POTATO PRICES HAVE ADVANCED

Higher Quotations in Several Districts—Large Shipments from P. E. I. to Southern States.

The potato market is firmer this week, advances in price having been made in some parts of this province, Prince Edward Island and Aroostook County. In Aroostok County the quotation is $1.65 a barrel, with prospects of a further rise. In Summerside potatoes have advanced to 35 cents a bushel for blues. Large shipments have been made from Prince Edward Island to the southern states. These potatoes are to be used for seed for the crop which will be marketed in March and April.

Immense quantities of potatoes are still being held by farmers and shippers in this province and Maine.

RESUMES THE BAY SERVICE

Steamship Empress Replaces Aranmore on St. John-Digby Route, With Former Schedule Restored.

The Canadian Pacific bay service steamship Empress resumed her service to Digby yesterday after undergoing repairs at Halifax following the stranding of the boat at Black Point. During her absence from the route the Canadian Government steamship Aranmore performed the service. The Empress leaves St. John at 7.30 and Digby at 2.45, the former schedule.

The Empress has been equipped with a wireless outfit and in consequence travel over the bay in thick weather will be much safer.

While the steamer was in the Halifax dry dock, Wilfred Kendall, one of the men who rowed from Black Point to Reed's Point wharf at the time of the mishap, fell off the gang plank and was cut and bruised. He was carrying paint at the time and missed his footing.

The Empress is widely known to the travelling public in this country and New England. She was formerly on the route between Summerside and the port of Shediac. She is much faster than the Aranmore.

AUTO THIEVES WERE BUSY IN TORONTO

Toronto, Nov. 6.—Motor car thieves operating in Toronto, have stolen 803 autmobiles valued at over $800,000 this year to date. But due to the police work, and a certain amount of co-operation from citizens, every one of these gas wagons has been returned to their owners, with the exception of twenty-two cars.

SOME SUGGESTIONS

To the Editor of The Journal:—

Sir,—As the Telegraph and Times seem to be running short of good cartoon material, judging by their recent output, may I offer them some good subject matter?

First, I would suggest a picture like the following: A nice benevolent old party, holding a large bag. The old party to be labelled Canadian Government, the bag to be labelled money, with the exact amount contained therein. This nice benevolent old party to be shown pouring into a large hopper the bag of money. The hopper leads to a dredge, and passes through a suction tube and is then thrown forth in a heap at the foot of the owners of the Telegraph-Times, the guardians of the "dear peepul." The owners should be pictured with a broad grin on their faces and gleefully rubbing their hands, one remarking to the other, "Nice easy money, eh George?" and the other, "You said a dredgeful, John." The output of the suction tube should be labelled with the amount of the pile that has passed through it. These cartoone would be very "touching and moving" movie pictures, and as there should be quite a number of them, in order to picturize all of the contracts, I would suggest that they be run after the style of the serials that aer run in the picture theatres, and labelled Episode No. 1, and so on. Like serials run in the theatres they will prove to be quite thrilling, but unlike them this serial would be true to life. Of course as each serial appears there should be new figures made on the bag held by the suction tube. New captions would also be necessary. I would suggest a few: "It is a great thing to own two newspapers, George." Yes, it's money well invested at big interest, John." Another, "How easy it is to fool the Government, George. They think our papers have influence." "Well, John, where ignorance is bliss we get the money." Another: "John, if the dear peepul of this city ever get wise what will happen?" "Don't wory over them George, we will keep them ignorant so long as they read the Telegraph and Times. Nothing that will put them wise to this easy money will ever appear in them. What did we buy 'em for?"

There are other cartoons that might be published. For instance, a typical poker crowd. The cards, the ordinary playing cards, but the stakes—these should be labelled N. B. Power Co. common stock. The next of this series would show one of the players in the Telegraph-Times office declaring to the Editor-manager: "Roast 'em—Wreck 'em—Ruin 'tm. I got trimmed and now I'll trim them. Use the dear peepul cry and tell them that they are being roasted."

After these are published I have some more suggestions for the cartoonist, and the public will be greatly interested, in fact the "dear peepul" will be delighted to see them.

By the way, a friend has drawn my attention to an ad in the To Let column of last Friday's Times. I quote it: "To Let—Modern New Hat Reasonable rent, etc." This must be one that the editor of the Times and Telegraph talk through. It certainly is time they got a new one.

Yours,
LITTLE WILLIE.

NATURAL MONOPOLIES.

To the Editor:

Dear Sir:—In the discussion of the merits and demerits of Messrs. McLellan and Fisher, the owners of the TTelegraph and Times and the N. B. Power Company, it seems to an onlooker that the citizens of St. John are losing sight of one very important fact, namely, the absolute wastefulness from an economic point of view, of competition in what are natural monopolies.

In this class belong all public utilities such as railroads, telephones and light and power companies. The cost of operation and of upkeep is more or less regular regardless of whether a small or a large amount of business is done. Competition does not mean cheaper rates, but higher rates if either company is to make a profit.

Here the slogan: "Competition is the life of trade" does not hold. It may, in the end, mean the death of someone's business, but that only after a long and expensive process which will entail a serious loss to winner as well as looser. Do the rate-payers of St. John imagine for one moment that the Power Company is going to allow the city to quietly step in and take over their business, providing that there is sufficient power from Musquesh to take care of that business?

They should also consider the fact that, if another distribution sytem is built, there will be two to do the work of one which means an economic loss to the city and the country as a whole.

Will it not be for more to their advantage to buy out the N. B. Power Company's plant and equipment at a fair price and avoid any wasteful, expensive competition: "Why bite off your nose to spite your face?"

