POETRY.

[FOR THE COURIER.]

THE BARD'S ADDRESS TO HIS TROWEL.

BY JAMES REDFERN.

No "pill" so sweet, no song, nor slice,
As that, untainted with a price—
My "pill" wont sell—though low its rate is—
Will "grumblers" take this tincture gratis?

Right welcome from thy resting place,
Still sound thy heart, though sad thy face,
Old trusty friend and servant—
Accept my hand, good heart of steel,
And, though I know thou canst not feel,
My love for thee is fervent.

Let Byron praise his gray goose quill,
Let Bennett blast his rocks at will,
But I, their fellow sinner,
Must own with sorrow, if not shame,
My quill procures me little fame,
And just as little dinner!

Away Goose Quill!—old Trowel hail!
Thy edge and temper seldom fail
To raise sweet hopes of carving;
Though oft disuse bedims the blade,
Yet, when the toil is promptly paid,
'Twill save, at least, from starving.

While heroes sing in burning words,
The virtues of their flaming swords,
While butchers, 'midst the slaughter,
Boast the high temper of the knife,
With which they take a fatling's life,
And spill its blood as water:

I'll raise a tribute to thy name,
My Trowel, though unknown to fame,
(What bard e'er sang the trowel's?)
Though often sung with loud encore,
The sword and spear, red-hot with gore,
From reeking sides and bowels.

My humble, honest, harmless blade,
Well temper'd by the matchless Brade,
Thou wilt not turn, nor splinter;
True friend through summer's live-long day,
Yet, like most men, I needs must say,
An absent friend in winter.

Come swarthy friend, thy rusty face
Will soon put off its foul disgrace,
Now let us go to drilling—
Raise up the corner—stretch the line,
And soon thy gloomy face shall shine,
As bright as any shilling.

Away gaunt fame and hungry rhyme—
Come, let us raise of brick and lime,
A hall, a house, or stable;
A work of greater worth and use,
Than e'er was made by quill or goose,
Or all the men of Babel.

Peace to the mitred Peer* who said,
When rising early from his bed,
While thrush and lark were singing,
Of all the music he could hear,
None was so charming to his ear,
As Masons' trowels ringing.

Avaunt base viol, trump', guitar,
Minions of sloth, of lust, and war,
Your sounds are but the dirges
Of virtue, thrift, of wealth and peace;
Your charms raise demons, and increase
Wild passion's raging surges.

To minds of large, extended views,
Attun'd by an historic muse,
Sublime associations
Around the trowel crowd and cling,
Which throw them back, with magic spring,
To building's hoar foundations.

The wall, the tower, the temple, dome,
Bab'lon and Thebes, Athens, Rome,
Erst heard the cheerful clangour;
Far other than the trumpet-sounds,
Which speak of horror, breaches, wounds,
Death, carnage, strife and anger.

Thy tones were heard, high, clear and loud,
Above the clamour of the crowd,
When Babel's tower was founded;
Again, on high, in soften'd sound,
When the great pyramid was crown'd,
By Egypt's hosts surrounded.

Come, let us start with cheerful spring,
And, while we build together, sing
The mason's truthful ditty;
Our work shall stand when they're forgot,
Who scorn our toil and scoff our lot—
Our monument, the City.

All other works compared with ours
Are fading, transient, valley flowers,
Amidst time's sweeping current:
Whilst architecture's stable form,
Like rocky Carmel, braves the storm,
And mocks the swelling torrent.

St. John, April 1.

*A Bishop of Durham, who took great pleasure in building.

MISCELLANEOUS EXTRACTS.

