line.
What imports it, girl or boy?
England's old historic joy
Well might be content to see
Queens alone come after thee
Twenty visions of thy mother
Following sceptred, each the other,
Linking with their roses white
Ages of unborn delight.
What imports it who shall lead,
So that the good line succeed!
So that love and peace feel sure
Of old hate's discomfiture?
Thee appearing by the rose,
Safety comes, and peril goes;
Thee appearing, earth's new spring,
Fears no winter's 'griesly King;'
Hope anew leaps up, and dances,
In the hearts of human chances,
France, the brave but too quick blooded,
Wisely has her threat re-studied;
England now is safe as she,
From the strifes that need not be;
And the realms thus hush'd and still,
Earth with fragrant thought may fill,
Growing harvests of all good,
Day by day, as planet should,
'Till it clap its hands, and cry,
Hail, matur'd humanity!
Earth has outgrown want and war;
Earth is now no childish star.

But, behold, where thou dost lie,
Heeding nought, remote or high;
Nought of all the news we sing
Dost thou know, sweet ignorant thing;
Nought of planet's love nor people's
Nor dost hear the giddy steeples
Carrolling of thee and thine,
As if heav'n had rain'd them wine;
Nor dost care for all the pains
Of ushers and of chamberlains,
Nor the doctors' learned looks,
Nor the very bishop's books,
Nor the lace that wraps thy chin,
No, nor for thy rank, a pin,
E'en thy father's loving hand
No-ways dost thou understand,
When he makes thee feebly grasp
His finger with a tiny clasp;
Nor dost thou know thy very mother's
Balmy bosom from another's,
Though thy small blind lips pursue it;
Nor the arms that draw thee to it;
Nor the eyes, that, while they fold thee,
Never can enough behold thee.

Mother true and good has she,
Little strong one, been to thee,
Nor with listless in-door ways
Weaken'd thee for future days,
But has done her strenuous duty
To thy brain and to thy beauty,
'Till thou cam'st, a blossom bright,
Worth the kiss of air and light;
To thyself, a healthy pleasure;
To the world, a balm and treasure.

VARIETY.

Marriage.—Some marry for convenience, as widowers with families of small children; some marry for beauty, in the hope of deriving happiness from a connection with a person who outshines associates; some marry for money, apparently regardless whether the heiress is a shrew or a fool; some marry for love—love at first sight—no matter whether well-founded or not. Now all such marriages are wretched affairs. Many a man, and woman too, have cursed their day, because they rushed thoughtlessly into a connection as unfit as possible, without any reflection as to consequences, when, with half an eye, the consequences might have been foreseen.

Cause of Human Diseases.—I can tell honestly what I think is the cause of the complicated maladies of the human frame, says Abernethy.—It is their gormandizing and stuffing and stimulating those organs (the digestive) to excess; thereby producing nervous disorder and irritation. The state of their minds is another grand cause.—The fidgeting and discontenting yourself about that which cannot be helped; passions of all kinds, malignant passions and worldly cares pressing upon the mind, disturb the cerebral action, and do a great deal of harm.

Quite a Load.—The editor of the Natchez Courier goes into a calculation, in a late number of his paper, and proves that even the most delicate lady one meets now-a-days, carries a bale of cotton on her head! The way Duffield proves it, is after this wise; that what with her French bonnet, her costly feathers, her rich veil and magnificent ribands, lucky is the father or husband that can square accounts with her milliner, by the nett proceeds of a bale of cotton. A mantilla costs from a bale to two and three bales, and three negroes could not pick enough in a day of our great staple, to pay for the rich buttons on an Elssler cape and cuffs. Oh! for the good old days, when the brocade of the first ball lasted half a century, and when no young lady thought of marriage, until, with her own hand, she had made all the requisite household linen. But it must be confessed, that they look so bewitching in their foreign finery, that it is enough to make one, like Jaffier,
"In love—and PLEASED with ruin."

An American Diver, by the name of Scott, is amusing John Bull with his feats of Sam Patchism. His exploits seem to have excited the wonder and admiration of the people in England. A short time since, he worked his way up the Thames as far as the Custom-House, and leaped from the maintop gallant yard of a brig lying at anchor off that place, in the presence of one of the largest concourse of spectators ever assembled on a similar occasion. Not less than three thousand persons were assembled on the Custom-House wharf: business in the long room was for some time suspended, and individuals crowded every window in the Custom-House. Nearly the whole of the garrison in the Tower turned out, and the river was covered with boats, while many hundreds mustered on the shipping and steamers. Soon after three o'clock, Scott made his appearance, mounted the rigging, and got upon the yard, which was braced taut, and for some time exhibited his usual antics of running along the yard without holding on by any rope, hopping from one end of it to the other, suspending himself by the neck by a rope made fast to the yard, hanging on to it by one foot, and fixing himself with his head downwards and his legs in the air on the summit of the maintop gallant mast. This was the most extraordinary part of his performance, for the ship was anything but steady while he was displaying this perilous feat. At four o'clock, after tying up one hand, so as to render it useless to him, he walked to the end of the yard, and made a flying leap into the river. He dashed headforemost into the water, sending up a column of spray above twelve feet high, in the midst of which he soon appeared with his head above water, waving a silk handkerchief. He was liberally rewarded by the multitude, and stated that he should give another leap the next day.

