(BY SIR WALTER SCOTT, BART.)

CHAPTER XXVII.

'Enter freely,' answered Cedric to the supposed friar, 'with what intent art thou come hither?'

'To bid you prepare yourselves for death,' answered the Jester.

'It is impossible!' replied Cedric, starting. 'Fearless and wicked as they are, they dare not attempt such open and gratuitous cruelty!'

'Alas! said the Jester, 'to restrain them by their sense of humanity, is the same as to stop a runaway horse with a bridle of silk thread. Bethink thee, therefore, noble Cedric, and you also, gallant Athelstane, what crimes you have committed in the flesh; for this very day will you be called to answer at a higher tribunal.'

'Hearst thou this,' Athelstane said Cedric; 'we must rouse up our hearts to this last action, since better it is we should die like men, than live like slaves.'

'I am ready,' answered Athelstane, 'to stand the worst of their malice, and shall walk to my death with as much composure as ever I did to my dinner.'

'Let us then unto our holy gear, father,' said Cedric.

'Wait yet a moment, good uncle,' said the Jester, in his natural tone; 'better look long before you leap in the dark.'

'By my faith,' said Cedric, 'I should know that voice!'

'It is that of your rusty slave and Jester,' answered Wamba; 'throwing back his cowl. 'Had you taken a fool's advice formerly, you would not have been here at all. Take a fool's advice now, and you will not be here long.'

'How meanest thou, knave?' answered the Saxon.

'Even thus,' replied Wamba; 'take thou this frock and cord, which are all the orders I ever had, and march quietly out of the castle, leaving me your cloak and girdle to take the long leap in thy stead.'

'Leave thee in my stead!' said Cedric, astonished at the proposal; 'why, they would hang thee my poor knave.'

'E'en let them do as they are permitted,' said Wamba; 'I trust—no disparagement to your birth—that the son of Witless may hang in a chain with as much gravity as

'Well, Wamba,' answered Cedric, 'for one thing will I grant thy request. And that is, if thou wilt make the exchange of garments with Lord Athelstane instead of me.'

'No, by St. Dunstan,' answered Wamba; 'there were little reason in that. Good right there is, that the son of Witless should suffer to save the son of Hereward; but little wisdom there were in his dying for the benefit of one whose fathers were strangers to his.'

'Villain,' said Cedric, 'the fathers of Athelstane were monarchs of England!'

'They might be whomsoever they pleased,' replied Wamba; 'but my neck stands too straight upon my shoulders to have it twisted for their sake. Wherefore good my master, either take my proffer yourself or suffer me to leave this dungeon as free as I entered.'

'Let the old tree whither,' continued Cedric, 'so the stately hope of the forest be preserved. Save the noble Athelstane, my trusty Wamba! it is the duty of each who has Saxon blood in his veins. Thou and I will abide together the utmost rage of our injurious oppressors, while he, free and safe, shall arouse the awakened spirits of our countrymen to avenge us.'

'Not so, father Cedric,' said Athelstane, grasping his hand—for, when aroused to think or act, his deeds and sentiments were not unbecoming his high race—not so, he continued; 'I would rather remain in this hall a week without food save the prisoner's stunted loaf or drink save the prisoner's measure of water, than embrace the opportunity which the slave's untaught kindness has purveyed for his master.'

'You are called wise men, sirs,' said the Jester, 'and I a crazed fool; but, uncle Cedric, and cousin Athelstane, the fool shall decide this controversy for ye, and save ye the trouble of straining courtesies any farther. I am like John-a-Duck's mare, that will not let no man mount her but John-a-Duck. I came to save my master, and if he will not consent—basta—I can go away home again. Kind service cannot be chucked from hand to hand like a shuttlecock or stool-ball. I'll hang for no man but my own born master.'

'Go, then, noble Cedric,' said Athelstane, 'neglect not this opportunity. Your presence without may encourage friends to our rescue—your remaining here would ruin us all!'

'And is there any prospect, then, of rescue from without?' said Cedric, looking at the Jester.
