The Overflow of the Mississippi.

NEW ORLEANS.—The New Orleans dates of the 19th ult. state that the crevasse at Sauve's was enlarging, and the water was finding its way into the opening of the Metarie Ridge. The business part of the city was in great danger from the flood—the water being scarcely more than half a mile distant. The works had been abandoned for the time. The Bee says—"Our city is assuming a curious aspect. Boats ply about Common, Gravier and Canal-streets in all directions. The First Municipality this side of St. Louis-street is overflowed all the way up to Rampart-street. Ladies project parties of pleasure, and gentlemen row them about, even at the risk of an occasional ducking. $50,000 at least have already been spent by the city: it will take, at the most moderate calculation, $50,000 more to stop the crevasse; and if the wharves do not cost, during the summer, $150,000 in addition, we shall be most agreeably deceived."

The Crevasses at New Orleans.—Telegraphic accounts from New Orleans to the 20th May, state that the crevasse had not been stopped, and one-half of the city was overflowed. From the Picayune of the 23d, received by mail, we take the following:

"The water in the rear of the city, we are sorry to say, is still on the rise, and at dark last night seriously menaced Carondelet and Saint Charles streets in many places. The lower part of the First Municipality and the Third Municipality, which have as yet escaped the disastrous encroachments of the water, are now seriously threatened with inundation. The water in the Bayou St. John is but three inches lower than during the great inundation of 1831, when the flood passed over Dauphine street, and the levees along the canal of the Draining Company and Galvez Canal do not seem as though they could much longer resist the great pressure against them.

Every effort is made to strengthen them, but in the opinion of the surveyors having charge of the work, it is an almost hopeless task. We are, however, encouraged by the fact that, in consequence of a favorable change of the wind, the lake fell several inches yesterday, and the good effect of this must be felt in town, as the crevasse water will pass off over the ridge and through the canals with much more rapidity. We anticipate a fall in the water in the streets this morning."

The following paragraphs are from the same paper of the 22d:—

"The damage caused is immense, and we are happy to see that some steps are taken by the benevolent to afford relief to the poor, many of whom are in a suffering condition. In many streets the water is three feet deep, and it is almost impossible for the residents to get about. Many of the bridges at the intersections of the streets have been raised by the water and floated off, leaving perfect pitfalls, exceedingly dangerous, as they are invisible. Numerous accidents have occurred at such places, and some measures should be taken to guard against them.

There are dwellings now in the extreme outskirts of the town which are a mile and a half from dry ground, the whole distance being navigable for good sized yawls. The dead bodies from the Charity Hospital are conveyed to Potter's Field, a distance of three miles and upward, by water, barges having been constructed for the purpose.

The overflow has brought large numbers of snakes and other reptiles from the swamp up into the streets. Conger snakes, the most venomous known in this country, have been seen in the water in several places within the last few days, and we learned from good authority last evening that a little girl, while wading in the water in Faubourg Treme, on Saturday last, was bitten by something she did not see, and died in a few hours afterward."

The crevasse at Tunis on the opposite side of the river, was in a fair way of being closed. The Crescent of 23d, says:

"A constant stream of drays and other vehicles, laden with household furniture, was yesterday to be observed coming from the inundated districts. Multitudes of persons have already left their houses, which now remain perfectly deserted. The population of the city will thus necessarily be crowded into a space much too small for its accommodation. The result of this must be discomfort and inconvenience at least. It may be much worse. Every one agrees that crowding a great number of persons into a small space is productive of effects very deleterious to health. Such may be the case in the present instance, yet being forewarned we are forearmed, and should therefore take active measures to avert an evil which our neglect would at least aggravate."

Tragical Affair.—At Cincinnati, night of the 5th inst., as officers Sutor and Brashear were in pursuit of Jesse Jones, a notorious thief, who had robbed a lady of some jewelry, a man passed by, and a cry being raised "there he is," the man ran, and officer Sutor shot him down with a pistol. The next night Mr. Brashear came up with Jones, who was armed, and shot the officer directly through the heart. He dropped dead instantly. Jones escaped. The man who was unfortunately shot down by Sutor, was a respectable negro, a cook at a public house. He is not expected to recover. Sutor was arrested.

The Siamese Twins and their wives and children are at Washington, and are receiving calls at the modest price of a quarter of a dollar admission.

The Whale Ship Formosa, Capt. Briggs, from Honolulu, arrived at this port, brings $9000 in gold dust from California, consigned to order. Since the arrival of the Falcon, whaler, at this port, a few days since, it has leaked out that the cook, who was shipped at Honolulu, brought with him $12,000 in gold dust, keeping his own secret until the entry at the Custom House yesterday compelled its disclosure. It was gathered by its fortunate possessor at the placers in California during the last year.—[New Bedford Mercury.

Consul at Liverpool.—It is stated that T. L. Crittenden of Frankfort, Kentucky, has been appointed United States Consul at Liverpool. Col. C. is son of Gov. Crittenden, and is a young gentlemen of remarkably fine attainments.

An Infallible Cure for Cholera.—Take three table spoons full of castor oil, three table spoonsful of the best French brandy, and forty drops of laudanum, mixed well together, and let the patient drink it off. The body must then be rubbed over with brandy and a hot flannel cloth. Should the condition of the patient not improve within one hour, and the nails of the fingers begin to get black, administer one table spoonful of castor oil, one of French brandy, and ten drops of laudanum. This generally throws the sufferer into a profound sleep, from which he will awaken perfectly well. This treatment has been found most effectual in India, where cholera first appeared, and thousands of persons were cured by this very simple remedy.—[Liverpool paper.

ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH TO AMERICA.—The projectors of this work in the United States propose to construct it between the coast of Newfoundland and the nearest cape of Ireland. They state that there is every reason to believe that a submarine bank extends from Newfoundland to the British Isles, to which they propose to anchor the wires, supported in cork tubes, at intervals of 10 miles, and have appealed to Congress to aid them in the enterprise, by appropriating a public vessel for their use, to ascertain the truth concerning the nature of the bottom. Should they not find soundings, they state they could still manage to anchor the buoys by means of buckets, &c. Mr. Lake's project for the same purpose, differs from this in not requiring buoys, except at each extremity, to avoid friction; but he considers that the impinging upon America, so far north as Newfoundland, would expose it to the danger of being carried away on the breaking up of the ice in the spring; he, therefore, proposes to carry it further south, and estimates the expense of laying one wire from England to the neighbourhood of Philadelphia at £56,000—copper wire being employed. The petitioners close their address to Congress with an exhortation—"Not to allow the British Government to anticipate the United States in this sublime project." They need, however, scarcely fear competition, when the expense of a few hundred pounds prevents the laying of the wire between this country and France.—Mining Journal.

VALUABLE INVENTION.—On Tuesday last, Mr. Wilson, chief engineer of the Low-moor Iron Works, after having given his evidence as to the cause of the boiler eruption at Horton, alluded to an invention which he is about to bring before the public to prevent similar occurrences. We understand that the plan is exceedingly simple, and in its application will only cost about 30s. or 40s. By the adoption of this plan neither the ignorance nor the neglect of an engineman will produce a disaster. No want of water in the boiler can take place. In fact, it will be impossible either to burst or burn a boiler, even with a deliberate intention to do so. Mr. Wilson has made application for a patent, and no time will be lost in making the discovery more fully known.—Leeds Mercury.

Lord Brougham once, in the House of Peers, "thanked God" that the English people were "under recognizances of 800,000,000 pounds to keep the peace under any circumstances."

The intelligence from Ireland for some time past, has been of the most painful description.—A Liverpool paper of a recent date, says—

"The vortex of destitution, always prodigious, daily grows wider and wider, and really seems likely, ultimately, to be almost the only thing left in the south and west of the Island. Priests, Catholic and Protestant, find themselves constrained to enrol their names in the lists of paupers—landlords, already crushed by mortgages, are threatened with absolute ruin by the rapidly accumulating load of local taxes—tenant farmers refuse to be longer tenants, even though farms be offered to them at rents no higher than will cover the poor-rates—the cottiers, infected with the same despondency, crowd the work-houses and prisons; and while the best of all classes are gathering together what is available to carry with them to happier climes, the land, rich though it be, is suffered to lay untilled, or is cultivated in a way which indicates a determination to exhaust and then to leave it. This is not an over-coloured picture of the social condition of the sister country, the causes of which are discussed and paraded by orators and journalists with all the vehemence and one-sidedness of partizanship. Granting that recent legislation may have augmented the evil, its origin is traceable to occurrences beyond the controul of man, acting, no doubt, in conjunction with the results previously produced by the rottenness of the landed system.

"As an earnest of better times, the government has introduced a new bill for facilitating the sale of encumbered estates in Ireland, accompanied by the avowal that the two measures previously passed for that purpose have proved entirely ineffective. They have failed through the folly or the blundering of the Irish Court of Chancery; and the bill explained by the Solicitor General is therefore to be regarded as the beginning of a reform of the law which must ultimately extend to England, in addition to its more proper principle as an attempt to solve the existing difficulty. The end desired is, to induce capitalists to make their riches the means of improving the cultivation of the soil, an indispensible preliminary to which is, however, such a change in the law as shall provide increased facility and security in the transfer of property. The failure of the previous bill is attributable to the delays and fees of the Court of Chancery; the remedy proposed is, the formation of a commission which, like the West India Commission, is to fix its own rules of proceeding, and to determine questions in the spirit but without the forms of equity. The new commission will, in fact, be a court of chancery without its fees, and this single difference will constitute its almost inappreciable value. The leading features of the plan are borrowed from the scheme imperfectly developed by Sir R. Peel, and have a partial resemblance to suggestions thrown out last session by Mr. Bright.

"There are other supplemental measures of relief; one is to enable leases to be granted in fee, or demised for long terms; the other is to fix the maximum of poor-rating on electoral districts at five shillings in the pound, with a further maximum rate-in-aid of two shillings on the union."

The Rev. James Anderson, Protestant Rector of Ballinrobe, in a letter to Lord John Russell, states that over one hundred and thirty-six deaths occurred in one week in the poor-house at that place. The Rev. Mr. Conway, Catholic curate of the same place, writes as follows:—"We have dead bodies everywhere. I am obliged myself to handle them, coffin them, and put them in the earth. We cannot procure a sufficiency of men to bury the dead, or of coffins to contain them. Every village has dead bodies lying unburied for many days; and almost every hovel in the suburbs of the town has its corpse. We cannot, I repeat, get coffins, boards, or men, for the necessity of the moment. May God forgive our rulers for their cruel conduct towards God's creatures here."

To show the extreme destitution which prevails, it is stated that at Ballydehob fair, county of Cork, a few days ago, good cows were offered at 30s. each, and no buyers! There was a man brought a new milch cow to the fair to sell,—he would not get relief while he had her—he offered her for 30s. and could not sell her; he left to go home, and was found dead on the road.
