LATEST NEWS GLEANINGS FROM NEW BR[UNSWICK] ST. JOHN

PROVINCIAL BANK GAINS

Now Seventeen Branches in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island District.

There are now 17 branches of the Provincial Bank of Canada in the New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island district. Indications are that Nova Scotia will now be invaded by this bank, and the ground is being looked over carefully with a view to extension.

Twelve years ago, the Provincial Bank on the recommendation of Sir Hormisdas Laporte, president of the institution, decided to enter the Maritime Provinces field. In the dozen years, the seventeen branches have been established. In the city of St. John alone there are three branches all under the supervision of D. W. Harper, formerly a branch manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The following centres in New Brunswick now have Provincial Bank branches: Caraquet, Campbellton, Bathurst, Edmundston, St. Joseph, St. Quentin, Norton, Moncton, Rogersville, Dalhousie, Sackville and three St. John branches. In Prince Edward Island branches have been established in Summerside, Kinkora and Charlottetown.

The three St. John branches are located in different sections of the city, the main office being on Charlotte street, in the uptown retail district. The Provincial Bank has thus departed from the time honored custom of establishing bank branches in the banking and wholesale district such as Prince William street. This latter thoroughfare is recognized as containing the banking section of St. John. Of the three Provincial Bank branches in St. John, the main office is in the uptown district, one is in the north end and the other is in the south end. The south end branch is the only banking institution in that section of the city.

In two directions have the Provincial bank directors made banking history in St. John; they have progressed very rapidly in the importance of the bank in St. John, and have also spurned the beaten track.

Additional branches will be established during 1922 in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, and there being prospects that Fredericton, Woodstock, St. Stephen, Shediac, Chatham will be visited.

A FORMER N. B. WOMAN'S TRIAL

Preliminary Hearing in Case of Mrs. Connaughton Set for Tomorrow.

It was learned yesterday Mrs. William Connaughton, formerly Miss Sadie Thompson of Richibucto, accused of shooting and killing John McKee, a Canadian Pacific railroad engineer at Chapleau, Ont., a week ago last Saturday night, will be given a preliminary hearing at Sudbury, Ont., where she is in jail, on Thursday of this week. The woman's husband, who is also a C. P. R. engineer, was a former resident of the Kent county shiretown and visited his old home two or three weeks ago.

A Canadian Press despatch received from Sudbury late yesterday is as follows:

Mrs. Sadie Connaughton, of Chapleau, accused of the murder of her neighbor, John McKee, did not appear for her preliminary hearing in Sudbury police court this morning, the defence requesting an adjournment to Thursday morning, which was granted without comment. The adjournment was on account of the witnesses having to come from Chapleau and who would have had to leave their homes on Christmas Day in order to be here for this morning's hearing.

One of the largest crowds of spectators seen for many a day at the local court house jammed the court room early, including many women!

The accused had her husband and 17-year old son with her at the local jail last Friday.

Still Investigating Hall Murder Case

New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 26—The authorities conducting the investigation of the Hall-Mills murder continue to run down the rumors that have come to them that the murder was somehow connected with New Brunswick's so-called underworld—meaning that section of the city which fringes the Raritan River.

The officials announced that they had definitely established the fact that the shots which were heard in the river section on the night of the murder could have had nothing to do with the killing of the clergyman and his choir singer. It is believed now that the explosions, taken at first for revolver shots, were due to torpedoes that had been placed along the railroad tracks.

The authorities are more than ever confident of their original contention that the murder was committed where the bodies were found.

Probe Fire Damaging A Parish Residence

Boston, Dec. 26—The state fire marshal today began an investigation of a suspicious fire which on Sunday damaged the parish residence of St. Charles' Roman Catholic church in Woburn and endangered the lives of four priests, a housekeeper and two maids.

The flames were discovered by Thomas Trainor, a janitor of the church who was on his way to work at daybreak. Smoke and flames were bursting from the windows of the lower floors before aid arrived in answer to Trainor's alarm. The occupants were trapped in the upper floors by fire and smoke.

The Rev. John P. Gorham, pastor of the church, and the Revs. William Keville, Walter A. Fegan and Patrick Quill were aroused and assisted down ladders to safety while other firemen carried Miss Catherine Hunt, the residence housekeeper and two maids to safety.

The offices and living quarters were ruined before the flames were extinguished.

