

A TRULY IDEAL WIFE

HER HUSBAND'S BEST HELPER

Vigorous Health Is the Great Source of the Power to Inspire and Encourage—All Women Should Seek It.

One of the most noted, successful and richest men of this century, in a recent article, has said, "Whatever I am and whatever success I have attained in this world I owe all to my wife. From the day I first knew her she has been an inspiration, and the greatest help-mate of my life."

Mrs. Beattie Ansley

To be such a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, to inspire him to make the most of himself, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness, white, irregularities or the blues, she should start at once to build up her system by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Following we publish by request a letter from a young wife:

"Ever since my child was born I have suffered, as I hope few women ever have, with nervousness, female weakness, bearing-down pains, backache and wretched headaches. I could not eat, sleep, or do any of my household duties. I was a wreck."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman, and I feel so grateful that I am glad to write and tell you of my recovery. It brought me health, new life and vitality."

"What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Ansley it will do for every sick and ailing woman. If you have symptoms you don't understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free and always helpful."

AN APPEAL FOR

HELP FROM JAMAICA

Baptist Minister Asks Assistance to Rebuild Churches Destroyed by Tornado.

At the Baptist ministers' meeting Monday, the Rev. C. C. Livingstone, minister in connection with the Jamaica Baptist Union, presented a plea on behalf of the ruined churches in the island of Jamaica. Towards the close of 1903 a severe tornado visited the island, crippling trade and affecting work in every department. He stated that the Union suffered the loss of fifty-five church buildings, seventeen parsonages and seventeen school buildings. He was pastor of three of these ruined churches, two of which were completely wrecked and the third seriously damaged. To meet the exigencies of the present, they have secured temporary places, but the time has now come when they must face the question of rebuilding or otherwise relinquishing their position in the community. He is presenting his plea with the hope that the Baptist ministers of this city will bring him before their respective congregations.

On Monday evening he conducted service in the Tabernacle church, and last evening he spoke in the Victoria street church, and this evening will speak in the Brussels street church, and on Friday in the Main street church. Monday, Nov. 6, the two Baptist churches of the west side will unite in holding the service in the Charlotte street church, when Mr. Livingstone will present his plea. Arrangements have also been made for service in the Leinster street church on Wednesday, Nov. 8, and it is hoped that the Baptists of the city will show a sympathetic interest on behalf of the Baptist Union of Jamaica.

A SUDDEN DUCKING

AND BAD SCARE

CALAIS, Me., Oct. 30.—A well known man about town went over to St. Stephen, Saturday evening, and filled up on the "products of John Barleycorn," after which he wended his way back to the Calais side and down onto the steamboat wharf, where he sat enjoying the cool evening breeze, when suddenly he lost his balance, and fell over the wharf, a distance of about ten feet. The effects of his sudden immersion sobered him very quickly and he lost no time in letting the people know that somebody was in danger of being drowned. His cries for help were heard from the bridge and from the other side of the river, where a boat was put out to the assistance of the man overboard. When they arrived at the place from whence the cries for help came they found the man clinging desperately to one of the pilings of the wharf. He was quickly released from his perilous position, put into the boat and rowed to a place of safety, from where he was taken to his home, none the worse from his sudden ducking and bad scare.

DON'T TAKE KINDLY TO

BISHOPS' SUGGESTIONS

Pastoral Letter Was Read in the Churches and Comments Made on It.

The pastoral letter from the bishops of the Church of England which was read last Sunday in all the churches has created considerable comment in St. John at least. There is a disposition among the city clergymen to resent any interference with their forms of service by bishops throughout the country, and they do not seem inclined to take suggestions from anyone but Bishop Kingston. As one clergyman put it, "The Archbishop of Canterbury himself has no right to dictate as to our individual forms of service, but whatever our own bishop wishes we will do."

In several of the English churches on Sunday the clergymen commented particularly on the paragraph of the letter relating to services. This set forth that there is a tendency to introduce into the services unauthorized and undignified musical selections, such as anthems, solos, in place of the offertory sentences, and the employment of elaborate services instead of plain chants and responses. The clergy were advised to guard against undue pressure brought to bear upon them by organists and choirmasters, which often result in the disorders described.

In Trinity church Canon Richardson made his position clear to his congregation. He said no changes would be made in the form of service in Trinity. In his church the organist and choir were not exerting undue pressure on anyone, but the musical portion of the service was arranged with his approval. He did not consider any of the selections undignified, nor did he think the congregation would complain of being shut out from taking part in the services. He did not approve of the stand taken by the bishops in condemning all music not in accordance with the rubric.

Rev. Mr. Kurling in St. John's (Stone), and other clergymen also commented on various portions of the letter, though some of them omitted the clause relating to the musical service.

RECENT DEATHS.

JOHN R. LEBLANC.