Ingratitude.—When Duchesnois, the celebrated French actress, died, a person met an old man who was one of her most intimate friends. He was pale, confused, awe-stricken. Every one was trying to console him; but in vain:—"Her loss," he exclaimed "does not affect me so much as her horrible ingratitude. Would you believe it, she died without leaving me anything in her will—I, who have dined with her, at her own house, three times a week, for thirty years."

Good Reason.—A gentleman, who has been a snuff-taker for forty years, has abandoned the filthy habit, assigning as a reason, that he "scarcely ever had the sole use of his own snuff-box for half an hour at a time; as, the moment he produced it, which was nearly every moment,—nine out of ten of the persons present, and seven of those nine with unwashed hands, forthwith plunged their unwelcome fingers into his snuff."

Balls.—As balls are all the rage in these parts, we publish from an exchange paper, for the benefit of our dancing friends, "a new cotilion, and how to dance it:—First couple forward, wheel and fire—second couple ditto—alamode at the corners—nose-your-nose—gentlemen cross hands—ladies kiss over—right and wrong—pussey—lemonade all—first couple canter 'round the whole posse comitatus—second ditto—third ditto—fourth ditto—bob your cocoa-nuts, and then go to roost."—Bos. pap.

There is a gentleman in Springfield, Mass. who regularly celebrates the anniversary of his marriage, by paying for his newspaper. The same gentleman celebrates the birth of every new comer, by subscribing for a newspaper. We could not afford to do this.—Boston Evening Gazette.

London, with a population of two millions, has fifteen theatres open; New-York with a population of three hundred and twelve thousand, has seven; and New-Orleans, with its hundred thousand inhabitants, has three, and splendid ones at that.—N. O. Pic.—While Boston, with a population of ninety-three thousand, has only two theatres open, and both poorly supported at that. Alas, for the legitimate drama.—Boston Evening Gazette.

Astonishing.—In the State of New-York there are forty-three thousand eight hundred and seventy-one persons over 20 years of age who cannot read and write.

American Presidents.—It appears that General Harrison is the oldest President, and Van Buren the youngest. It also appears, that the first five Presidents were 66 years old, or in the 66th year of their age, when they went out of office; and that this would also have been the case with J. Q. Adams, if he had served two terms, and with Jackson if he had served but one. Harrison will be the only President over 70 years old, except Jackson, who was only eleven days over 70 when he left office. Van Buren goes out of office under 60 years old.—Mer. Jour.

Melancholy.—We learn from the Richmond Star that a few weeks since two intimate friends at the Concord Academy, in the State of Virginia, purchased of a fellow student a beautiful pair of pistols, each taking one. While examining their new purchase, one of them placed a cap upon his, and pointed it at his friend, saying he could kill at that distance, and snapped the pistol. His friend then presented his, in a playful way, and said that he could kill him—the other replying that he could not. He snapped the pistol, it exploded, and his friend, to his horror, fell mortally wounded, and died in about ten days after. Neither of them thought the pistols were loaded.

The United States Post Office Department.—The annual report of the Postmaster General, Mr. Niles, is published in the Globe. The annual transportation on all the routes, as they existed on the 30th June last, amounted to 36,370,776 miles.

The receipts of the Department for the year ending June 30th, 1840, were $4,539,265 68, and the expenditures $4,759,110 85, showing an excess of expenditures of $219,845 17.

There was also paid in addition, for mails by steamboats, about $9000, and for ship and way letters $26,000. The number of post offices on the 30th of June last was 13,468, being an increase of 638 during the year.

The revenue, as compared with the preceding year, shows an increase of $61,651 64, being a fraction over one per cent.

The Postmaster General recommends some material reforms in the mail establishment. The principal of these are, to abolish, with some limited exceptions, the franking privilege—to prescribe by law a limit to the rate of compensation for steamboats, railroads and stage coaches—to equalise the postage on newspapers and other printed matter with an advance of one hundred per cent.—and a revision of the letter postage, with a deduction of 25 per cent.

GENUINE BUFFALO OIL is fast taking the place of all other articles to promote the growth, soften and beautify the Hair; its use gives it a softness that no other article does, and causes it to curl beautifully—by free use it will darken and give the hair a satin gloss; it is highly perfumed and gives perfect satisfaction to all that have given it a trial. You will observe the signature of the proprietor, "WILLIAM BROWN," also "BUFFAOL OIL," imprinted on the Bottle. In consequence of a counterfeit which has recently appeared and is now for sale, he has been persuaded to obtain a new label engraved on copper, for which he has secured a copy right, entered according to an Act of Congress in 1839, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of Massachusetts. Any infringement will be dealt with according to Law.