THE VOYAGE TO CALIFORNIA.—A recent number of the Bangor Whig and Courier contains a long letter from the Master of a vessel which arrived at San Francisco, on the 14th September, after a passage of 214 days, from Frankfort, Maine. The writer states that he went through the Straits of Magellan, and although the navigation was tedious on account of head winds and strong tides, yet he thinks that the dangers and difficulties have been greatly overrated, for, as far as his experience extended, they were nothing compared to a passage round Cape Horn. The Straits afford several good harbours, where fresh provisions, and wood and water may be obtained. At Port Famine, a colony established by the Chilians about five years since, supplies were obtained, and the inhabitants seemed to vie with each other in their attentions to those on board the vessel—parties and balls being expressly got up for their entertainment. Here, it was expected, would have been seen some of the Patagonian Indians, of whose enormous altitude so much has been said. The Governor of the Colony said, that the stories about the people were much exaggerated—the tallest he ever saw being seven feet ten inches; but this, he added, was an uncommon instance, the majority not exceeding six feet. The next anchoring place was in the Bay of St. Nicholas, a fine harbour, about twenty miles west of Port Famine. Here the Steamer Senator was obtaining a supply of wood at the time. About forty miles west of St. Nicholas Bay, the vessel again came to anchor. The account of this place we shall give in the Captain's own words:—

At Fortescue Bay we fell in with some of the Fuegian Indians; they are entirely a different race from the Patagonians, being extremely weak and diminutive. I saw none that measured more than five feet in height. I have seen many nations of savages, but I never saw any that could compare with these people in wretchedness and degradation. The thermometer at this place stood at 10 degrees below zero, and there was six feet of snow on the ground, yet these miserable beings were naked as nature formed them; five or six canoes came along side of us loaded with men, women and children, not one of whom had an article of clothing of any kind. How they can exist in this situation I cannot imagine. They had a fire in the centre of each boat, around which they all huddled when not paddling. They kept continually begging for Galliata, Aquardiente, and Tabaco, words which they have learned from the Spanish, meaning biscuit, brandy and tobacco. We got a lot of them on board and our boys amused themselves by putting trowsers upon the women; an operation with which the ladies seemed extremely delighted, dancing and hallooing round the decks like mad creatures. At length one of the old men got a coat on which was too small for him, and could not get it off, this frightened him and he ran howling to his boat, followed by all the rest, who after pulling and hauling and nearly upsetting the boat, succeeded in getting the coat off. Some of the passengers now fired a musket close to them, they stopped in utter astonishment for a moment, and then seizing their paddles pulled for the shore as if Davy Jones himself was in their wake.

After leaving Fortescue Bay we had the wind dead ahead all the way until we arrived at York Roads; here we were detained two days by strong tides and head winds. On shore at this place we found a mammoth skeleton; it was so buried in snow that we could not examine it throughly, but one of the ribs which was brought on board measured fifteen feet in length. Its legs showed it to be a land animal, and it must have been a monster.

After leaving the Straits we were welcomed to the Pacific by one of the heaviest gales that I ever experienced, it lasted three days.

After this we had very fine weather up to Juan Fernandez, where we arrived Sunday, June 15, and anchored in the Roads of St. John the Baptist, on the N. E. side of the Island, to obtain a fresh supply of water. This island is fourteen miles long and about three miles wide, and fertile in the highest degree, the loftiest mountains being covered with vegetation to their summits. Peaches, strawberries, figs, radishes, turnips, and many other rich fruits and vegetables grow spontaneously and in the greatest abundance. Goats also abound, and may be seen skipping from crag to crag on the dizzy heights, where from below there does not appear to be space for a well fed mouse to make a morning excursion. But the principal advantage of the place is the Fish, with which its waters are stocked. I never saw fish in such abundance; we caught as many as we could take care of, in a few hours. Cow fish, a species of lobster, were also abundant, and we laid in a good store.

The Island is only inhabited by a few vagrants, run away whalers, &c. who are too indolent to cultivate the soil from which they might obtain the most abundant crops. After leaving this island, we had very fine weather up to the line: the S. E. trades carried us into 2 degrees North latitude, we then took the wind S. W. which lasted us into 14 degrees. After this we had constant head winds all the way up to San Francisco—no N. E. trades at all, it was beat all the way. This was truly discouraging, and we began to think we should never get in,— we were four weeks bothering with light winds and calms within two days sail of San Francisco. But at last Providence smiled on us, and we got safely moored in San Francisco with every one well on board.

