WHO WILL GO BALD?
☞ Read the following:
ROBERT WHARTON, Esq. late Mayor of Philadelphia, has certified, as may be seen below, to the high character of the following gentlemen.
The undersigned do hereby certify that we have used the Balm of Columbia discovered by J. Oldridge, and have found it highly serviceable not only as a preventive against the falling off of hair, but also a certain restorative.
WM. THATCHER, senior, Methodist Minister in St. George charge, No 76 North Fifth-street
JOHN P. INGLES, 321, Arch street.
JOHN D. THOMAS, M. D. 163, Race street.
JOHN S. FUREY, 101, Spruce street.
HUGH M'CURDY, 243, South 7d street.
JOHN GARD, Jr. 123, Arch street.
The aged, and those who persist in wearing wigs, may not always experience its restorative qualities, yet it will certainly raise its virtues in the estimation of the public, when it is known that three of the above signers are more than 50 years of age, and the others not less than 30.
[From the Mayor.]
Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, }
City of Philadelphia. }
I, ROBERT WHARTON, Mayor of said city of Philadelphia, do hereby certify that I am well acquainted with Messrs. J. P. Ingles, John S. Furey, and Hugh M'Curdy, whose names are signed to the above certificate, that they are gentlemen of character and respectability, and as such full credit should be given to their certificate.
In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the city to be affixed, the sixth day L.S.] of December, &c.
ROBERT WHARTON, Mayor.

DARING FRAUD.—The Balm of Columbia has been imitated by a notorious counterfeiter. Let it never be purchased or used unless it have the name of L. S. COMSTOCK, or the signature of COMSTOCK & CO. on a splendid wrapper. This is the only external test that will secure the public from deception.

For Sale at nearly all Shops, and at Saint John by Messrs. PETERS & TILLEY, Mr. A. R. TRURO, Messrs. T. WALKER & Son, and others.

REVIEW.

"Third Report on the Geological Survey of the Province of New-Brunswick.—By ABRAHAM GESNER, F. G. S., Provincial Geologist, &c." —8vo. pp. 102.

The science of Geology is daily increasing in interest and importance to mankind. By its means, alone, can the natural resources and subterranean wealth of any country be precisely developed, and profitably brought into operation.—Before the establishment of this eminently useful science, the discovery of the mineral riches of the earth was either the result of chance, while the treasures thus fortuitously brought to light had remained for ages utterly unknown; or, even if their existence had been suspected, immense sums were expended, and vast amounts of valuable time and labour thrown away, in ignorant and misdirected researches, before any useful result was obtained; and frequently, the effect of such operations, guided by no certain data, was the utter failure of the speculation. At the present day, however, there exists no necessity for any of these impediments to national industry and wealth.—Guided by the scientific light of Geology; directed by an index, whose indications are regulated by the well-ascertained principles of science, the inhabitants of the newest or most recently-settled country may speedily vie with those of the oldest dominions of the world, in bringing into practical and profitable employment, the hidden treasures of the teeming earth. Looking forward, with timely and prudent prescience, to the period, when the factitious sources of subsistence and emolument, arising from the forests, the wild animals, the virgin soil or the waters of their newly-settled country may fail, or become inadequate to the support of the increasing numbers of their population, a wise and careful people will examine into their prospects for futurity; will endeavour to ascertain, not only how they themselves may procure present subsistence and comfort, but also, how their descendents, to whom they have given existence, and for whose welfare, therefore, they are bound to provide, may enjoy, in future years, the necessaries and embellishments of terrestrial life. To provide for ourselves alone, and to leave posterity to shift for itself, as many often argue for, is selfish, ungrateful and impious: if former generations had acted on such a principle, how many of our present comforts should we now possess? We are sent into this world, to perform our duty to our neighbour as well as to ourselves and to GOD; to do as much for the well being and enjoyment of those who may succeed us, as those who have preceded us have done for us; to leave the world better than we found it, if possible; and thus to evince our gratitude to the Supreme Being, for the blessings he has bestowed upon us, by labouring for the perpetuation of those blessings to succeeding generations, and by making the best use, for that purpose, of the abilities and talents with which we have been endowed. Acting, then, on these irrefragable principles, the inhabitants of new countries should use their best endeavours, to ascertain and develope the natural advantages and resources of the territory, on which it is their lot to dwell: while using for their own benefit, the adventitious and easily procured products of a yet uncleared and unreclaimed soil, they should do something to point out, for the advantage of their successors, such sources of subsistence and prosperity, as may supply the place of those which the earliest settlers have exhausted. In so doing, indeed, they will not labour exclusively for posterity; because, from the first moment of the discovery of a new and valuable object of industry, they can avail themselves of its possession; and, after having enjoyed its beneficial products, during the remainder of their own existence, and thus compensated themselves for the cost of its developement, they can transmit it, as a rich and profitable bequest, to those who are naturally entitled to its reversion. It is with the greatest satisfaction, therefore, that we congratulate our own good Province of New-Brunswick, in having, in the period of her national youthfulness, begun to reflect on her duty towards her offspring, and to devise and pursue the best method of performing that duty. Undoubtedly, the developement of her natural resources, by the means of Geological researches, is one of the most important and effectual means, in providing as well for the more extensive benefit of the present, as for the well-being and comfort of succeeding generations, that could have been employed; and the several branches of the Provincial Legislature, and more especially, the wise prescience and fostering recommendations of our worthy Lieutenant Governor, which have established and thus far provided for the Geological Survey of the Province, are deserving of the thanks of the whole population; and will indubitably receive the commendations of all those, who have the best interests of their country truly at heart. These observations have been elicited by a perusal of the "Third Report" of Dr. Gesner, the talented and indefatigable Provincial Geologist; whose scientific researches and industry, since his appointment to that peculiarly useful and important office, have resulted in the developement of a mass of facts, of the highest interest and importance to the country; which were previously buried in obscurity, and utterly unavailable for any beneficial purpose. By the publication of the Provincial Geologist's three reports, however, the inhabitants of New-Brunswick are enabled to perceive, as far as the explorations have advanced, what are the real extent and importance of their country's mineral wealth; and already, although the survey was so very recently commenced, its practical benefits are beginning to be felt; and experience has proved, that its expense, so far from being a needless outlay, will rapidly be extinguished by an increasing Provincial profit. Proceeding, therefore, on the principle of sound wisdom, in reference to all certain speculations, that it is desirable to invest capital in establishing what will abundantly compensate the cost; we cannot but hope, that the Legislature will be sufficiently impressed with the importance of the object, and the value of the interests to be created by the prosecution of the work, as to provide liberally for the continuance of the Geological Survey, until the whole area of the Province has been subjected to its operations; and the mineral treasures of every part of the country have been laid open to the knowledge and enterprise of its rapidly increasing population.