State police and city officers asserted that they believed the fire to have been of incendiary origin after finding a window into the basement of the residence broken. Fire chief Frank E. Tracey reported that it had started near the front entrance and had worked up through the partitions to the upper part of the residence.

Ten days ago Father Quill discovered a fire in the church, just across the street from the residence, but it was extinguished before serious damage was done.

Rev. Mr. Lawrence dealt with work among the Indians in the northwest of Canada, and the Eskimo in the north.

Pictures of schools, churches and hospitals were shown, and the fact that the church has so many excellent boarding schools in western Canada was a revelation to many of the church members. Pictures of the port work at Prince Rupert and Victoria were also very interesting. Besides the Canadian work, the rector mentioned the six fields overseas, and outlined the general work at each place. This, with its illustrations was repeated on Sunday night in St. Mary's chapel and later in the chapel of the Messiah.

Delay In Completion Of The Hydro Lines

Moncton, Dec. 26—Two new transformers ordered by the Moncton Tramways, Electricity and Gas Co. Ltd., have arrived and will be installed at the sub-station here to handle the hydro electric current, soon to be delivered in Moncton. Good progress is being made in stringing the wires on the hydro line between Moncton and St. John, but considerable time will be taken in the erection of the towers on either side of the Petitcodiac river, at some distance above the bridge, where the current will cross the river. At one time it was thought by the engineers in charge that the power would be delivered to Moncton on Dec. 25, but owing to unforseen circumstances considerable work entered into the construction of the line which held up progress.

Princess Gives Out Christmas Baskets

New York, Dec. 26—Princess Anastasia of Greece gave the first basket to a little Russian girl, who said "Thank you, lady." in perfectly good English and received a kiss on both cheeks, along with fifteen pounds of chicken, potatoes, apples, candy and other good things for Christmas dinner.

Prince Christopher was there, too. So were the Mayor and Mrs. Hylan and a lot of other distinguished folk. In fact, it was quite the most distinguished Christmas party the Volunteers of America ever held. Hungry people waiting in line for American food is no novelty to any one who has lived in the Near East for the last four years, but the Prince and Princess wanted to see how it was done over here. So they were invited to the party and had their first closeup of American charity at home.

French and Belgian [Relics] Says Hon. Mr. Le[mieux] —War Memor[ials] (Before Stocktaking)

Moncton, Dec. 26—The Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, K. C., M. P., for Gaspe, Speaker of the House of Commons, who arrived at Halifax yesterday on the Cunard liner Caronia from Liverpool and was accompanied by Madame Lemieux and Mademoiselle Clotilde and Marthe Lemieux, passed through Moncton last night on the Maritime Express en route to Ottawa. The party were returning from a two months' tour of Great Britain and the continent. Hon. Mr. Lemieux said that the chief purposes of his trip, which was in connection with establishing sites for war memorials, had been a most successful one and beyond all expectations. He had concluded agreements with the governments that five memorials would be erected in France and three in Belgium; seven of these sites were almost ready to have the monuments placed, but the eighth site at Vimy, which he said is to be the most imposing of all monuments was not quite ready, due to the fact that in the first place only a small acreage was set aside by the French government for this memorial. Hon. Mr. Lemieux after viewing the situation and having in mind the great success of the Canadians at this place, decided that the space was too small and upon taking the matter up with the government of France they gallantly and gracefully deeded 250 acres at Vimy for the site.

Speaking of the reconstruction going on in the devastated regions of France and Belgium. Hon. Mr. Lemieux said that this work was progressing very well, mentioning in particular the rapidity with which Ypres, Lens, Rheims and Amiens are being rebuilt, all of them presenting the appearance of the newest and most modern cities.

Commenting on the relationship existing between France and Britain, Hon. Mr. Lemieux said that although on some matters their viewpoints may differ, the entente between them nevertheless is still solid. Regarding conditions as he found them in Britain Hon. Mr. Lemieux said that there was a notable difference in the complacency of the people since the general election and everyone was hopeful of better times ahead.

FRENCH MILLINERY

Many of the newest French hats have veils and laces for trimmings. Sometimes just a tiny lace edge shields the eye, in other cases straw crowns are used with the tiniest of lace ruffles for brims. Other hats have a lace sash over the crown that hangs in a long streamer on each side.