MONTGOMERY, Oct. 31.—Working at the Lawville brickyard this morning John Cummings heard groaning on the other side of the shed. Going around, he found Fireman John R. LeBlanc lying on a heap of lumber with life almost extinct. He picked up the man, but he died a few minutes later. Heart disease was the cause. Dr. Ross did not deem an inquest necessary. Deceased was fifty-seven years old, married, with a grown-up family, and had never been sick a day in his life. Had worked for the brick company over thirty years, and lived at Fox Creek.

MRS. CATHERINE MALONE.

The many friends of Mrs. Catherine Malone of Peterborough, Queens county, will hear with regret of her death, which took place on Saturday at the residence of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Hassen, Peterborough. Mrs. Malone was the widow of Equus Malone, and had reached the advanced age of 74 years. She was survived by six sons and two daughters; while relatives also live in St. John. The funeral took place yesterday morning from St. Ignace church, Peterborough. Rev. G. F. Carleton said requiem mass, and burial was at Peterborough.

MRS. JOHN T. GIBSON.

Mrs. Josephine Gibson, widow of John T. Gibson and daughter of the late Roderic Campbell of St. George, died Tuesday at Maryville at morning. Her daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Chisholm of Sydney, C. B., had just arrived, and it was during a conversation with her when Mrs. Gibson suddenly collapsed and died within a very few minutes. Mrs. Gibson caught a cold about a year ago and ever since has had very poor health, but her death was entirely unexpected at this time. Besides Mrs. Chisholm, the deceased leaves another daughter, Mrs. A. Pierce Crockett, who with her husband left last evening to attend the funeral, which will probably take place on Thursday next.

THE GEM NOVELTY CO., DEPARTMENT 1856 TORONTO, ONTARIO

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

THIS DEPARTMENT IS CONDUCTED BY THE W. C. T. U.

When Dame Fortune is turning a lottery wheel it must be acknowledged, to her credit, that she usually distributes her favors to the deserving. She was most needed and appreciated. She was in the benevolent mood when, every short time ago, she awarded $4,000 prize to Mrs. Hofer, the canteen-maid to the 28th French Dragoons; and a second prize of $2,000 to M. Cousin, a clerk who had never drawn more than $50 a year in his life.

And the history of lotteries is crowded with similar dramatic and delightful surprises which Fortune has prepared for the poor. Only a few months ago, we recall, Marie Curie, a chemist in Paris, asked her employer to buy her a ticket in the lottery organized by the Northern League against Tuberculosis; and one fine morning when she was cleaning her workshop she learned that the first prize had fallen to her, and that she was a quarter of a million francs richer for her lucky purchase.

In the drawing of the great State lotteries at Madrid last Christmas the chief prize of $200,000 was won by a struggling tradesman. A Cornu, to whom a hundredth part of the sum would have represented a large fortune; and $8,000 went in smaller prizes to a peasant in Sacedon, a poverty-stricken village in the province of Guadalajara.

The winner of the chief prize of $10,000 in the last lottery authorized by the French government on behalf of the Hospital for Consumptive Children was a Parisian workman called Duthell. When the list of winners was taken in to Duthell's workshop and he discovered that the first prize was his, he was as "Le Franc," literally demented with joy, and he went about with his brain had given way. Duthell had bought his ticket at a cigar shop six months earlier for 1 fr., and had almost forgotten the circumstance when the intoxicating news of his good fortune came to him.

It was only last year that M. Camus, clerk to a Rhine commercial firm, won a small prize of $40 in a lottery, and he has been since a Paris City bond and a Credit Foncier debenture. In the periodical drawing his Paris bond brought him $4,000; and shortly after his Credit Foncier coupon yielded $2,000; the $12,000 being returned for an original investment of a single franc. In a recent Spanish National Lottery drawing, an $2,000 prize fell to a syndicate of ten men, among whom were a cobbler, a canteen waiter, a waiter, a pork-seller, and an army sergeant; while the principal prize of $35,000 went to the crew of the Italian warship Lepanto.

Quite recently, to, a ship's fireman on the Wilson line, Mullilo received the gratifying news that he had drawn the winning number in a great Austrian lottery, and that the snug little fortune of $25,000 was awaiting his claim. The lucky fireman was a German named Joseph Torsig, and he had purchased the ticket when his ship called at Fiume. Eighteen months earlier a poor railway signalman in Prague won a lottery prize of exactly the same value, $25,000; and about the same time Tonba Pietermann, a very poor woman, who had lived for 47 in the Bank of the Nobility Lottery in St. Petersburg, almost lost her reason when she learned that she had won the first prize of $20,000.

Luck, however, came too late to a Moravian clerk Hertz; for when news reached him that he had won a $25,000 prize in the State Lottery he had just commencing a life sentence of penal servitude for murder; and Charles Rotter, a retail tobacconist of Chicago, when he heard that a ticket which he had just given away to a friend had won a prize of $2,000, died of a broken heart.

