Daguerreotype Likenesses.

THE Subscriber does not know, nor does he care to know, what a certain gentleman is not in the habit of doing, and he presumes that as this person is a stranger, and all the enlightenments upon this topic comes from himself it will be received with due allowances. The Subscriber pursues the system of business of this community, and now begs to say that as goods are usually advertised to arrive, he will shortly receive a superior German Camera, of a large size, by which he will be able to take likenesses infinitely superior to anything hitherto produced in St. John, the instruments now in use being of American manufacture.

The Subscriber expresses the hope that the public will believe the repeated assurances of a certain artist, "that his pictures do not fade." The necessity for such repetition seems, however, to justify the suspicion that they may, perhaps, have done so in the past, and may do so again.

The Subscriber's Book will be open without limit to time, for pictures at one dollar each, and the names attended to in regular rotation.
