MUSICAL TREAT
BY SEVERAL ST.
JOHN LADIES

A beautifully expressed and well-executed demonstration of French music delighted the large audience that filled to capacity the Natural History rooms yesterday afternoon, as an unusual introduction into the course of lectures that have been so helpful this autumn. Miss Homer was introduced by Mrs. Harold Lawrence, the president, and gave out the program, with explanations for the tone poems that were played so exquisitely by Mrs. Kent Scovill and Miss Beryl Blanch, whose fame is not without honor in this city, but of whom all are justly proud.

Yesterday added still further to the high opinion in which they are held, for the piano selections were musical, expressive, and tuneful, the execution as nearly faultless as human skill could make it. The harmony of the two pianos played simultaneously was particularly notable and often gave the effect of orchestration.

Mrs. Thomas Guy sang three French songs, her own favorite being the first one, "Petit Pique en Reve" a plaintive thing that is particularly suited to the contralto tones of her rich voice. The other, by the same composer, George Hue, was a dainty coquettish song telling of the Amours of Jean and despite Mrs. Guy's doubts was very aptly expressed in soft tones. To all the familiar theme of "My Heart at thy sweet voice" was old, yet ever new and was heartily received, as Saint Saens' melodies are always beautiful.

In the violin selections of Miss Barker, there was the pleasure of hearing favorites of music lovers, "Thais," and "Le Cygne," both sounding clear and sweet, with delightful singing tones that are so marked a feature of Massenet and Saint Saens, the most popular of the French masters. The last number, which described the legendary dance of King Death and his followers on Halloween was very realistic and one heard the rattles of the bones as the spirits were disappearing at the approach of dawn. The harmony running through was haunting, but for rippling realism, the Spanish Rhapsody was superb, with its presentation of the Spanish holiday, the scenes of revelry and even the tinkling tambourines.

Mrs. Lawrence said at the end that the program had left the hearers breathless with its beauty and strange skill to those who do not understand the mysteries of the art. A hearty appreciation was given to Miss Homer and Mrs. Scovill, who planned such a galaxy of home talent.

MRS. W. L. ROBSON
GUEST OF HONOR

Mrs. W. L. Robson, an honored member of the Opportunity Circle of the Kings' Daughters for twenty years, was the guest of honor at the home of the general leader, of the City Union, Mrs. H. W. Robertson, 17 Orange Street, yesterday afternoon when the circle met for ordinary business, on the regular day. The new leader of the circle, Mrs. R. D. Inness, presided over the pleasant function of presenting the address and large bouquet of pink roses to Mrs. Robson, which she said expressed the affection that the members felt for her as the oldest member of the circle. Though now not able to participate in the active work, yet they hoped that Mrs. Robson would be able to meet with them frequently and that there would be many years of companionship with her in this way.

Mrs. W. H. Nice and Mrs. L. D. Dole helped in serving the refreshments at the tea hour, and some time was spent in sewing garments for the Free Kindergarten and in making a quilt. The circle never loses the opportunity to be helpful hence, the name.

Fine Embroidery
The embroidery seen on the new frock for spring is done in fine thread in very small, fine designs. This is an important detail on many of the smartest creations.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

The custom of throwing shoes at weddings goes back to an old Egyptian and Hebrew custom, when the sandal was the symbol of an exchange of property. In ancient times it was customary for the bride's father to deliver her shoes to the bridegroom to indicate that ownership of the bride had passed into his hands. The custom of throwing rice came from China. It was supposed to indicate prosperity.

"I Now Feel Fine"

Mrs. P. G. Murdoch, Box 433, Portage la Prairie, Man., writes:

"I was troubled for years with biliousness, constipation, kidney and liver troubles. I tried many different kinds of medicine, but nothing did me much good until I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I now feel fine, but am never without these pills in the house. Dr. Chase's Ointment has relieved my husband of piles, from which he used to suffer badly."

LINES OF LOVELINESS

Drapery is apt to play an important part in the dinner frock, and street frock as well. As sleeves on fancy gowns become more elaborate and flowing, those on street frocks become longer and plainer. But the waistline cannot be induced to leave the hips for any occasion.

The bride who was given away by her father, looked very attractive in a travelling suit of navy blue broadcloth with squirrel fur and taupe duvetin hat to match and wore a corsage bouquet of pink carnations and maiden-hair fern. Miss Dora Flett of Millerton, cousin of the bride played the wedding march, and the ceremony was performed under an arch of smilax and maiden-hair fern. LATEST FASHIONS

Colors Again
Parisian designers say the black evening frock is not going to have everything its own way this winter as it did last, and colorful gowns and those of tinsel cloth and metal brocades will come to the fore. They predict, too, these gowns will be quite long.

Tie Dye Silks
Silk departments are featuring the tie dye effects strongly for spring. They have prepared special blouse patterns, allowing a yard and a half of material to a blouse. Several all-over prints in Indo-Chinese and Persian effects have been brought out.

Handsome Bag
A handbag of Paisley cashmere is mounted on a heavy Dutch silver frame and attached to a silver bracelet which is worn about the wrist.

Street Frock
A distinctive street frock is of velvet trimmed with a narrow band of moleskin and more ribbon braid. Wide outstanding cuffs finish the plain, long sleeves.

Leather Fringe
An overblouse of gray crepe de chine achieves something original in the way of decoration by adding a fringe of green suede about the collar, cuffs and hem.

Elaborate Headdress
The most elaborate headdresses and evening hats are making their appearance. Triple bandeaux of silver ribbon, studded with brilliants, jet bandeaux, tulle bows, small flower wreaths, silk fringes, ribbons, beads and feathers are used.

This morning I went back to the old days of "Dolls and Drums, and sugar plums," and I story did enjoy myself. Dolls and drums there were a plenty, and the absence of the sugar plums was not even noted, because of the countless number of other toys, some of which I myself had never seen before.

On the top floor of F. A. DYKEMAN & CO., LTD., you'll find this Toyland Paradise, which will make you forget all about time, especially the time which has robbed you of your childhood.

The really-true moving picture machine will bring delight to some small boy in this city, and he will be able to invite his friends to private motion picture parties. The electric train is headed by a twelve-wheel locomotive, while the pullman, observation and baggage cars are all electric lighted and have removable doors. Then there's the automatic sand crane with its tireless little worker. And the auto with the real steering wheel. Little girls will love the sets of furniture in baselware and dainty white wood, the wonderful dolls in all sizes and shapes. Some of them will call "Mamma" and a big boy baby rolls his eyes in a cunning way.

Then there are teddy bears and woolly lambs, new games to play and plenty of new ornaments for the Christmas tree. In fact there's everything to delight the eye of the small boy and girl from two to eighty-two!

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED

You do not whisper in company, or draw aside two or three friends in an assemblage and exchange secrets or personal comments.

When in public be sure to keep your voice low and do not mention the names of people about whom you are speaking in such a way that people overhearing you could identify them. Many unpleasant reports have been started in this way.

Margaret Crozier and Harold Gillis, and a quartette composed of William Grannan, Felix McMullin and Messrs. Stackhouse, gave some excellent songs. Miss Winnie Glenn was the accompanist for the evening.

A fudge table was in charge of Blanche O'Brien, assisted by Agnes Calnan, Mary Raynes and Pauline Dalton, and the candy was disposed of during intermission. A large number was present. The entertainment will be repeated tonight.