The United Service Gazette says that Lieut. General Sir John Harvey, K. C. B. & K. C. H., is about to return to Europe from Nova-Scotia, his period of command having expired. The same paper furnishes a list of the survivors of the campaign in Egypt, under Abercromby, in 1801, who are still in the service, or en retraite, from which we learn that Lieut. Colonial Bazalgette is one of these veterans.—Acadian Recor.

The Canada Gazette announces twenty-one dismissals in the Montreal, Shelbrooke and Huntingdon Regiments of Militia.

The question of Voting by Ballot was moved in the House of Commons by Mr. H. Berkeley, on the 7th inst. but was lost on the division by majority of 55—for the motion, 121; against it, 176. Although defeated, the friends of the ballot were so pleased at the result, that they received the announcement of the numbers with cheering.

The estimate for the army this year is £6,091,397, being a decrease over last year of £122,814; for the ordnance the estimate is £2,434,417, a decrease of £198,184; and for the navy the estimate is £5,894,423, a decrease of £424,005.

A recent advertisment in The Times, containing the names of influential persons favourable to the total cessation of labour in the Post Office on the Sabbath, cost upwards of £100.

STEAM TO AMERICA.—Captain B. R. Mathews, late commander of the steam-ship Great Western, which vessel, it will be remembered, was sold to the West India Mail Packet Company, has just been appointed commander of the new steam-ship City of Glasgow, which was launched in the Clyde, on the 28th ult. The ship is intended to run from Glasgow to New York; she is barque-rigged, built of iron, to be propelled with the screw by engines of 350 horse power, and is 1,600 tons burthen. From all accounts she is a most magnificent vessel, her fittings up being exceedingly unique and beautiful.

OPENING OF THE BRITANNIA TUBULAR BRIDGE.—The opening of this magnificent structure took place on Tuesday morning. At half-past six o'clock A. M., three powerful engines (the Cambria, the St. David, and the Pegasus), of from fifty to sixty-horse power each, decorated with flags of all nations and union jacks, steamed up, and harnessed together, started from the Bangor-station, carrying Mr. Stephenson, who drove the first engine through the tube, and the following gentlemen:—Mr. Bidder, engineer, Mr. Trevethick, locomotive manager of the London and North-western Railway; Mr. Edwin Clark, Mr. Latimer Clark, Mr. Appold, and Mr. Lee. At precisely seven o'clock the adventurous convoy, progressing at a speed of seven miles an hour, were lost sight of in the recess of the vast iron corridor. The locomotives were propelled at a slow and stately pace, with a view of boldly proving, by means of a dead weight, the calibre of the bridge at every hazard. The total weight of the locomotives was ninety tons. The engines were brought to a standstill in the centre of each of the great spans, without causing the slightest strain or deflexion. The first process—that of going through the tube and returning—occupied altogether ten minutes.

The second experimental convoy that went through consisted of twenty-four heavily-laden waggons, filled with huge blocks of Brymbo coal, in all, engines included, an aggregate weight of three hundred tons. This was drawn deliberately through, at the rate of from eight to ten miles an hour, the steam working at quarter power. During the passage of this experimental train through the tube, a breathless silence prevailed that was almost solemn, until the train, rushing out exultingly, and with colours flying, on the other side of the tube, when loud acclamations arose, followed at intervals by the rattle of artillery down the straits.

