FROZEN CIDER POPULAR

Modern science is always coming to the fore with some new wrinkle which extends the market for farm products. One of the latest evolutions is frozen sweet cider. When it comes from the press cider is frozen to zero degrees F. and held at that temperature until thawed for sale or use. When thawed out it is perfectly fresh and sweet. It will keep seven months or more held at zero, and there is every prospect that it may be developed into an important beverage outlet or by-product for orchard-ists.
