CHRISTMAS.

The Christmas festival should be a great leveller. It celebrates the great truth that Jesus Christ came to the world as the Saviour and the friend of all, of no race or class more than another. There is not in His kingdom any possible aristocracy of wealth, or power, or social position, or even of intellect and culture. Nor can there be any who by race or nationality are aliens. Christmas represents the spirit which makes the whole world kin.

Subject to human limitations and pervasiveness the festival works itself out on these lines. At Christmas, more at least than at other times, the community becomes what the name implies, a commune. It is, for instance, one of the creeds of Christendom that every family shall have good fare on Christmas Day. To give this material expression to a spiritual truth great efforts are made even in a small city like ours. If the wholesome doctrine falls in particular instances it is not because the bounty fails, but through some defect in organization, or some want of knowledge. This of course is but a symbol. A good dinner, and the other gifts that go with it, are not much in themselves, but when they are given at Christmas they represent charity in its most acceptable form. No one considers himself under an inconvenient obligation because he receives a Christmas present. Men with a considerable bank account accept a Christmas turkey from an employer or friend without damage to their self-respect. In the general interchange of good wishes and Christmas boxes all things are possible in the way of fellowship as well as charity. Favors and kindnesses which would be difficult at other times become natural at Christmas. Before this festival class distinctions become fainter. Jealousies and animosities, personal, political, racial, denominational, sectional, and national are to some extent effaced by the Christmas atmosphere. Rich and poor see the best of each other, the old and young, long separated by a different career and incompatible interests, find a common meeting ground. The individual withers and the world is more and more.

PROVINCIAL POLITICS.

It is rumored that the discontinuance of the work upon the G. T. P. surveys in New Brunswick is to meet the wishes of the provincial government, which is anxious that the Central or any route should not be finally selected before there is a chance to bring on the provincial elections. It is also said by some of those who are supposed to know, that the difference between the government and the lumber operators are reaching a stage where something will have to be done, and that this circumstance is also another reason why an early appeal to the electorate is being made.

It is becoming increasingly difficult for the administration to grant the demands of the lumber operators without losing the support of a large body of the electorate, and in an attempt to retain the support of the lumbermen by promises to be fulfilled after the elections, it is hoped to blind the people to the real state of affairs and at the same time retain the support of the lumber king.

These conditions, and the desperate financial position of the province necessitating largely increased loans within the next twelve months, may precipitate an appeal to the electorate. In fact, well informed observers of events predict that when the members of the house leave Fredericton after the next session they will practically carry away in their pockets writs for the general elections.

CHURCH UNION.

The recent meeting of the union committee of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches of Canada, seems to have made great progress in the preparation of the basis. A doctrinal statement has been prepared, which is said to contain the essential elements of the creeds of the three churches. To arrive at this statement the revised confession of the American Presbyterian church has been used as a foundation. This creed does not contain the stern Calvinism of the Westminster confession. In the matter of ecclesiastical organization the differences between the Presbyterian and the Methodist systems are largely in nomenclature. A general assembly would not be materially changed by calling it a general conference, and a district meeting might be called a presbytery without altering its character. It would appear that the committee retained the three classes of courts known as the two larger bodies, giving the Methodist name to one, the Presbyterian name to another, and the Congregational name to the third. The Presbyterians have moderators. The Congregationalists have chairmen. The Methodists have superintendents, presidents and chairmen. The committee proposes that one court shall have a president, one a chairman and the other a moderator. It is proposed that the body shall be called the "United Church of Canada."

This seems to be a good beginning. Much water will run under the bridge before the consolidation is complete. But in the meantime enough has been accomplished to pay for all the effort. It is worth a great deal to know that the leading preachers, teachers and administrators in the three churches find that in all essentials the differences are unimportant. This knowledge and testimony ought to make it easier for the churches to arrange their work in new fields or in places where there is not room for all. It might open way for co-operation in theological training, and in many other departments of religious activity.

MR. EMMERSON AND THE INTER-COLONIAL.

"And I am going to say here and now that the Intercolonial is going to pay after a bit. And I am going to say beyond that, that we are going to keep up the standard of the rail-way. Our people say that we can't make it pay, but I will."

So spoke Mr. Emmerson at the commercial travellers' banquet in Montreal. The minister has repeatedly made this prediction. There is no doubt that it can be made good by an efficient and prudent administration.

Speaking of "our people" Mr. Emmerson evidently means Sir Wilfrid Laurier, whose declaration that the government ownership of the Intercolonial had always been and always would be a failure is quite familiar. Our firm belief is that Mr. Emmerson is right in saying that the Intercolonial can be made to pay its way under present ownership. It has done so in the past when the traffic was much less, and the equipment much more modest. Mr. Emmerson may himself be able to make good his own prediction. When he does there will be a great improvement on the first two years of his administration. But at this Christmas season one would not like to say that Mr. Emmerson is incapable of improving on his own past.

HOW CHRISTMAS WAS SPENT AT MONCTON

Firms Remembered Their Employees—Leaving For the West.

MONCTON, Dec. 25.—Christmas day brought light, bracing weather, and much driving was indulged in. Contrary to the general expectation, the market was well supplied with poultry last week, especially on Saturday, when the price dropped to 20 and then to 15 cents. Some sales were made as low as 17 cents, and a few farmers took their poultry home rather than sell at these prices.