Year after year a Vienna shopman purchased a ticket for the State Lottery bearing a number which he had dreamed on his consecutive nights; and for ten years his ticket "drew a blank." On December 1st, 1902, the man died, and a few days later the ticket he had purchased won a prize of $4,800.

To give but one more illustration of this aspect of lottery fortune. A short time ago a Vienna paper had an advertisement offering $2500 and no questions asked for the restoration of a Turkish lottery bond to its rightful owner. The number of the bond in question was drawn for the chief prize of $25,000 some years ago. The owner of it, however, a poor man named Mayer, did not learn of his good fortune until he had been dead for some time. He recently lost the bond. Being out of work and in great want, about a month ago he decided to sell the bond, and started off to the bank for that purpose. He found the bank closed, and the bond was missing. Such are some of the tragedies and ironies of lottery luck.

A lumber wagon belonging to Chas. Mayall, of the Coronation House, on the Loch Lomond road, was stolen on Tuesday evening. Mr. Mayall reported his loss to the police yesterday morning. He furnished the officers with a good description of the wagon, and they will doubtless soon recover it.

As the time for Dominion conventions draws nigh, the editor of the column regrets that he has not been able to secure the names of all the ladies who purpose attending. Indeed, only one, Mrs. Lindow of St. Stephen, will leave for Ontario next Tuesday night, and with her daughter, who is a "Y" member, will attend convention at Hamilton.

Mrs. Lindow retired from the provincial presidency last September, after having been in office for two years. She has been the active service in connection with the Women's Christian Temperance Union for eleven years. Mrs. Lindow is a fine prevailing officer, with what Miss Willard would have called "a good above voice," which makes it possible for her to be heard at the back of the room, and keeps her meeting under parliamentary control, and during convention as well as in the year displays excellent executive ability.

The readers of the column will be glad to know that we have arranged to get from Mrs. Lindow directly, a series of lectures on the Dominion convention, touching as fully as possible upon matters interesting to the maritime world.

The Ontario W. C. T. U. held its twenty-ninth annual convention in Brockville, Oct. 27th. The delegation was large and much business was done. There were thirty-two departments of work reported and discussed. Seventeen of these were taken up in three minute talks.

Many resolutions presented by the committee on resolutions were concurred in. These included endorsement of the local option movement as affording some relief from the evils of which the W. C. T. U. complain; woman's franchise was strongly advocated, also the teaching of scientific temperance in the schools and the use of graded text books; condemnation of the opium traffic and the British government for perpetuating this curse to humanity; discouragement of the use of alcoholic flavoring extracts in foods and drinks, and endorsing the teaching of manual training in the public schools; protest against the netting of combination of the business of supplying household necessities with the sale of strong drink, and calling upon housekeepers to boycott merchants so engaged; condemnation of the public house trusts to tobacco and the manufacture and sale of cigarettes; protest against surreptitious pictures on cigarette packages and "midway" attractions at fall fairs, characterized as "schools for moral corruption"; the widespread use of patent medicines containing alcohol was deprecated, and legal restraint of the distribution of certain medicine leaflets from house to house was advocated.

The report of the plan of work committee, which had been under discussion several times throughout the convention, was finally adopted. Many valuable recommendations were made. The report also embraced the following paragraph: "Whereas, the government under which we were for many years living and working declined to fulfill its pledges, and the government in power has given no promise; whereas, the best way of stimulating and creating conviction is to engage in campaigns that have a definite and attainable goal; recommended, that we urge on our societies the prosecution of license reduction and local option contests, and a stringent effort to enforce the existing law. Further recommended, that we appeal to the government to enact legislation that will permit of local option contests in wards and sub-divisions wherever 25 per cent. of the electorate petition for a local option or license reduction campaign; that the vote be compulsory; that a majority petition of the electorate to establish a license, a 60 per cent. petition should revoke such license."

Mrs. S. R. Wright was re-elected secretary of the league, and London was unanimously elected as the next place of meeting.

It was decided by resolution to send a practical expression of sympathy in the form of a purse of gold to Miss C. E. Higgins, the organizer, who is obliged to discontinue the work on account of ill-health.

Next week the column hopes to be able to report Mrs. Stevens' admirable address dealing with the canteen question.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 1.—It is rumored in railway circles here that the new Buffalo, Niagara and Toronto Railway Co., with its scheme for electric lines from Niagara-on-the-Lake to Port Erie, with branches to St. Catharines and Welland, is to move in between the Canadian Pacific and Michigan Central for control of the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo. It is asserted that the Canadian Pacific has created the new scheme so that if the Michigan Central gets control of the T. H. and B. C. P. R. will not be shut out of the Niagara district.

CHROUP ABSOLUTELY CURED. "There is no remedy in my opinion that can act more permanently than Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It cured my son of chroup, absolutely, in one night. We gave him a dose when he was black in the face with choking. It gave him instant relief and cure."—Mr. Wm. McGee, 49 Wright avenue, Toronto, Ont.