Yours very truly,
ST. STEPHEN.

CATHEDRAL HIGH TEA IS OPENED SUCCESSFULLY

The annual High Tea of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception opened last night in the Y. M. C. I. There was a very large attendance, considering the number of other attractions which were on yesterday. The decorations of the dining hall and the main hall of the building were greatly admired. A Thanksgiving supper was a feature of the opening day. The numerous booths at which all manners and kinds of good things to eat, drink and were on sale, were well patronized, the fetching decorations adding to their appeal. Of the booths the fancy work booth is worthy of particular mention. This is in charge of the Children of Mary, and great taste was displayed by those in charge of the decoration of it. The fair will continue throughout the week.

The door prize for last evening was won by ticket 1441, and was unclaimed. A ton of good coal is awaiting the lucky holder of that number. The prize on the rose booth, a pair of chickens, was won by ticket No. 1021. A pair of chickens, the prize of the ice cream booth, was won by Very Rev. Mgr. Walsh.

ST. JOHN FOLKS SAW BIG TRAIN WRECKED

In the Imperial's Fine Picture, "Love Never Dies"—Tremendous Holiday Business.

Smashing a train of eight standard steel cars over a trestle into oblivion, as seen at the Imperial yesterday, gives the answer to the critics who assert that the movies are only child's play. In comparison with the financial expense involved, a heavy item in itself, the concern over the actors and extras whose lives were jeopardized in the scene was enough to give any one gray hairs, according to King Vidor, director-producer who filmed the incident in "Love Never Dies."

The picture itself abounds in heart interest, but equally tense was the story that cannot be told upon the screen. It centers around the moments of suspense in which we watched the cars go sliding over the edge of the broken bridge into the river fifty feet below.

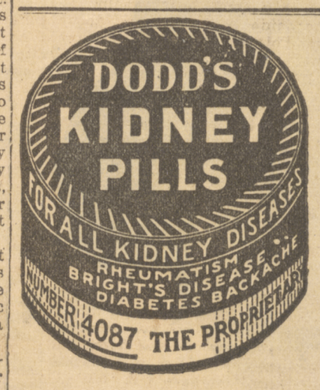

The question of production was secondary it appears. A dozen cameras were trained on the spot, because the scene had to go the first time it was put on. There couldn't be any rehearsals or re-takes.

When Eke Whaley finds out that the mother of the man his daughter has married has a questionable reputation around the town, he orders his daughter, upon the threat that he will kill her husband, to leave him. The husband returns to his cottage to find it deserted. Grief stricken, he resolves to wipe out all trace of himself, and when the train carrying him away is swept off a trestle into the river he causes the report to be circulated that he has been killed.

From this groundwork, King Vidor, director-producer, has developed a striking picture in "Love Never Dies."

Lloyd Hughes, who has the leading male role, has never appeared in a more appealing portrayal. He is supported by Madge Bellamy, whose personality has won wide praise in all her previous releases. Supporting these two players is an excellent cast that includes: Claire McDowell, Winifred Greenwood, Joe Bennett, Fred Gamboal, Frank Brownley and Julia Brown. The picture was adapted from Wil Harben's book, "The Cottage of Delight."

The Imperial did more business yesterday than ever before and the whole show—the big feature, the Al. St. John comedy, the Pathe News, etc., were all good. Same show today.

MONTREAL HOME OF NORMA SHEARER

Leading Woman in "Blue Water" Is Canadian of Culture and Love of Outdoors.

Norma Shearer, who is taking the part of Lillian, the true sweetheart of Shorty, in Blue Water, is a Montreal girl, and has all the culture and proficiency that is acquired by study in the High Schools of that city and in the Royal Academy of Music, from which she graduated. She is an outdoor girl and is skilled in the art of skiing, skating and swimming and is very fond of riding, being well-known as an equestrian in the pictures where she has made some very exciting films, using all these accomplishments.

Miss Shearer has made pictures with Billie Lytell, one being The Man Who Paid and the other The Trail of the Law, both of which were taken in the wild north of Canada. She has also played with Eugene O'Brien in Channing of the North West and has some parts in the Leather Pushers and with Robertson Cole in Till We Meet Again. She thinks that Blue Water has a chance of being a very fine picture under Mr. Hartford's wonderful direction.

Exciting pictures with plenty of action suit the girl of the city of winter sports, and she came here this year, choosing it to going to Los Angeles, because she likes her own country and the scenes that are made here in Canada. She regrets that she does not have more action in the present film, but is glad to play the part allotted, as Lillian is such a delightful character. When asked if she had ever died in the pictures, Miss Shearer said only once in the four years she has been in the work, and that was in the Trail of the Law, where she was her own daughter, and appeared as such after her death earlier in the picture, where she was the mother.

Slight and girlish in appearance, there is the shining glow of health in her eyes and a beauty that is not so much of feature, (though this is worthy of attention,) as the soul of one who looks for the best and is whole-souled and earnest. Her bearing is that of a girl of culture and she loves harmonious surroundings so much that she takes with her curtains and all sorts of equipment for making a room look cosy, especially when she has to go into the wild country. When she is the only girl in a picture, her mother often accompanies her, unless one of the cast takes his wife along. She feels very safe and happy in her work and is very professional in her attitude to her men co-workers, while socially friendly and a great favorite.

It is the opinion of one who knows the movie game that Miss Shearer will become a star, because she has the vivacity of disposition, lithesomeness of figure, and winning personality that radiates sunshine and features well in the movies. She will be welcomed most gladly to St. John again.

Millions are now using this simple treatment to stop pain. Sloan's, applied without rubbing, penetrates and produces a warming sensation.
