POETRY.

I LOVE TO SEE A MERRY BAND.

BY MRS. CRAWFORD.

I love to see a merry band
Beneath the good old tree,
That grows upon my father's land,
The land he left to me.
His heart it was a kindly one;
He'd bow his locks of snow,
To be the playmate of his son,
In days long, long ago.

There was a time, a happy time,
When this old heart was young,
And wed an angel in her prime,
More fair than bard has sung.
But she like earth's most precious things,
Soon left a world of woe,
And therefore 'tis, the old man clings
To days long, long ago.

The young, the gay, oft laugh to hear
The old man tell his tale;
And wonder at the furtive tear
That wets his cheek, so pale.
But they, in time, like me, will weep
The change from joy to woe,
And in their hearts, as jewels, keep
The days long, long ago.

I love to see a merry band
Beneath the good old tree,
That grows upon my father's land,
The land he left to me.
There's pleasure, mixed with sadness too,
It makes my bosom glow;
To do as he himself would do,
Who died long, long ago.

STATE OF THE COUNTRY.

(From the London Morning Herald.)

There has never, perhaps, been a period in the history of this country when the call for honest men, conscious of the great necessities of the time, willing to grapple with, and able to meet and satisfy them, has been so urgent, or their protracted absence from the great political arena so acutely felt, as the present. There is ability enough amongst us, and statesmanship enough and honesty enough, but the qualities spread separately over a large surface need combination to ensure any practical advantage, as the elements of party require again to be re organised before the government of the country can be restored to its healthy tone, and be refixed on anything like a substantial basis. The battle of the corn laws, which ended in the downfall of protection, has like other conflicts, inspired the victors with an inordinate sense of the value of their acquisition, whilst it has failed to secure voluntary submission on the part of the vanquished. If Sir Robert Peel, Mr. Cobden, and Lord John Russell thought more of the restoration of prosperity, and less of the perpetuation of doctrines forced upon the country, in the first instance, by agitation, treachery, and artifice, there might still be a hope of righting the good ship, and of a speedy issue from the difficulties by which we are already environed. If the honest confession were to be made, that however, delightful and satisfactory might have been the operation of free trade in ordinary or rather extraordinary times, and under favouring circumstances such operation has, in consequence of the enmity of the nations, and the over anxiety of ourselves to establish a brilliant example for the imitation of mankind, proved disastrous to the interests immediately affected, and played havoc with the national revenue, the recovery of our position might be comparatively easy, and our future course clear and successful. But there is no prospect of the honorable, though it may be humiliating, confession. It has been resolved to believe, against evidence; to persevere in spite of warning; to give no ear to experience, but to submit, with an inflexibility worthier of a better idol, to the last exactions of an accepted dogma. The wailings of Jamaica—the violence of Ceylon—the complainings of Manchester—the demands of Canada—the lamentations of Glasgow—and, worse than all, the ominous declarations of the Zollverin, come home to us in vain. Prodigals in our faith, we are willing to spend our last in order to maintain it. Lunatics in cherishing one idea, we have neither disposition nor time for the reception of any other. We see our colonies prostrate before us; we hear the probability of disaffection and revolt insiduously discussed; we behold accumulating pauperism in the districts of labour; we see departing from us all the signs of industry usefully displayed, of humble life tranquil and contented in the full enjoyment of its rights; we feel our national wants in the daily dropping off of the national means,—but still we make no movement to repair the growing evil, to stop the spreading canker. No song of the syren ever charmed man into a forgetfulness of danger so thoroughly and effectually as the cry of Free-trade has lulled us into an absolute disregard of the most tremenduous perils that ever threatened a country utterly reckless of its first interests and chief duties. For our own part we have no expectation of checking the impulse in its downward course. Having got so far, it is difficult to see how we can stop mid-way on the declivity, and not go to the bottom. The shortest way back may, at this period of our progress, and at this juncture of our affairs, be to proceed at once to the end of our journey. Having completed the "vicious circle" we may begin de novo, and, taking all things as we find them, remoddle our system with a view to the assuagement of universal suffering. Nothing, for instance, can be more difficult at this very moment than to deny the justice of the claim of our fellow subjects in Montreal to the repeal of the Navigation Laws. They have been brought to destitution by free trade; why should they not be saved by the same process? If we robbed them of their rights in order to establish a principle, why should we stop short of the application of that principle at the precise instant when that very application seems to promise, although at the expense of other sufferers, to put them on their legs again. The wrong, they reasonably urge, will not consist in proclaiming free-trade in shipping; the wrong was done when, in 1846, we declared that the industry of the British empire should be placed at the mercy of the hostile tariffs of the whole world. How is the appeal to be answered? It cannot be answered either logically or honourably, save by the immediate restoration of protection to the produce of Canada or by allowing to Canadians, frankly and fully, at whatever cost or sacrifice, the facilities which, to our disgrace and lasting shame, we have so wantonly extended to the slave-owner of Cuba and Brazil. If, however, we are doomed, as we fear we are, to witness in turn the decay of every interest in the empire, in order to gratify the political views of Manchester economists, and to give the foreigner an undue advantage over the taxed producer of England and her colonies, let not those who have undertaken the cause of British industry be unmindful of the hour when the great and final struggle must be made for the reconstruction of our whole commercial policy. That hour may be nearer at hand than the wisest imagine. When commercial men hold large meetings in Liverpool for the purpose of supplying alarming deficiencies in the revenue by curtailing the expenses of royalty, a confession is made of surpassing ignorance and folly, but an acknowledgment also is extorted which it is of the highest possible consequence to bear in mind. With an income-tax unknown to the country in time of peace, and bearing with fearful pressure upon the daily diminishing revenues of those who pay it, we are brought to a standstill. Deprive the Sovereign of every farthing she possesses, and our condition would not be bettered. After decreasing the incomes of the people by our legislation, and after charging their earnings with a per-centage which produces millions to the national exchequer, we cannot go on. Year after year the national debt grows heavier, and the income of the country falls ominously short of the expenditure. What is the remedy for this unwholesome state of things? When free-trade has done its worst—when every colony and every interest shall have tasted of its fruits and drank of its virtues to the dregs—what can drag us from the slough into which we have voluntarily cast ourselves, if instead, of proudly setting ourselves up for an example to every body else, we do not think proper to take example of our neighbours, and to raise our revenue from the sources which practice shows to be legitimate and which the bitterest experience will convince us to be the surest and the safest? The men of Manchester may refuse Custom duties to the call of protection, but they must concede the practice at the stern demands of necessity, and grant to the revenue that which they denied to the labourer. There is no help for it. Nations cannot thrive upon deficiencies any more than individuals can grow rich by wasting their substance. Money must be had to carry on the government, to meet liabilities, to fulfil national obligations. To look for supplies from cutting down the income of monarchy is too ridiculous to be thought of. The expenses of monarchy sink into insignificance before the splendid requirements of a republic. A sovereign people is more luxurious than a sovereign. Large as the item seems in England for the maintenance of a court, it is evident, upon comparison, that the more liberal the institution the greater the drain upon the public pocket for the maintenance of the royal dignity. To live we say, recourse must be had to the Custom-house. A fair duty upon foreign-manufactured goods is at last the only thing to equalis income and expenditure. We entreat Protectionists to bear the fact in mind. Deprived of the untiring spirit which can no longer, almost single-handed, expose the fallacies of a science as hollow as it is baneful, they need to collect themselves for a day of conflict which is not far distant—which will be coincident with the last blow inflicted by Free-trade—and which will require the best energies of the most honest men, in order to restore to the country the tranquillity, prosperity, and strength, which she is now from day to day losing.