The season has not passed without the usual remembrance. The Foundry and Machine Company gave each of their 300 or 400 employees a goose or turkey, and the employees of the Fawcett Flour Mill, the Anchor Wire Fence Company and some other concerns were remembered in the same way. Each of the employees of the J. D. Creighton Co. dry goods, as they passed out Saturday night after the business day received a five dollar bill as a token of the appreciation and good will of their employers.

Eight of the liquor sellers also received Christmas boxes in the shape of a summons to appear this week to answer to charges of violation of the Scott Act. Bent was convicted in the police court on Saturday on the charge of stealing a buffalo robe from George Jones, and sentenced to three months in jail.

Jack Buchanan of the I. C. R. freight claims office leaves next month for the west, having accepted a position on the Canadian Western.

After this quite agreeable that yesterday's trade for the day before Christmas was the largest this city has experienced. The market in the morning was an exceedingly large one, and the farmers got good prices for their produce. Turkey was broken up, and three weeks' treatment completely restored my usual good health."—Lillian Powell.

There was much drunkenness on the streets, and though the police made but four arrests, probably Christmas was the worst day for being taken in. In the evening a young lad named Pond was arrested for shoplifting in Griffith's five and ten cent store.

The Christmas weather so far has been most delightful.

Mr. Foster announced that the members of the diocese would on Sunday next institute and induct the Rev. J. R. DeWolfe Cowie as rector of Fredericton. The curate read a letter he had received from Mr. Cowie, in which the latter requested that at the service next Sunday the church wardens and vestrymen of the church as well as many communicants as possible be present and join in taking the communion service as a most fitting beginning to the work of the new rector.

There he distinguished himself and became the possessor of the medals awarded for acts of bravery. These medals the deceased valued most highly and was always to be found on patriotic days on the streets adorned with the decorations he had won. He received a pension from the British government and for the last thirty years lived in retirement. He is survived by a widow, Bright's disease was the cause of his death.

DON'T NEGLECT A COLD.

Neglected Colds Lead to Consumption.

MISS LILLIAN POWELL
AURORA, IND.

PE-RU-NA CURES COLDS AND COUGHS.

How Pretty Miss Powell Was Restored to Health by Pe-Ru-Na.

Miss Lillian Powell, Aurora, Ind., writes:
"Last spring I caught a severe cold from getting my feet wet and being out in the rain, and in a day I had a most miserable cold, but I neglected it, thinking it would soon leave me. But it hung to me for two weeks, when I felt something must be done, as my condition was serious. I had heard so much about Pe-Ru-Na and in its praise that I bought a bottle and began taking it regularly. I was gratified to find that in a week the cold and cough was broken up, and three weeks' treatment completely restored my usual good health."—Lillian Powell.

How Consumption Develops.

Nine cases of consumption out of ten occur in this way:
A person catches cold. The cold is not properly cured, and another cold is caught.

This cold is illly-dallied with, either by no treatment whatever or some treatment that is ineffectual, and the cold continues.

Then another cold is caught and a cough develops. Cough syrups are resorted to, but they give only temporary relief.

By and by the patient gets tired of taking medicines and cough syrups and gives up in despair.

The cold continues to develop and the cough grows worse.

Then the doctor is called in, only to discover that the patient is in the first stages of consumption.

It was just in this way that Miss Powell, of Aurora, Ind., became sick. She caught a cold, and not considering it serious, neglected it, thinking as many others do, that it would "wear off."

However, it clung to her tenaciously, and in two weeks she found her health in a serious condition.

Fortunately, Pe-Ru-Na had been brought to her notice, and she took a course of this remedy before it was too late.

In a week the cough and cold were broken, and a three weeks' treatment completely restored her to health.

This is what Pe-Ru-Na is doing all the while. Not a day, and probably not an hour passes in which some one does not have a similar experience with Pe-Ru-Na.

Cure the Slight Colds and Avoid Consumption.

The first step toward consumption is a cold. The next step is a failure to cure it promptly. The third step is the development of catarrh, which gradually becomes chronic. The fourth step, the catarrh begins to spread from the head to the throat, then to the bronchial tubes, and finally into the lungs. It is then consumption in the first stage.

At any time during the progress of catarrh, from the first onset of the cold to its final settlement in the lungs, Pe-Ru-Na can be relied upon to stop the disease. If you have taken a cold, buy Pe-Ru-Na without delay. One bottle in the beginning will do more good than a half dozen bottles after the catarrh has fastened itself on the lungs.

Thousands of Testimonials.
We have on file thousands of testimonials from people who have been cured of catarrh of the lungs by Pe-Ru-Na. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unalloyed endorsements we are receiving every month. No other physician in the world has received such a volume of enthusiastic letters of thanks as Dr. Hartman for Pe-Ru-Na.

MRS. DEAN MAY BE IN ST. JOHN

PORTLAND, Dec. 24.—Mrs. Dean, indicted for murder in the famous dress suit case, seems as elusive and as hard to understand as some political theories. According to a rather general official belief she doubled back to Portland about ten days ago and then left for St. John again. She seems to be keeping on the move, if there is any reliance to be placed on official theories, and it may be that in that way she is escaping observation, and she certainly has arrested up to this time.
