

Boring Operations Are Progressing

Depth of Two Hundred Feet
Reached at Cold Storage
Plant, Off Main Street.

The boring operations at the New Brunswick Cold Storage Plant on Main street are progressing favorably and a depth of two hundred feet has been reached. At the sixty foot mark the heavy drill broke through a ledge of quartz and made good heading through shale. When the drill had reached to a depth of one hundred and thirty feet, a red carboniferous rock containing much iron was encountered. This species of rock is a dull red in colour when brought to the surface, but when exposed to the air changes to a greyish hue. It is possible to bore five feet a day through this ledge which is considered a very fair average, considering that the rock is quite hard.

T. R. Kent and Kennedy of St. George have five of these boring machines engaged in this work, and is the only firm in the Maritime Provinces doing business of this nature. In a certain district of Nova Scotia one of the machines bored to a depth of 1,500 feet in search of oil. After reaching a depth of 400 feet, a wire cable is substituted for the rope attached to the steel shaft. At this distance a rope will stretch and accurate measurements could not be taken. The drill and shaft combined weigh in the neighborhood of 1700 lbs.

Condition of Sugar Market

Competition of Atlantic Refineries in St. John Is Worrying United States Manufacturers.

The competition of the Atlantic Sugar Refineries, Ltd., in St. John, is worrying United States sugar manufacturers, according to New York advices. C. A. Sprackles, president of the Federal Sugar Refining Company, is quoted as saying that the condition of the refined market is shown by the fact that sales of 4,000 tons of granulated have been made here recently at the equivalent of 4.28 cents a pound, free on board vessels in St. John harbor, for shipment to the United Kingdom. The United States refiners, Mr. Sprackles said, would have to reduce their price fully three quarters of a cent a pound to meet this competition. The Yorkers plant of the Federal Sugar Refining Co. has been shut down. The refiners look for cheaper sugar in the near future, Sprackles says.

WATERLOO ST. CHURCH SOCIAL REUNION

Large Number of Congregation Enjoyed Excellent Programme Last Evening—Church Work Outlined.

The Waterloo street Baptist church was the scene of a church reunion social last evening at which the Rev. John L. Swetnam, pastor of the church presided over a very large number of the congregation were present. In opening the programme Mr. Swetnam asked all to join in singing "Blessed Be the Tie that Binds," after which Miss Kathleen Daley rendered a solo, "The Garden of Roses," in her usual fine manner. The pastor then extended a welcome to all present and outlined the work of the church for the coming year. He spoke of the various departments and their work, stating that all the departments were looking forward to this year with the spirit of optimism, and in closing asked for a spirit of co-operation sociability and enthusiasm in all the work of the church. The programme was then continued by Mrs. D. Coggin, who gave a very enjoyable reading, followed by Miss O. J. Thompson with a reading, and Miss Laura Panjov with another reading. Miss Daley closed the programme with another solo. The ladies of the church with Mrs. Parlee as confessor then served a dainty lunch to all present, and thus the evening came to a very pleasant close, all feeling well repaid for attending.

Cobb Had Right Dope On Ruth

By Cobb is wise in all things pertaining to baseball. Three years ago, when Ruth was the talk of the baseball world, the biggest sensation the game has ever known because of his slugging ability, someone asked Cobb what he thought of the Babe. "The big fellow is a wonder," remarked Cobb, "but he has a big job ahead of him to keep the place in the public's eye that he now holds. "Hitting home runs day after day is far more difficult than doing the things that I have done to keep my name before the public. "My task is to make base hits and show some speed on the bases. Ruth's task is to keep on hitting the ball farther than anyone else can. "In order to continue doing that Ruth must take the best of care of himself. There must be co-ordination between the eye and the muscles of the body. He must be able to time the ball perfectly. "If Ruth takes on weight, increases his waistline, his natural swing is certain to suffer. His eye won't be right. "I am afraid Ruth is going to get heavy. If he does, the pitchers will soon gain the mastery over him. When they do he is going to slip rapidly. Ruth must be a well-conditioned athlete or his fame is going to be short lived."

KING SIGNS PROCLAMATION WHICH DISSOLVES PARLIAMENT AND SUMMONS NEW ONE TO MEET NOV. 20

Manifesto of Premier Bonar Law, Issued Yesterday, Contained No Remarkable Surprises, and the Greater Part of It Was Devoted to Enlargement of His Policies Outlined at Unionist Meeting.

London, Oct. 26.—The King at Sandringham, today, signed a proclamation dissolving Parliament, which had lived four of its constitutional five years, and summoning the new Parliament to meet on November 20. The country is now without a Parliament, but has plenty of candidates for the next one.