The perusal of this "Third Report" will afford ample gratification to the merely scientific reader; while to the enterprising engineer or speculator, who may be seeking for an appropriate sphere of employment, the information contained in its pages will be peculiarly valuable. As a specimen of its style, and in support of our own preliminary observations, we present the following extracts from the "Introduction" to the Report:—

"The pioneers who first visited the forests, remote from any dwelling, and discovered groves of timber that once overshadowed the soil, conferred a favour upon their successors, and secured for a time a revenue to the Province; so will those who, by their foresight, may be the means of bringing into operation, other and more permanent objects of enterprize. The most important of all the resources of the Province are her mines and mineral productions; and the time cannot be very distant, when the Geological Survey will be found not only to have aided the cause of the natural sciences, but also to have secured to New-Brunswick a benefit of the highest order.

"GEOLOGY may be called a new science. Forty years ago, it was blended with vain and absurd theories: but, by the labours of most eminent men, in Europe, by the united efforts of those whose object it was to collect the facts, as they are recorded in the earth, a noble enquiry has been elevated, a science has been born, alike remarkable for its interest and value to mankind.

"Although Great Britain had been explored from time to time, at great national expense, still it has been deemed necessary by Parliament to commence a new Geological Survey, with the advantage of the knowledge gained by recent discoveries in the science; and experience has already proved the vast utility of this undertaking. Other powers are equally active in this important work, and each reconnoisance returns a satisfactory reward. Even in Newfoundland and Upper Canada, Provinces whose geographical situations are far less favourable than that of New-Brunswick, these surveys have been commenced, and are advancing with zeal and alacrity.

"The advantage of possessing a good geological map of the Province, is by no means inconsiderable; by the completion of such a work, it may be ascertained at a single glance, what is the nature of the rocks, the situation of the most valuable minerals, the character of the soil, &c.; and other topographical information is afforded by the reports connected with it. Thus, persons who are desirous of immigrating, or purchasing wild land, may become acquainted with such facts, as will induce them to enter into agricultural or mining pursuits; and the Government would be made acquainted with such details, as would enable it to act with advantage upon certain data. So great has been the demand for the Geological Reports already published, by persons residing abroad, that I have been unable to supply them; and it has been regretted that a greater number of them was not printed.

"It is very evident that, for a long period to come, the inhabitants of these Colonies must depend upon the natural resources of the country, for the support of their commerce and the objects of their industry. But, although the time may be distant, when the more delicate and skilful operations of manufacture will be performed, necessity will soon require the opening of mines of coal, iron, copper and lead. If the attention be directed to the fisheries along the coast, it will be seen that they are becoming less and less productive. The supply of timber from the interior will also decline, and each year the cost of bringing it to market increases, by reason of the lumberman having to extend his labour farther from the navigable streams. Indeed the time has arrived, when, in almost every section of the Province, the finest forests have been felled and removed. Should an unfavourable change take place in the British market for the timber of these Colonies, it requires not the knowledge of a statesman to foretell the result. At the present time our timber is given in barter for European coal and iron, and other goods;