ASTONISHING EFFICACY OF HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

THE TESTIMONY OF A CLERGYMAN VOUCHING TO ELEVEN CASES OF CURES BY THESE WONDERFUL PILLS.

Extract of a Letter from the Rev. George Prior, Curate of Mevagh, Letter Kenny, Carrigart, Ireland, 10th January, 1846.

TO PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY.

SIR,—I send you a crude list of some eleven cases, all cured by the use of your Pills, I cannot exactly give you a professional name to the various complaints, but this I know, some of them baffled the skill of Derry and this County. In a previous letter this gentleman states as follows:—Within a short distance of my house resides a small farmer, who for more than twenty years has been in a bad state of health; Mrs. Prior gave him a box of the Pills, which did him so much good that I heard him say, for twenty years past he never ate his food or enjoyed it so much as since taking your Pills.
(Signed) GEORGE PRIOR.
⁎⁎ The above reverend and pious gentleman purchased some pounds' worth of the Pills for the benefit of his poor parishioners.

EXTRAORDINARY CURES BY Holloway's Ointment.

CURE OF A DESPERATE CASE OF ERYSIPELIS.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Joseph Gildon, Jun., a Farmer, East Kenal, near Spilsby, Lincolnshire, 8th April, 1846.

TO PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY.

SIR,—I have the gratification to announce to you a most wonderful cure wrought upon myself, by the use of your Ointment and Pills. I had a severe attack of Erysipelis in my right foot, which extended along my ancle, and was attended with swelling and inflammation to an alarming degree, insomuch that I was unable to move without the use of crutches. I consulted a very eminent Physician, besides other Medical men, but to no purpose. At last I tried your Ointment and Pills, when, strange to say, in less than two weeks the swelling and inflammation gradually subsided to such a degree that I was enabled to pursue my daily avocation, to the utter surprise and amazement of those who were acquainted with my case, seeing that I was cured so quickly. I and my family are well known here, as my father holds his farm under the Rev. J. Spence, Rector of our Parish. JOSEPH GILDON.

Holloway's Ointment will cure any cases of Bad Legs, Ulcerous Sores, Bad Breasts, Sore Nipples, Cancers, Tumours, Swellings, Contracted or Stiff Joints, Gout, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Burns, Scalds, Chillblains, Chapped Hands and Lips, Bunions, Soft Corns, Piles, the Bite of Moschettoes, Sand-flies, Chiego foot, Yaws, Coco-bay, and all Skin Diseases common to Europe, or to the East and West Indies, or other Tropical climes.
☞ Sold by the Proprietor, 244, Strand, (near Temple Bar,) London; and by S. L. TILLEY, Provincial Agent, No. 2, King street, Saint John, N. B.; James F. Gale, Fredericton; W. T. Baird, Woodstock; Alexander Lockhart, Quaco; James Beck, Bend of Petitcodiac; O. K. Sayre, Dorchester; John Bell, Shediac; John Lewis, Hillsborough; John Curry, Canning; and James G. White, Belliste;—in pots and boxes, at 1s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 7s. each. There is a very considerable saving in taking the larger sizes.
N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients are affixed to each pot. July 11, 1848.