The only notable event of the day was the issuance of Premier Bonar Law's manifesto. This contained no remarkable surprises, and the greater part of it was devoted to enlargement of his policies, outlined at the Unionist meeting which elected him leader. He proposes to abolish the Cabinet secretariat, which has been criticized as unconstitutional by the opponents of the late Government, and to transfer British representation at the League of Nations to the Foreign Office. He intends to ratify the Irish treaty and call the British Dominions to a conference to develop Empire affairs. There was no statement of policy in the management of British affairs in the Near East, and what is likely to be demanded by Mr. Bonar Law's campaigning critics.

The Prime Minister made his first campaign speech today at Glasgow, where, being of Scotch extraction, he had an enthusiastic welcome. He reaffirmed the points of his manifesto. The former premier, Lloyd George, did not waste his day. He spoke before a large audience of non-conformists in Whitefield Tabernacle in London, where there was plenty of cheering. Mr. Lloyd George was in his breeziest form. Earlier in the day, he and Lord Birkenhead were guests at the annual oyster feast given by the Colchester municipality. Although it was supposed to be a non-partisan social affair, Lord Birkenhead made a defense of the conservative members of the cabinet who stuck by Lloyd George. The former Premier made a few remarks without bringing in politics.

The campaign oratory, up to the present, admittedly has been disappointing, none of the parties, except Labor, developing any specially notable platform, either on home or foreign policy. The stream of election speeches will from this on be incessant, but unless something new is infused, the voting public is not likely to become greatly excited.

Premier Banks on Economy Cry Bonar Law's administration seems to be dependent largely for the favor of the electorate on economy in the expense of the administration. The continued growth of bureaucracy, entailing huge cost, was always a reproach to the Lloyd George administration in the mind of the public, and Mr. Bonar Law's efforts at economy in abolishing the labor and pensions ministries and labor party, whose projected social reforms will be represented as bound to add new burdens to the already heavily burdened taxpayers.

Mr. Bonar Law, in alluding tonight to the proposed abolition of the pensions ministry, pointed out that, without interfering with the interests of the pensioners, the work could be done by the War Office.

done with equal efficiency and less cost.

He was in disagreement with the idea that it was impossible for Germany to pay nothing, but, at the same time, depreciated a too ready assumption at home that it would be the easiest thing in the world for England to pay £1,000,000,000. He declared it would not be an easy thing. He contended that high taxation was one of the reasons for closings in industry, therefore, even small economies in the administration had importance.

On the personal question, he said that in 1916 he had a chance to occupy the position he filled today, but at that time he had no doubt that Mr. Lloyd George was the best man they had in the country for the work then required.

One feature of the election campaign is the effort of the Conservatives to prevent healing of the schism between the two wings of the Liberal party. While Mr. Lloyd George is not actually trying to detach Asquithian Liberals to join his contemplated Centre Party, he is certainly doing nothing which would prevent such development; the Conservative following of Bonar Law, on the other hand is clearly seeking to retain the adherence of the coalition Liberals. There have been rumors of underground negotiations to restrict, as far as possible, contests between the Conservatives and Coalition Liberals; this question was touched upon by Mr. Bonar Law in his Glasgow speech tonight. These features of the campaign give point to the complaint in the press of the complete confusion of party boundaries in the present contests.

Mr. Lloyd George seems to be finding difficulty in completing his list of honors for the members of his late administration. It was announced that there was no prospect of the publication of the list until the middle of next week.

The Newmarket Jockey Club Cup

Sir Abbs Bailey's Three Year Old Colt, Buck's Hussar, Won Easily and Caused Surprise.

London, Oct. 26.—The Newmarket Jockey Club Cup, run today over the two and a quarter mile course at Newmarket Houghton provided another startling reversal to racing form when Sir Abbs Bailey's three-year-old colt, Buck's Hussar, which finished absolutely last in the Doncaster St. Leger, won easily today finishing eight lengths ahead of Lord Lonsdale's three-year-old colt Royal Lancer, which won the Doncaster classic in easy style from the largest field on record. Third place went to J. White's gray colt, Sandhedrim, was a poor third, finishing four lengths in the rear. Five ran.

No-Hit Game Hurt Work of Pitcher

Very often some spectacular feat on the part of a major league ball player works to the detriment of that particular athlete.

If you would believe most of the Chicago White Sox that is what happened to Pitcher Charley Robertson the past season.

Robertson, it will be recalled, pitched one of the greatest games ever turned in, a shutout of the hard-hitting Detroit club without a hit, not a player reaching first base.

Robertson pitched that wonderful game under the most trying conditions. During a greater part of the game the Detroit club protested the legality of his pitching, claiming that he was doctoring the ball.

In that game Robertson showed he had plenty of nerve, also the stuff to make a star pitcher. In all probability he would have had a much better season had he never pitched that perfect game against the Tigers.

According to the Sox players that perfect game rather spoiled Robertson's disposition. From a fellow willing and anxious to accept all the advice offered, he began to have more respect for his judgment of what should be pitched than Schalk, his star receiver.