An ordeal stronger still was then resorted to: a train of two hundred tons of coals was allowed to rest, with all its weight, for two hours, in the centre of the Carmarthenshire tube, and at the end of the time, on the load being removed, it was found to have caused a deflection of only four-tenths of an inch. Twelve miles an hour is the limit of speed at which Mr. Stephenson intends that trains shall at first go through, more particularly as there are sharp curves at the termini of the tube. During the trial of the dead weights, a very interesting episodical proceeding took place in the interior of the Carmarthenshire land tube—that of putting the last rivet into the plates, making exactly the 2,000,000th that have been used. The rivet having been put in by Mr. Maer, was driven home and fastened by Mr. Stephenson with successive strokes with a huge hammer. This ceremony was followed by the waving of hats and the deafening acclamations of the work-people.—Mr. Stephenson, in a brief address, eulogised the industry of the men, and their devotion to their work.

Afterwards, another testing train was prepared to be taken through the tube. It consisted of the three engines, the two hundred tons of coals, and from thirty to forty railway carriages containing between six hundred and seven hundred passengers, packed together as closely as figs in a basket, all so clamourous and eager to "go through the tube," that it became impossible to accommodate them. At length, obediently to a long wild whistle, the train, which was almost long enough to cover the extent of tube, glided slowly into the interior, saluted by a loud burst of "Rule Britannia," from an array of Liverpool seamen up aloft in the towers at the entrance, on front of which, cut deeply in the stone, were the words—"Erected Anno Domini 1850; Robert Stephenson, Engineer."

Arrival of the Crescent City.—Steamer Crescent City arrived at New York on Monday from Chagres, whence she sailed on the 13th inst. but brings no news. The Ohio sailed on the same day via Havana. Steamer Tennessee and Sarah Sands had not arrived at Chagres when the Crescent City left. The next steamer due at Panama from San Francisco is the Unicorn on the 25th inst. The Crescent City touched at Jamaica. She brings four passengers from Chagres and four from Kingston, but no specie.

At Panama disturbances had occured between the Americans and the authorities, owing to the imprisonment of an American, and the government had threatened to expel the Americans from the place if the outrage were repeated. From six to seven hundred emigrants left in the steamer California, ship Glenmore and brig John Enders.

ROBERT THOMSON,

THIS preparation has now been before the public nearly twenty years. Its great intrinsic merits have steadily advanced the sale and use of it, and it now enjoys a prominent position in the public favour.

The unexampled success which has attended its administration in every case where the patient was really afflicted with Worms, and the fact, that it is not a 'nostrum' or 'cure all' but a specific for one disease only, certainly renders it worthy of the attention of Physicians; a great many of whom having seen in the course of their practice the good and remarkable effects resulting from its use, have had the magnanimity to surrender their professional scruples and prescribe it as the best remedy known.

Every Druggist or Physician who has had any curiosity to enquire into cases where the Vermifuge has been made use of, can furnish abundant evidence of its efficacy in expelling Worms, and the good effect produced on the general health of the patient.

It is mild in its operation, contains no calomel nor other dangerous ingredient, and can be given with perfect safety to the most delicate infant.

St. Andrews, Province of New-Brunswick, October 18th, 1845.

I, Michael Croney, aged 55 years, hereby certify, that for three years previous to May, 1844, I was afflicted with worms, so as to be completely prostrate in strength, and unable to labor, during which time I was constantly under the hands of a physician, with little effect; that, at the time mentioned, I was induced to try one bottle of B. A. Fahnestock's Vermifuge, which produced such extraordinary effects that I was at once relieved from all the pains and spasms I was before afflicted with, and in one week I was restored so as to be enabled to resume my labor; and up to the present time, have enjoyed uninterrupted good health. MICHAEL CRONEY.

TAPE WORMS,

And other worms in ADULTS, can be removed by the administration of

B. A. Fahnestock's Vermifuge.

The following are but a few of hundreds of those cases where it has effected a cure.

East Brooklyn, L. I. Feb. 10th, 1847.

This is to certify, that I took three vials of B. A. Fahnestock's Vermifuge, which had the effect to bring away fifteen yards of tape worm and a number of smaller worms. I would, therefore, recommend this medicine to the public as a safe and speedy cure for worms.
